SUMMARY.

Up to a late hour on Monday afternoon no reply to the Russian ultimatum had been received from Bulgaria.

A Reuter message states that, owing to recent developments, the Bulgarian Government must be taken to have rejected the Allies' proposals.

As no answer has been returned, the proposals are considered to have lapsed.

General Savoff has gone to Berlin to explain the situation of the Bulgarian army, and ask Germany for immediate military support.

The Opposition leaders in Bulgaria protested against the pro-German policy of the Government.

The Radicals informed the King that they could not on any account approve of an anti-Russian policy.

Sofia is reported to be practically under martial law. Meetings are prohibited.

The projected landing of a force by the Allies at Salonika has aroused curious uneasiness in Greece.

The British and French Ministers at Athens have issued reassuring declarations.

It is pointed out that the Allies have a mission to defend the railway against Bulgaria, and to succour Servia.

The Allies, it is further stated, will cooperate with Greece if the latter joins the combatants.

The Greek Government has issued a formal protest regarding the landing of troops at Salonika.

The public accept the necessity for such a step, though they regret that it is unavoidable.

A well-known Greek politician states that the protest is a pro forma one, and could have been avoided if some mistakes had not been committed.

It is absurd, he says, to compare the situation with the violation of Belgian neutrality by Germany.

If Bulgaria attacks Servia, he adds, Greece will go to the Allies' assistance.

An Athens message says the Government has taken possession of three railway lines in Macedonia.

The decision of the Allies to land troops at Salonika has created extreme satisfaction in Italy.

A Bulgarian patrol opposite Zimnitza, on the Danube, fired 20 shots at Roumanian fishermen in Roumanian waters.

The greatest activity is apparent in Roumania in precautionary military measures.

The Government is said to be impressed by the possibility of hundreds of thousands of the Entente armies landing in the Balkans.

It is reported that 100,000 Austro-Germans have been transferred from Bukowina to the Servian frontier.

Germany is withdrawing large forces from the Carpathians, leaving a small nucleus.

Russia will shortly send 20,000 troops to Servia's assistance.

The bombardment of the Germans' second-line positions on the western front continues in preparation for another assault.

The enemy is not allowed to know whether the same points will be threatened.

Critics point out that only three British army corps were deeply engaged on September 25.

Sir John French, therefore, possesses ample troops for a further advance.

Meanwhile, time is being allowed the German reserves to exhaust themselves in counter-attacks, in which they lose heavily.

In the Champagne the enemy continued to fire suffocating shells on the French position. The French artillery replied energetically.

A Petrograd communique states that near Dvinsk the Germans opened a heavy fire on the Russian regiments.

The enemy took part of the trenches, but the Russians counter-attacked and reoccupied them.

The Russians carried a village in the Koziany region, north-west of Vilna, capturing a number of prisoners.

The Russians dislodged the Germans at the point of the bayonet in other villages.

The writ in connection with the referendum vote will probably be issued on November 2.

The public have till the day of the issue of the writ to see that they are duly enrolled.

The second recruiting campaign in New South Wales will open in the Town Hall on Monday evening.

The campaign will occupy about five or six weeks.

There was an improvement in the recruiting at Victoria Barracks yesterday, though the average enlistment is still low.

Several Government measures were dealt with in the Legislative Assembly last night.

Questions affecting the welfare of returned wounded soldiers occupied the attention of the House.

The Government promised to consider a suggestion that wounded men should be given an opportunity to enter agricultural colleges.

The first of a series of meetings to inculcate economy and efficiency was held in Martin-place at midday yesterday.

The object of the campaign is to suggest ways and means by which those unable to go to the front might best serve their country.

The Royal Art Society's Exhibition was officially opened yesterday by Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald.

He referred to the high standard of the exhibition, and spoke of the advance on the part of the younger exhibitors.

The Chief Secretary has directed that all bread must be made and sold in loaves weighing 1lb, 2lb, and 4lb.

No deficiency will be permitted in future on any class of loaf.

The administration of the patriotic funds by the Town Hall authorities was brought up in the Assembly.

The Government was asked to have a proper bureau established, where applications could be dealt with promptly.

Evidence in regard to the proposed new automatic telephone exchange was given yesterday before the Federal Public Works Committee.

It was stated that the automatic battery would prove a great boon to the public.

The full-time system has been restored in the permanent way department of the railway service at Bathurst.

All single casual workers are to be dismissed, only married men being retained.

The Commodities Commission, sitting as a court of appeal, considered the claims for compensation for the acquisition of wheat.

An average of 1s a bushel above the proclaimed price is claimed by the farmers.

The Director of Public Health states that the 30 cases of smallpox isolated at Newcastle were of a mild type.

A fisherman named Joseph Fino was drowned off Collaroy Beach yesterday by the capsizing of a boat.

The rainfall at the Government wheat farm at Tottenham has been below the average.

The prospects of the early-sown crops are not at all promising.

A seaman was kicked to death in Pyrmont on Monday night. Two men have been arrested.

The Necessary Commodities Commission sat to reconsider the selling price of chaff.

The representatives of the trade said it would take a week to prepare evidence. An adjournment was granted.

At the Homebush sales, sheep values were generally firm, while cattle were in some cases 10/ to 15/ per head higher.

Butter consignments were sufficient to meet local trade requirements.

There was an active inquiry for cheese, and stocks to hand were quickly cleared. Bacon was scarce.

Supplies of Tasmanian potatoes were short, and prices were advanced £1 all round.

In the general markets manufactured metals were firmly held, stocks of most lines being small.

Harvesting requisites commanded strong country support at well-maintained rates.

Forecast: Showers in the south-east and coastal districts, also in the north-eastern corner, with thunder; strong squally winds, reaching gale force on parts of the coast.

A MAGNIFICENT PURCHASE OF THE SEASON'S EMBROIDERIES.

EXTRAORDINARY VALUES

LATEST DRESS FLOUNCINGS,
CAMISOLE EMBROIDERIES,
ORGANDI EDGINGS,
ALL-OVER EMBROIDERIES.

Even those who are accustomed to our Special Values will find these Embroideries far and away beyond all expectations.

They offer the foundation of exquisite Frocks, and the trimming of dainty Lingerie and neckwear at a most trifling cost.

So keen are the prices that it is hard to believe them when the fine texture and beautiful designs of the embroideries are taken into account.

The fact that this is an Embroidery Season should bring home to you that this is an opportunity to buy at a great saving.

It is highly unlikely that such another opportunity will occur, especially early in the season.

And more remarkable, the purchase is not confined to a limited choice of stereotyped designs. On the contrary, the patterns are very varied, and matchless in beauty.

Just as important, no fault can be found with the quality, which is superfine, as our strict standard of sterling worth requires it shall be.

Leave no stone unturned to inspect the great display of these Embroideries on various tables in the Lace Department, Central Pitt-street Shop; also in Pitt-street Window.

Those who are prevented from buying personally are assured that their orders by mail will be filled with utmost satisfaction. The designs, though so varied, are uniformly attractive; therefore, there is no doubt each will thoroughly satisfy.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.
NEWCASTLE HARBOUR.
LAYING OF GAS-PIPES, NEWCASTLE TO STOCKTON.

It is hereby notified for the information of Masters of vessels navigating the Port of Newcastle that the work of laying gas-pipes along the bed of the Harbour from Newcastle to Stockton will be commenced at an early date.

The pipes will be laid from the Newcastle side at a point 80 feet from the outer end of the Southern wavetrap, and will reach Stockton side approximately 300 feet to the North-eastward of the Western Green Beacon.

All persons are cautioned against letting go anchors or slacking away or lengthening hawsers until well clear of the above line, in order to avoid fouling or damaging the gas-pipes.

A large square sign-board, with instructions painted in white letters thereon will be erected on the South (Newcastle) side, and the line of the pipes will be indicated by two (2) discs three feet in diameter, erected on the North (Stockton) side, the front one just above high-water mark, and the other one about 100 feet back. Both discs will be painted red and white.

By order of the Superintendent.

OCTOBER DAYS BRING HEAT.

SELECT COOL UNDERWEAR!

Now is the opportune moment to buy—not only because the summer is rapidly approaching, but because the better class manufactures are becoming scarce.

We were fortunately able to procure and land in good time a full supply of cool cotton underwear for Summer. But for foresight in buying we would not now be able to procure these goods.

We recommend, particularly, the light and porous

AERTEX CELLULAR UNDERWEAR.

The fabric is all cotton, with the cellular or honeycomb finish, which admits air and permits perfect respiration for the body.

It is very light in weight, wears well, washes well, and is at all times comfortable. Nothing better for Summer wear.

AT A CONFIRMATION SERVICE.

Churches are so fitted into the scheme of our lives that they are always with us, whether we take heed to them or not. In gay and prosperous times, we perhaps heed the call to church-going duty but little. Yet what a change has come over most of us, men as well as women, in that respect. People are flocking to church now to be comforted, as a child rushes to his mother's arms. Mother-like, too, the church is ready with consolation, no matter how wayward and neglectful the child has been. Our ordinary services nowadays are charged with a pathos and meaning which, before sorrow fell upon us, we never discovered. Bible readings are brought up to date. War is so topical in Scripture that some of the lessons, in the Old Testament particularly, read like extracts from the cable news. Not long ago, inattentive hearers were startled into listening when the reader gave out the account of David taking the bread to the "men in the trenches." It sounded so modern. And the lament over Jonathan, what an echo of anguished affirmation it found in the hearts of those who were mourning for their own. "How are the mighty fallen!"

Emotional beyond precedent are the experiences of each day. To restrain feeling altogether is beyond our power. Indeed, medical advisers nowadays urge that tears should not be repressed. Even a mild attack of hysteria they declare to be better than stern suppression with its bad after effects, or than a reliance on any kind of stimulant whatever, from whisky to sal-volatile, with its even worse after-effects. Therefore, it is quite usual to hear the sounds of quiet weeping in church. The tender, comforting words unlock the flood-gates. When the hymns for absent friends are sung, the feeling becomes intensified. Men, as well as women, cry without restraint. Men go to church to-day to relieve their "o'er fraught hearts," else they might in sad truth break, as the poet says.

Deeply charged with feeling for the above and other reasons was the confirmation service held at St. Thomas', North Sydney, last week. Weddings are described "ad nauseam" but no social reporter ever writes up a confirmation, as a "very pretty" event, and yet one being no less sacred than the other, it might with justice be so treated without a suspicion of flippancy attaching to the writer. The number of candidates (there were 155 in all), the beautiful interior of the church into which they walked in procession, the girls all clad in white and gracefully veiled, and the youths, including choir boys, adolescents, and two lads in khaki, the rich vestments of the clergy in procession, and the splendid singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers;" the Archbishop's dignified manner, blending a pastoral tenderness with a kind of austere majesty, as he blessed the young people who came to him two by two; all these and the spirit of intense feeling underlying it all, made up an effect that was dramatic in the most satisfying sense, and yet much more than dramatic; it was "comforting" in the same way that reinforcements are comforting, implying a something that is at the same time a Consolation and a Strength.

WITH THE FRENCH WOUNDED.

L'HOPITAL MILITAIRE ANGLAIS.

Nevers, France, Aug. 17, 1915.

The Red Cross train came slowly round the curve carrying its burden of wounded, and stopped some hundred yards from the hospital.

It was a glorious day in France, and there was nothing in the fields of poppies and cornflowers, or the quiet shaded lanes, to remind one of war and death. It was not till one saw the hospital with its Union Jack flying, and the little group of nurses waiting to receive the "blesses," that one realised that the world was at war, and at this military hospital at Nevers in the heart of France there were English nurses tending French wounded, and incidentally a Sydney girl, too.

How eagerly we pressed forward to see each "blesse" as he was lowered on a stretcher from the train. As each nurse received her charge, how eagerly she scanned the patient to try and discover at a glance the seriousness of the case, and then to smile as cheerily as possible to the poor face turned so helplessly to hers. After months in trenches, followed by wounds and the agony of being moved, he was at rest, surrounded by friends, who are ready to help him in his pain. Then the nurse's work begins. Soon each sufferer is washed and lying beneath clean sheets—ready for a bowl of hot soup. The old patients in the ward are all anxious to help the newcomers, and to make them happy in their new surroundings. How tenderly they treat each other—feeding them like children with a spoon, supporting them and cheering them. Then the doctors arrive, and the operators in the theatre are busy—there is no time for long and anxious faces—it means quick fingers and busy brains, for men's lives are in the balance.

But this was three weeks ago. To-day as I watch the men I find it difficult to believe they are the same who arrived in that Red Cross train. Some are walking about on crutches, others carry an arm in a sling, but they are alive and happy. Here we see a group sitting on a comrade's bed, playing draughts or cards, or else singing some French love-song, and thinking of their fiancees in some distant town.

The French soldat is as affectionate and open-hearted as a child. He will show you his letters, his souvenirs, and his photographs of home folks and sweetheart, because he wants you to share his pleasures as you share with him and help him in his pain. Because he is French, and it is his nature, he does not attempt to hide his affection and admiration for those who have given him care and thought. I am the only Australian at this hospital—"Miss Australia" they call me, and the men are always ready to hear about the dear old land so many miles away. In my uncertain French I tell them of the wonders and beauties of L'Australie. Like children, they listen and ask questions. The kangaroo and emu interest them very much, and our stamp has taught them many things. Some of "my boys" possess an Australian penny stamp as a souvenir. A week ago I received a copy of the "Herald," and those waratahs on the top of "The Page for Women" served to illustrate our national flower.

From English Tommies in the trenches they have learnt "Tipperary," and it gives one a strange home-longing to hear them singing in their broken English "It's a long way to Tipperary."

It is wonderful how cheerful these men are. One of the brightest in the ward has lost an eye and an arm, and some fingers from the other hand. He is easily known because of his many bandages and his smile. There is one little Frenchman here who looks after a wounded comrade like a mother would tend and love a child. From the first day he arrived in the Red Cross train he has never needed affection or care. Courant's dinner is often cold because his friend has to be fed like a little child. Instead of going for an afternoon walk with the other convalescents, this man sits and paints or reads near his sick friend, who watches with untold love and pride the brilliant and gaudy attempts at horses and trees. Courant's cardboard representation of the Crown Prince is one of my most valued possessions. It is a pathetic little sketch, and yet it means to me hours spent in unselfish devotion—the wonderful love of one man for another.

M.L.

GIFTS: WISE AND OTHERWISE.

What Mr. Shearston said in his letter of appeal, in reference to the strange notions some givers had of suitable gifts led up to a conversation with him in his cosy room at the Royal Naval House. He confessed that he has had, from time to time, rather amusing experiences in the way of gifts and letters received, the latter asking all sorts of questions regarding the why and the wherefore of the items of the appeal. Readers may recall—and if they do not remember, this is a fine opportunity to jog their memories—that this day week a long appeal for Christmas cheer for the men of our navy appeared in the "Herald" on the leader page, over the signature of the well-known superintendent of the Royal Naval House. The list of requirements included things of no great value in the monetary sense, so that almost anybody can send some one of them. Among things asked for are good socks, not necessarily hand-knitted.

"Why do you send socks for sailors?" wrote one lady inquiringly. "Sailors do not wear socks."

To state that Mr. Shearston's explanation of why socks are wanted, as given to the present writer, was unfit for publication, does not by any means imply undue warmth of language, but serves to show merely the intense degree of mystery in which the doings and the goings and the comings of our fleet are wrapped. The superintendent declared that only a fortnight is now all the time that must elapse before Christmas presents can be forwarded to two ships.

"What ships?"

A woman's curiosity in this case left unsatisfied the potent word "censor" is murmured, and that is all. It is really very exasperating to have to talk vaguely of "ships" and "wherever they may be." Another attempt to get in more vividly descriptive work is made.

"When must the rest of the things be forwarded?"

"Ah, that I can tell you," beams the man who knows, but will not reveal things, even in the very strictest confidence, as it is pleadingly urged. "Everything must be sent away within a month and, say, 10 days. There is every human certainty of the gifts reaching the men in time for Christmas. There will be no misfires. The Captain-in-charge arranges for the carriage of the goods from here to Man-o'-war steps, then from there to the troopship, which will convey the cases, and from the troopship to the man-of-war to which they are addressed."

"A lady, kindly soul, wrote to ask if a sheepskin vest would be acceptable. Imagine Jack clad in that unseamanlike garb. Sailors are well supplied always with warm clothing. A well-meaning friend packed a case of odds and ends, including hussifs—not asked for, as sailors are always provided with their own—and home-made lemonade in beer bottles. One bottle had been broken, and the result, you may imagine. Another donor, in forwarding smokes, sent along some matches.

"Perhaps," suggested the inquirer, "the lady imagines the fleet to be like 'H.M.S. Mantlepiece,' where

Iced currant wine, and ginger pop,
Stood handily on every top,
And also with amusement rife
A Zoetrope, or wheel of life.

"I see you are askinf for gramaphones with records, and games of all kinds."

The list was gone over again for the benefit of the inquirer. Here it is:—

Razors, strops, and shaving soap.

Good socks (say 3000 pairs), good handkerchiefs (3000 at least); small hair brushes and combs, tooth brushes and paste, pocket knives, cigars, cigarettes, wood pipes (about 3000), writing paper, envelopes, pens, and pencils, games, cards, hornless gramophones and records, Christmas puddings, biscuits, and sweets, all in small tins (say, about 3000 of each). No literary matter is at present required.

"You may be perfectly sure that everything we ask for has been sanctioned by the authorities. Mr. Milson and myself are sending out a small circular requesting donors not to pack liquids or matches. Before we could send this out we had to get permission. In the navy we only act under orders, and cannot take the smallest step without permission asked for and obtained. Everything is done ship shape and Bristol fashion, as the sailor says."

LIFE IN EGYPT.

"Girls are continually asking me for my opinion as to whether they should go to Egypt to work for our wounded, and I always answer No," declared Mrs. W. H. Read, of Wahroonga, who recently was a member of the Australasian Comforts Committee in Cairo. Mrs. Read, who returned a short time ago to Sydney, has much to tell about present-day conditions in Egypt, and incidentally much comfort to bestow on those who wonder whether soldiers friends are getting supplies and necessaries sent.

"Things were much better before I left," said Mrs. Read, "and they were keeping on improving. As one of the Australian committee I could keep in touch with matters of importance, and could see things on the inside. Untrained girls are of absolutely no use in Egypt. They will find no openings whatever of helpfulness to our troops. 'But I can cook,' said a girl to me when I put this view before her. This I then told her was of no importance whatever. There is no cooking to be done by anybody but the natives, either Egyptians, Arabs, or Nubians. Nurses at the base hospitals have told me that except when a rush is on, they have easier times than ever they had at the Sydney or the Prince Alfred Hospitals. The outside work, except skilled medical attention and trained nursing, is done by servants. Splendid servants they are too. The highest grade servant is paid £4 a month, and he keeps and boards himself. In my flat in Cairo I had three servants, and everything was perfectly done. My flat was open house to our boys. They used to come on Sunday afternoon's 'to remind them of home,' they said. A friend of mine in Melbourne, who is going to Egypt is packing up all her flower vases and table silver and she, too, is going to keep open house for her son's friends. In this way a woman with means to afford it can be of real use by giving the boys a taste of home. But for untrained girls going in the hope of finding occupation, as I said, there is no opening at all.

"There are many bright, genial Englishwomen who make their home in Cairo, leaving it only in the hot weather. They will all be back there now and they are all keenly interested in working for the soldiers. Our boys need comforts. 'I've come back in nothing but bandages and blankets,' said one wounded lad to me on his return from the front. All his clothes had been cut away when his wound was dressed. Parcels should be small, for no matter what the package is, it is always hand-carried at last. The postmaster at a base post-office told me to sew everything up in cloth or canvas or print—it really does not matter what—to ensure safe carriage. Billies should not be painted, for one smoking over an open fire will effectually darken them. But they must be sewn up in a covering cloth and the handle laid flat inside, and a loop of some kind stitched on the cover so that an A.S.C. boy can sling a lot of them on his shoulder and carry them up from the beach.

"As soon as Mr. Adrian Knox got to work things began to improve. I think that the British Red Cross were slow to move at first, but matters are clearing up wonderfully. There are several hospitals now on Lemnos Island, the farthest off is only 12 hours from Cairo, though at first Lemnos was reported to be an impossible place for a hospital. What I should chiefly like to make perfectly clear are the two facts as above—that untrained girls are of no use to the military or Red Cross authorities in Egypt, and that parcels larger than 7lb or 8lb stand a much better chance of going astray than smaller ones; also that everything should be securely sewn up in a strong covering."

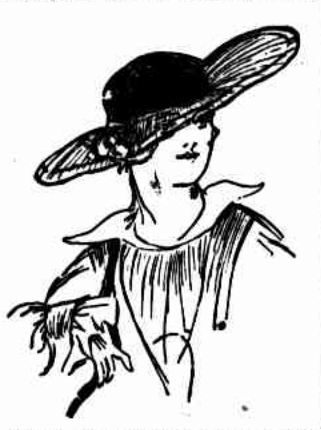
FASHION AS SHE IS.

RACE GOWNS.

The spring meeting is the primary topic this week. Consequently the race frocks assume a great interest and significance. The fashions for these garments take one back some years; in fact, it would be a very acute and experienced observer who could tell the exact date when any prevailing fashion ceased to retain its hold on our affection. Fashions expire unawares, and almost imperceptibly appear again, gradually taking their place until they are ranked as the "dernier cri," and voted quite new. Just such an instance is the revival of the bolero jacket or coat, which is one of the main features in our spring frocks. The revival, I should say, has been brought about by the demand for dresses in one with a coatee to match. This fashion was most remarkable at the race meetings.

Not the straight lines of the tube, but the profile outline of the frilly and fluffy type was the vogue. This fashion has been chosen as more becoming and more feminine than the straight flat modes that have prevailed. They certainly admit models of more individuality and plenty of treatment. Many of the frocks show in a graceful way the lines and curves of the figure, but the skirts are ever so wide, allowing room for movement, although in many instances the tight-fitting effect is seen about the hips.



One of the transparent brimmed hats worn at Randwick.

There is not any special favourite where colour is in question. Mostly neutral tints are noticed, black and navy running the gauntlet. The colour sense in most women is very strong. It is realised to the full, however, when the eye has been more or less starved of colour, and at a time like the present it is brought home to us how large a part woman's dress plays in supplying the right element which is righteously lacking in colour during these days of mourning. But one must try to be "in face," as the saying goes, although our feelings and thoughts may not be of the most cheerful.

Many softly beflounced voile frocks in white, or white daintily figured either in spots or stripes, played a conspicuous part at the race meeting. Some showed quite a mid-Victorian effect. These patterned voiles were in most instances simply and effectively carried out. A becoming example showed the three-tier kilted skirt. The flounces were finely accordeon-pleated; the little corsage was pouched, and hemstitched and adorned with a vest of soft white ninon. An upstanding collar completed a charming frock. A hat of lisere straw, trimmed with a frill of tulle coming over the edge of the brim, boasting a large pink rose with a much deeper centre, and surrounded by dull-looking leaves, was worn with this toilette. Another effective frock was noticed. It was fashioned with a full skirt. It was also made in three tiers, but a quaint touch was given to it by the introduction of a narrow panel in front. The bodice was decorated with revers turned back to show a vest of tulle studded with tiny buttons of blue porcelain. The sleeves were long, and finished with cuffs of pleated tulle. A very chic little bolero jacket accompanied it.

The scalloped effect was most noticeable in many of the new dresses, tiny frills were scalloped at the edge, large flounces showed the same decoration, and piping finished the scalloping in some cases.

The taffeta frock must not be forgotten. It certainly ranks as first favourite, taffetas in navy, taffetas in black, etc., all these were worn with successful results. They lend themselves so charmingly to the quaint designs of the present-day fashions. The silk is soft and pliable, clinging to the figure and flowing out at the hem in a most becoming and up-to-date manner. Many of these taffeta silk dresses were ruched round the hips, others showed thick cording, but one and all boasted the new flare at the edge. Small bolero-like jackets finished the costume in many instances. A two-tiered skirt, carried out in this favourite material, showed a ruching beading the flounces. A cute-looking little coat fell in points at the sides, the back of the coat just reached to the waist line. Tiny buttons trimmed the coat, and a waistcoat of the softest and creamiest chiffon decorated with frills merged into the ever stand-up collar at the back. This lastnamed accessory was also befrilled and hemstitched. The sleeves were finished with little chiffon frills. Touches of colour may be introduced on these navy taffeta frocks, such as a touch of cherry in a velvet tie, or touches of colour in the plaited silk buttons. One of the quaintest of frocks I noticed was fashioned of black silk taffeta. The cording and piping were most conspicuous, followed by a plain band of the silk, and ending in an immensely deep frill at the bottom of the skirt, the latter showed a heading of the gathers and cording of the silk. The sleeves were very long, falling well over the hands. They were finished with bands of cording and gathers to match the skirt. The bodice was very uncommon, being very much scooped out in front, and showing a snow-white vest and collar edged with kilted frills. A large sailor shape, somewhat broader at the one side, and at the back, trimmed with a becoming floating white Chantilly lace veil, finished a most delightful toilette.

Without exception black and white is the general wear; many frocks in this combination were noticeable on the lawn, either black and white or white and black, the whole black frock holding quite a place of its own. A very distinctive looking frock was seen in a soft material; it showed the magpie effect. The skirt was arranged in two tiers, the yoke was gathered into a cording, after the fashion of the day, from this fell the upper tier in the form of a flounce hemmed with black satin. The lower frill was carried out in a similar manner. The corsage was draped with revers hemmed with the satin, and turned back to show the daintiest of vest and collar of embroidered chiffon. Among the various frocks the tussuro or Assam silk must be given a place. A great number of these frocks were seen. These natural-coloured silks look exceedingly well when tailored. Some showed full pleated skirts and loose coatees, cut perfectly straight, and trimmed with bone buttons, or buttons covered with the same material; others showed the cutaway short coat, in front, or the bolero style. There were quite a number of interesting points about these silk suits, and they were all accompanied by a coat or coatee. Striped silk, such as China blue and white, or navy and white faced the collars and cuffs. These spring coats and skirts are appropriate wear for the present moment; black satin is a feature with some of the coats, touches of the satin is noticed on the collar and facings. An example was in a very thick Assam natural coloured silk. It was well tailored. The hip yoke trimmed the skirt, and a new touch was given to the yoke by a piping of black silk. The skirt was the regulation length, or rather shorter, and showed the flare. A waistcoat, carried out in black and white striped silk boasted long simulated points in front. Navy blue was another colour introduced with these natural toned materials, and in every instance the effect was good. White cloth or fine serge is just now immensely favoured. It is somewhat doubtful whether there is anything more chic or more becoming. I noticed quite a number at the meeting. An elegant-looking suit was fashioned of the white cloth, which has a creamy tinge in it. The coat was cut on the latest lines, that is, it showed the fashionable flare over the hips, and was slightly eased in at the waist. It was lined throughout with white silk. A pretty little vest, merging into a collar, helped to give the necessary finishing touch to the toilette. A smart little hat accompanied the frock. It showed the fashionable buttonhole stitching at the edge of the chiffon, which trimmed the brim of the hat. Dust coats of silk were one of the conspicuous features. Where a pretty frock was in question these coats were a necessary item, and few women can do without one. The majority were in Tussore or Assam; buttons trimmed them; in other instances coloured silk decorated the collar. The three-quarter length is very much favoured, finished with a broad belt of its own material. They are a great saving where a dainty dress is concerned.

Parasols, all shapes and sizes, were in vogue at the race meeting. They are among the many accessories of the present-day toilette. Striped effect, block effect, etc., were all noticed. Black and white, navy and white, or daintily coloured parasols were quite a feature. A new touch was given to one all black quaintly-shaped parasol. A large design, resembling a patterned chintz, was worked on to one of the panels of the parasol. Flat-looking parasols, scooped-out shapes, Japanese types—all these were introduced with some of the toilettes. Transparent lisle borders to the shades were also seen. Hats, all sizes, played a great part. They were in silk, lisere straw, chiffon, crinoline, etc. All showed to advantage. The sailor-shape still holds sway. Picturesque hats trimmed with flowers added to the quaintness of the beflounced dresses. There were many shapes that literally cried out for special notice. The soft fall of tulle or ninon over the edge was very conspicuous. Veils in finely-meshed designs decorated a number of the head gear becomingly.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

The Housewives' Co-operative Association—although a comparatively new movement—is gaining much favour in the eyes of careful, housekeepers. Thirty women have given their services voluntarily to instruct housewives in the system of group buying, and to distribute goods at suburban depots. Depots in nine suburbs are affiliated with the central bureau. Of these the Sandringham centre shows the greatest activity. It has a membership of 115, though only established one month. The honorary office-bearers there have devoted much time to propaganda work, and take turns to collect and distribute the goods at the depot, which probably accounts for its rapid progress. The collection of samples at the central depot is most interesting. It includes home-made jams, pickles, dried fruits, herbs, dairy produce, walnuts, flowers, flannel and cotton goods. One woman has sent in samples of eucalyptus oil, distilled by herself. It is hoped that the association may yet become a powerful factor in inducing women to take up rural industries. The general organiser recently received a letter from a housewife in Papua, asking if it would be possible to supply women living in the north with fresh Victorian fruit. Women can join the association by taking a £1 share—payable at the rate of 1s per month.

Miss Ethel Mary Halley, a Melbourne woman, who has spent all her adult life in China, is at present here on furlough, but is to return next month to take a Government appointment in a women's hospital at Peking. Miss Halley is a former student of the Presbyterian Ladies' College, and is a sister of Dr. Gertrude Halley. She trained as a nurse at the Women's Hospital here. Since she paid her last visit to Melbourne, about five years ago, Miss Halley has had some exciting adventures. For bravery under fire at the time of the Chinese Revolution in 1911 she holds a gold medal that ranks with the British one given for distinguished service; also the Chinese Red Cross medallion for national service. She was in the midst of the rebel rising in 1913; one bullet going through her linen nursing apron. Miss Halley states that a remarkable change has come over the women of China since she went there 20 years ago. Then no woman was allowed to walk outside her own home. This old custom has passed away, and Chinese women get about in trains with men folk. Partitions were used in churches to divide the sexes. These are abolished now. Miss Halley has a fund of interesting matter to relate in regard to her many experiences, and the customs of the country she knows so well.

After touring New South Wales and Queensland, Mrs. Rachel Naider, of Nova Scotia (who is travelling on behalf of the Mukti Mission in India), has returned to Melbourne. She was welcomed at a public meeting in the Friends' House, Russell-street, last week. The Mukti Mission was founded by Pundita Ramabai, a well-known Indian educationist. Mrs. Naider has collected large amounts to help Ramabai, to whose cause she dedicated her life twenty years ago.

Miss Van Nooten read a paper at the September meeting of the Child Study Club, her subject being "Do large schools tend to make good citizens?" In the discussion which followed members generally voiced the opinion that large metropolitan schools were not conducive to the development of the best in children, and could not adequately meet the child on all sides,' especially in regard to habit-forming, which was a very necessary development for the State's welfare.

The owners of Highton, Mont Albert-road, have generously placed that establishment and grounds (seven acres in extent) at the disposal of a committee to be used as a rest home for returned wounded soldiers. The local council has arranged to equip and maintain the home.

A proposal was discussed at a conference held in the Victorian military headquarters for the training of probationary nurses for service in Australian hospitals abroad. The proposal put forward to the principal medical officer was that the authorities should take over and train for future service young nurses just commencing their career. The conference was attended by Miss Glover, representing the Royal Victorian Trained Nurses' Association; Dr. Edith Barrett and Dr. Janet Greig, representing the Bush Nursing Association; Dr. Ernest Jones and Dr. M'Adam, representing the British Medical Association; Dr. Bage (Voluntary Aid Association); and Mr. Greenwood (St. John Ambulance Association). It was agreed that it would be impossible for nurses to keep up the strain at the base hospitals without relief, and that reinforcements must be forthcoming. The present supply falls short of requirements.

Women graduates from the Melbourne University some little time ago came to the assistance of the Red Cross Society by forming an "aid committee" and inaugurating lecture circles. By this method more than £200 has been raised. Next month the committee will open a Lyceum Club circle. A series of six lectures have been issued at 2s 6d, but 12s 6d admits to the full course.

The national convention of the State School Committees' Association of Victoria was held in the Town Hall here on September 30. Mr. W. F. Gates, assistant chief inspector of the Education Department, stated in the course of his address that the work of the school committees had raised for the schools in money more than £50,000, and estimates of the value of the labour performed in improving school property ranged from £10,000 to £20,000. The department appreciated very much the duties that school committees were performing.

VERONICA.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

THE EGG PLANT.

The butter market presents no new features this week, butter being, as last week, quite sufficiently plentiful to meet all requirements, and costing us 1s 5½d if paid for at the counter and carried home. Unfortunately, the price of eggs has again risen another 1d a dozen. This is rather disquieting news for the housekeeper, who is perpetually suffering from these apparently trivial increases in the price of foodstuffs. Seeing that the year is still at its spring, 1s 5d a dozen seems a high price to be paying for the newly-laid egg. In pre-war (or should we say pre-drought?) days, at this season of the year, eggs were 1s 3d a dozen; and butter 1s 2d a lb. To the caterer with a large family such "trivial" increases mean much—especially when one takes into account the abnormal price of bread and meat.

Cheese and bacon are still very scarce; poultry is dear, but quite plentiful, and an abundance of good fish is obtainable at prices quoted just recently. Here and there garfish is 1d a dozen cheaper (11d a dozen), and quite large flathead may be bought for 10d and 1s each.

The fruiterers' windows are indeed growing more and more springlike. To the fruits at which we have gazed the winter through, are now added stacks and stacks of very fresh-looking loquats; dainty baskets of Cape gooseberries, and baskets of red and black mulberries. The loquats have greatly improved in price during this week. One may buy them now for as little as 2d a pint—though one is hardly advised to do so. At 4d a pint they are often very good, and fit for eating uncooked. At 6d a pint they are as large as an ordinary apricot. Cape gooseberries are 1s a basket, and mulberries 6d, 9d, and 1s. Stewed mulberries and cream (or custard) give us a delightful sweets dish for warm days, and one greatly liked by young people. There are numbers of tiny paw-paws on the market, selling at 2d each—those who rather shake their heads at experimenting with a large paw-paw at 9d or 1s should try one or two of the small variety. In spite of the fact that most of our central fruiterers' windows have usually quite a brave display of paw-paws, this fruit remains to the great majority of us just "a queer tropical growth," too little known to be tasted. As we have urged before, it is said to be a cure for indigestion. Those who try it for the first (or even second) time are warned not to smell it upon cutting it open, for the smell is, perhaps, the queerest part of this queer fruit. Pineapples are very good and cheap at present. Large fine ones are only 9d each. Strawberries are both scarce and dear. Many fruiterers do not seem to think it worth their while to trade in this fruit at all at present. The appetite for fruit salad may be quite freely indulged in to-day. With sweet oranges at 1d each, cheap pines, loquats, and above all cheap passion-fruit (they may now be bought for 4d a dozen), few indeed need go hungry for this delicacy. Tomatoes—many of them still pale-looking—have really arrived. They may be bought at from 6d a dozen, up to four times that price. Perhaps the cheapest are the most wasteful, but if only a very few are required for decorative purposes, or as an adjunct to a salad, they are quite good enough, if bought carefully, at ½d each. Queer looking, small cucumbers—not unlike the tiny paw-paws—are to be had at 2d apiece. These serve well where the lunch or afternoon tea sandwich 's concerned. Lemons seem specially abundant and good, and cost from 9d to 1s a dozen. These few hot days which have just befallen us, have caused a brisk demand to set in for all citrus fruit, but perhaps most particularly for lemons. The latest arrival in the vegetable world—the broad bean—has improved vastly in appearance during the last week. Its price is 1s 4d a peck. Peas are very plentiful, and 1s 9d to 2s a peck. One can buy a bundle of asparagus to-day for 9d, but the stalks are very thin and the heads not worth cooking. At 1s and 1s 3d a bundle this vegetable is excellent. Some greengrocers, and most fruiterers, have for sale the egg plant, or aubergine, just now at 3d, 4d, and 6d a piece. Specially large ones cost 1s. This vegetable attracts much attention, but many housekeepers shake their heads at it as they do at the paw-paw. It is, in their opinion, queer-looking, almost to the point of being mysterious. Penelope overhead a customer inquiring of an Italian fruiterer the name of the strangely-coloured vegetable, and was not surprised at her next question—"But, how do you cook it? Or, do you eat it raw?" To which the fruiterer replied in broken English: "But you are the lady and ask of me how to cook? I'm but a man. How do I know?" The egg-plant may be transformed into a delicious hors d'oeuvre. It should be taken carefully from its skin, chopped finely and mixed with butter (or oil), pepper, and salt; then returned to the skin, egg and bread-crumbed, and fried.

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

SOME COOL SUMMER DRINKS.

Lemonade.—2lb sugar (loaf is preferable), 1pt cold water, 4 lemons, 1oz citric acid. Put lemon rind, thinly peeled, into water for 15 minutes; add sugar, and boil quickly for 20 minutes. Strain into jug and add citric acid dissolved in a little water and the juice of the lemons. This if bottled will keep quite as long as it will be needed. One tablespoonful to a glass of water.

Limejuice Drink.—Boil 2 peeled lemons, peel and all, putting in the peel first till soft and adding lemons and 2oz sugar when cool mix with equal part limejuice and dilute with water, adding sugar if liked. Ice is a great improvement. The juice from a cut pineapple may be used.

Barley Water.—The juice from a tin of cherries or pineapple added to barley water makes a pleasant drink. Patent barley, mixed with cold water, 2 dessertspoonfuls to a pt of boiling water, and boiled for five minutes, is liked instead of the whole barley. Lemon juice is added; also a little of the water in which the peel of a lemon has been boiled. A lump of ice should be put in each glass.

HOME AFFAIRS.

GATHERS AND GAUGING.

For plain, practical home sewing one notes now that handwork is being revived with the utmost enthusiasm. Although the "quickly-run-up" little frock rules the day in fashion's realm, yet it is not to be denied that the hand-made gown has all the best of it where appearance is concerned. Whatever the style chosen, there is certain to be some gathering, gauging, or shirring upon the skirts, and equally sure it is that the bodice, coatee, or blouse will end in some kind of fancy edge, scalloped or vandyked, while to finish off with the requisite neatness a dainty hand-treatment is infinitely preferable to any machine work. Buttonholing, eyelet making, the old "broderie Anglaise" stitch, herringboning, featherstitching, are all used to good effect on lightweight frocks, and this is a sign of the times. For quite a cheap, simple gown may achieve distinction if handworked in some way. Of course on the white frocks there is scope for really beautiful needlework, and with the frocks one includes camisoles, which have come into close eye range since organdi became fashionable. Under a transparent blouse the camisole becomes literally part of the gown. A cheap, ready-made slip bodice, with coarse machine-made Swiss embroidery and garish ribbons, will spoil the look of an expensive and well-made muslin blouse.

Good sewing machines are provided with an attachment for gathering and frilling, but the old-fashioned hand gathers impart a delicacy of effect to which machinery cannot attain. Long ago little girls were taught the art of gathering, but in hurried days it has perhaps been forgotten. It is a simple matter, but needs a quickness of treatment. The slow worker had best resort to her sewing machine after all, for her frock may be old-fashioned before she has it finished if she takes an undue time over her many gathers and flouncings.

A drawn thread is a necessity for straight gathering. Then the stitches must be quite even, the thread running along where the other thread was drawn to replace it for strength. When choosing the cotton take a strong one, never any finer than 30. Make the first stitch a back one to secure it. If gauging, three rows of running must be made before drawing up the material for stroking. A pin is stuck in, and the thread wound tightly round it. Much depends on the stroking; the material when drawn up should be held between the first finger and thumb of the left hand, the thumb on top of the gathers, and with a blunt pin (a needle is too sharp) the gathers should be gently stroked, and made to lie flat and even. A sharp point marks and sometimes tears the stuff, and for stronger goods like linen or print a blunt-pointed wool needle may be used. The second row and the third of the gauging must then be done, but they will require very little stroking. To keep the gauging taught a ribbon of the right width should be sewn on to the back. The stitches must not, of course, show through to the front. This will be found a great help in gauging the waists, making the skirt set much better.

Piping is much more neatly done by hand. The easiest mode to arrange the waist of the new skirts is to pipe a piece of the material for the waistband with a double frill at the top; the skirt should be sewn on to a piece of Petersham, the size of the waist, and then the piped band sewn on to the belting. Gauging may be used instead of piping. The stiff belting in this case, of course, answers the purpose of the ribbon referred to above.

To set the gathers even into a band measure off the flounce or frill into eight equal parts, putting a pin in to mark the length of each division. Then measure off the band into eight equal parts, and see that the gathers are equally distributed. For a person with a "straight eye" such measurement may not be necessary. These directions may seem rather obvious, but the number of badly-gauged and badly-gathered summer frocks one is beginning to see on all sides suggests that some of the home dressmakers are not sufficiently well informed on the foundation arts of gathering and gauging. For little girls and schoolgirls' frocks it is very much used now. With the long waist and short skirt in vogue, the little skirt is often nothing more than a mere waist frill.

MARTHA.

AN OLD FASHIONED INDUSTRY.

An occupation, which might easily add to the incomes of women left in straitened circumstances by the enlistment of their men folk, and there are many such, for with the present prices of necessities, most of us find life something of a struggle, is carpet-making. Not only women might find pleasure and profit in the kind of hand-made carpet industry, which this article touches upon, but our poor wounded fellows, look with eagerness for an occupation—something to make the tedious hours less long.

If they find not only a pastime, but a source of income, how much happier they will be.

The writer is studying this aspect of the future with a painful interest, for she has a son in the hospital at Heliopolis for the second time, now with a foot shattered by a bomb. Only a boy, too, full of energy and the joy of life, now faced, perhaps, with a loss which puts him on crutches for the rest of his life. Other mothers, sisters, and wives will be sorrowing in the same way, and because these sorrows come more heavily on those with very staitened means, she writes in sympathy, with the hope that the suggestion contained in this little article may bear fruit.

Thinking of hand work suitable for men, the mind wandered back a year, to an invalid who had been condemned to pass 12 years in a wheel chair, and from him to his beautiful handiwork, "Rag Carpets"—a misnomer in this case, for there was nothing to suggest "rag" in the lovely rugs, Oriental in colouring and design, which this old man produced from scraps of left-off woollen clothing, which had all been well washed and scalded, then dyed in groups of six or eight colourings.

The shades favoured by the carpet-maker were blacks, rich dark blues, and greens, crimson, gold, bronze, and brown, and old rose. A rich peacock blue combined well with many of his backgrounds. Some of the carpets had a plain centre, and a frieze-like bordering, others were covered with bold, yet artistic designs—all were most harmonious and rich, yet subdued in colouring.

One which had taken the maker nearly a month to complete was purchased by an artist friend for £12; this was really elegant, and a good imitation of a costly Persian prayer rug. In this one a good deal of silk had been combined with the wool, a richer effect being thus obtained. Now it gives a touch of elegance and beauty to a dainty studio.

All this sounds as though a difficult art were to be mastered, but not so—the tools required are, long, strong, special needles, a stout pair of scissors, the foundation canvas (quite inexpensive), charcoal pencils for drawing the designs, which, however, might be put on from transfers. Any old woollens, quite beyond further wear, will cut into lengths suitable for use; fortunately, nothing special in size and shape is needed, but it is advisable to cut off all seams.

The pieces, when a quantity has been collected, should be sorted on a rough quality and colour basis, well washed and boiled, then dyed in groups as suggested; the rest is easy as the processes of fastening them to the groundwork are not at all intricate. Old rugs and blankets are real treasure troves to the carpet maker, who will not, however, refuse any scraps.

If kindly-disposed persons will save bags of such pieces, it might be possible for an organiser to have them cleaned and dyed at some central depot—and how pleased these philanthropists will be if this forethought provides our poor cripples with a fascinating occupation.

Just now carpets are going up in price, and for many a season wool will be scarce enough to keep the price high; any economies we can practise will, therefore, be not only for our individual good, but for that of the nation at large, and the writer can but hope that some more practical person than herself will be able to set a scheme on foot such as is here suggested.

The German women are most thoughtful in this way; from a student who had been for some time interned in a city of Saxony, the writer learns that the women are using all old garments, either in this way, or in making rugs for hospitals, or even in the making of slippers for their wounded. From many sad tales told me from this source I can regard these sorrowing creatures as companions in misery, rather than as enemies, and am more than willing to take a lesson from their patience and their industry under their misfortunes.

At the first annual meeting of the Orange branch of the Red Cross Society, the Mayoress (Mrs. E. T. McNeilly), presiding, the report showed that though so much had been sent to the Belgians by the women of Orange—4000 articles of clothing—Red Cross work had not suffered. In October last, 60 fully-equipped soldiers' bags and 20 large bales of clothing were sent away. Towards the close of the year 1914, the surplus money in hand (£100) was sent to England, and in February last £100 was cabled to London through the Sydney Red Cross Society, to be used in maintaining a motor ambulance. During the last three months a very large consignment of necessary articles had been despatched. The hon. secretaries, Mrs. C. H. Hodges, and Mrs. G. B. WOMEN DOCTORS.

It is considered probable in Melbourne that the services of women doctors will ere long be utilised at some of the military base hospitals in Australia. Military authorities are ready to welcome women doctors, should there be any necessity for their aid. As it is extremely likely that male doctors may not sufficiently fill the growing demand, there is every likelihood of trained women being eventually employed at the base hospitals at home. The authorities, however, cannot see their way to enrolling them for service abroad. Doctors were recently asked for as medical reinforcements for service in Egypt. In Victoria it now appears that there will be a difficulty in procuring the requisite quota; so that the case for women doctors for service abroad may be reconsidered.

THE TURF.

On the middle grass track at Randwick yesterday morning Kandos and San Leandro travelled 7 furlongs nicely in 1m 35s, a distance which Wombah ran in two seconds faster time. Cordon Rouge got over a mile in 1m 48s, and Woorak experienced little difficulty in covering five furlongs in 1m 3s. Onager went a mile and a quarter in 2m 15s, and First Principle, five furlongs in 1m 5s. Gai and Lineage galloped seven furlongs in 1m 34s, and Truxton King ran the same course in 1m 33s. A notable absentee was Mountain Knight, who is reported ill.

The richest prize of the 24 on the A.J.C. Spring programme is the Metropolitan, won by St. Carwyne. The gross amount of the prize is £6054. Of this St. Carwyne's owner takes £4554. St. Carwyne's share of the Spring Stakes, in which he dead-heated with Reputation, is £966 10s, bringing his winnings over the first two days up to £5520, an amount which ensures his sire, St. Alwyne (imp.), a good place among winning sires. In fact, he and Grafton are already at the top of the tree. The gross value of the Derby is £5709, and all but £1250 of this sum goes to Mr. G. Barnett, the owner of Cetigne, whose success in the Clibborn Stakes brings an addition of £624, or £5183 for the two days. The gross value of the Breeders' Plate is £3163. Wolaroi's portion is £2563, and Mr. L. K. S. Mackinnon receives £2371 out of the £2971 which represents the gross value of the Epsom Handicap, won by his horse Woorak. The prize list covering the first two days of the meeting amounts to £22,753. The most successful stallions represented so far are St. Alwyne and Grafton, the progeny of the former winning £5520, and Cetigne earned £5333 for Grafton. Kenilworth heads the others with £2563, then comes Traquair, £2371; William the Third, £1459; and Martian, £1466 10s.

Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co. have compiled a lengthy catalogue of blood stock for their annual spring sale on Monday next. A number of racehorses are listed, including Gigandra, Secrete, Master Paul, Simon Frisco, Grand Foote, Sundial, Prince Positano, Allaru, Mythic, Tresillian, Coonoona, Cheri Cheri, Mundic, Nizan, Coonanya, and M.E.W., and among the mares to be brought under the hammer are Lady Hope, Merv Blend, Roy Queen, Lady Melton, Bombardment, Ditti, Madria, and Princess Merv. Intending vendors will do well to furnish as early as possible particulars of any stock they may wish to offer, so that the compilation of the catalogue may be facilitated.

The declaration of final forfeit yesterday leaves 20 youngsters to measure strides in the Gimcrack Stakes this afternoon, as compared with 29 last year. For his win in the Breeders' Plate, Wolaroi will have to put up 14lb penalty, and for her South Australian success The Welkin filly Sister Satellite is similarly penalised.

The latest foalings reported from Mr. J. E. O'Brien's Kingsfield stud are Honeywood, by Sir Tristram (imp.) from Happy Moments, b c by Malt King; Yarromie, by Prudent King (imp.) from Enooma, ch f, by Beragoon; Mollinda, by Lochiel from Corvel, ch c, by Malt King; and Blue Wind, by True Blue from Gala, ch f, by Malt King.

The dispersal of the Oban stud takes place to-morrow, when Messrs. William Inglis and Son, in conjunction with Mr. A. J. Morton, will bring under the hammer the imported stallion Hermes (by Gallinule), and the imported brood mares Back Chat (by St. Serf), Dainty Girl (by Flying Lemur), Althra (by Haut Brion), Lady Wimboyne (by Carbine), Marcetina (by Marco), Blanche Marie (by Simontault), and King Fancy (by King's Messenger), also a bay filly foal by Hermes (imp.) from Lady Wimboyne. Among the racehorses catalogued for their annual spring sale on the same day are Fizzing, Tawdry, Bob Bunsow, Alcous, Casique, Highland Band, Lengard, Battleship, and Lochbar; a number of untried stock, and the brood mares Sugar Baby (imp.), Royal Fern, Norma M'Knight, Javanese, and Belle M'Carthy. The sale takes place at T. Payten's Newmarket Stables, Randwick, commencing at 2.30 p.m.

The latest foalings at Mr. William Brown's Segenhoe stud are:—Silvana, brown filly, by The Inquisitor; Stray Shot, bay colt, by Treasandy; and Havoc Belle, bay filly, by Piastre.

Kelso's imported pair, St. Spasa and Flash of Steel, left by rail last evening for Melbourne to fulfil their Victorian spring engagements; and by the same train Haysten, Blague, Fastolf, Aleconner, Silver Lad, and Lilyvell returned to the Victorian capital after an unremunerative trip to Randwick.

The retirement of Mountain Knight from the Caulfield Cup (telegraphs our Melbourne correspondent) means a loss to quite a number of racegoers. He has been the popular selection since the declaration of the weights. In withdrawing Mountain Knight yesterday by telegram, the owner (Mr. E. J. Watt) stated that Mountain Knight was a "sick horse."

Several members of City Tattersall's Club are under sailing orders for the front, and they will be given a send-off at a smoke concert to be held at the clubrooms to-morrow evening.

The declaration of final acceptances for the V.A.T.C. Debutant Stakes yesterday leaves 18 youngsters to measure strides in the classic race at Caulfield on Saturday. The Sydney representatives are Tintometer, Helidon Spa, Maori Mat, Smoky, and Poitrina. Sixteen have elected content for the Toorak Handicap, of whom Brattle, Red Dennis, and Flash of Steel hail from Sydney; while among the Victorian contingent are Traquette, Golden Wire, Meerut, Defence, and Kildalton.

The half-dozen items on the card for the Gosford Racing Club's meeting on the 12th instant attracted 69 entries yesterday, distributed as under:—Maiden Handicap, 12; Flying Handicap, 7; Welter Mile, 12; Gosford Handicap, 14; Novice Handicap, 12; and Narara Welter, 11.

The Warwick Farm management is in the field with its programme for the October meeting on the 23rd instant. The six races carry in the aggregate 600 sovs prize-money, equally distributed, and entries close with the secretary, Mr. H. B. Dando, at 4 p.m. on Monday next.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

SPRING MEETING.

THIRD DAY.

ANTICIPATIONS.

The spring reunion of the Australian Jockey Club will be advanced another stage this afternoon, and for what is known as the "off day" a highly attractive bill of fare has been provided, including racing over the battens, the mile w.f.a. race, in which all the cracks are engaged, an event for two-year-olds, and a handicap event for three-year-olds, and a mile and a half handicap. Such a tempting programme should attract a large gathering, and the sport promises to be of the high-class quality which has characterised the two previous days of the meeting. The customary transit service by rail will be in vogue, special trams starting from Circular Quay, via Oxford-street, and from the Railway Square loop, via Cleveland-street, while the usual vehicular traffic by road will also be available. The track should be excellent going, and large fields may be anticipated. In the catering and other departments ample provision has been made for the requirements of a large attendance.

The sport commences at 1 p.m. with the Second Hurdle Race, which foreshadows an interesting contest, in which Jack Rice, Diavolo, North-East, Rushcutter, and Minteroo should have most to say towards the end of the trip, and the situations may be filled by Jack Rice, Diavolo, and Rushcutter.

A great race may be anticipated for the Craven Plate, in which the brunt of the battle should fall to Reputation, Woorak, Garlin, and Cetigne, and the honours may be divided by Woorak, Cetigne, and Reputation.

A large field may be expected for the Suburban Handicap, and the most likely to fight out the finish seem to be Gigandra, La Balfour, Aurifer, and Secret Service, and the numbers may be hoisted for Aurifer, La Balfour, and Gigandra.

Wolaroi, Sister Satellite, Heatherbrae, Lucky Dip, and Golden Shoe read as well as anything in the Gimcrack Stakes, and the judge may declare for Lucky Dip, Heatherbrae, and Sister Satellite.

Westcourt, Gringo, Gai, and Housewife should have the settlement of the Members' Handicap among them, and Gai, Housewife, and Gringo may pass the post in that order.

The Sydney Handicap brings the afternoon's sport to a close, and at the weights the chances of Charleville, Aurifer, Machine Boy, and Royal Rufus seem the most attractive. If reserved for it, Aurifer should have a good look in, but in his absence Royal Rufus, Charleville, and Machine Boy may occupy the places.

VICTORIAN TRAINING NOTES.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

There was a keen, cutting wind blowing this morning, with an occasional shower, and things were most disagreeable. The heavy rain, which fell yesterday and through the night, made the sand unfit for use, and all the work was done on the grass. The wind was in favour of the horses for the last five furlongs, but the work done was of the ordinary kind. Neither Wallachia nor Nicanor came under notice before breakfast. Vibratory spurted five furlongs in 1m 4s, and Klinger was going along at an even-time gait, while Orinoco went a little slower. Maltguard put past six furlongs in 1m 21s. Patrobas, who looks none the worse for his race on Saturday, was outside even time for the first half of nine furlongs, and finished up by running the distance in 2m 12s. Avance and Bridges were companions for six furlongs in 1m 19½s. Andesine and Trawl came down the kennel course, and ran the last four furlongs in 52s. Gladwyn had just the better of Avonwort, with Eltham beaten off, at the conclusion of a mile and a quarter in 2m 14½s. Knight Silva went with his usual dash, and beat Ayr King and Registrar a long way over four furlongs in 50⅘s. Corstep ran home the last three furlongs of his work in even time. Defence appeared to have something in hand when a mile had been run in 1m 47½s. Silva Lass and Dumbarton sprinted five furlongs in 1m 4½s, and Euretta, Linass, and Pitchi was the order of a moderately run mile in 1m 47½s. Dame Lybia showed improved form by running six furlongs in 1m 18s. Wedge, who was going easily, beat Maori Mat, Tintometer, and Careney over four furlongs in 50½s, finishing in the order named. Sumurun did strong exercise. Orillia was three lengths in front of Toolmaree, with Lord Linacre a long way in the rear, at the conclusion of a mile in 1m 50s.

FLEMINGTON.

The weather was very cold and bleak this morning, when all the tracks were in use, most of the work being on the big sand, which was in capital order; but there was not a great amount of galloping attempted. Naxberry (W. P. Burn) went a mile, putting on speed for the last six furlongs, in 1m 20s, while he kept well out on the track. Manaro went steadily, and looked none the worse for her race last Saturday. Traquette (R. Leeming) ran the last six furlongs of eight in 1m 19½s, and looked to do it very comfortably. Wishing Cap and Marzulfus did an even-time mile and a half, and Sir Diff went over a mile at about the same speed. Ettefred, Bukowina, and Vadrien went quietly, and the former pair looked sharpened up, and the better for their outing in the Maribyrnong Trial Stakes. Pretty Bobby ran six furlongs in 1m 22½s. Chalmidor went at about three-parts pace, and Ipoh was let off lightly. Royal Alice and The Lintie did a working gallop of a mile and a quarter in 2m 26s. Prince Bardolph was going comfortably for a mile in 1m 51s; while Dame Quickly and Mnesarchus kept company for the same distance in half a second slower time; and Cherubini went at about three-parts speed. Greek Fire worked steadily. Golden Wire (G. Harrison) gave Highview a start, and beat him over a mile in 1m 48⅖s. Great Shot went strongly. Bon Ton did some half-pacing; Stageland was just over even time for half a mile; while Deneb, Soa, and Several were let off lightly. Cock of the North and Jaunt went five furlongs at an even-time speed; and Lady Tressady was going at the same pace. Kildalton went strongly on the tan, doing the last half-mile in 56s. Cyklon (W. P. Burn) also used the tan for some useful pacing, quickening up somewhat for the last half-mile, in a little over even time, and he moved freely and looked nice and mellow. Two (W. P. Burn) ran the last six of eight furlongs in 1m 26s; while Rosanna was 4s faster for the same distance. Wiltshire was a little over even time for half a mile on the tan; but neither Captain Standish nor Dewy Dawn was required to do much. Sylvanmore strode over a mile at three-parts speed; and Fidelio (E. O'Sullivan) was going considerably better than Red Signal (J. Killorn) for half a mile in 53s. Miss Meadows (E. O'Sullivan) was well in front of that very bad worker Bilberry (Delander) at the conclusion of seven furlongs, done from a standing start in 1m 35s. The first arrival of the Sydney division, the two-year-old Certes, by Maltster—Ceres) a medium-sized brown colt, was down for some pacing.

FOOTBALL.

ASSOCIATION.

With Pyrmont Swimmers' closing victory last Saturday the full list of competition winners was clearly defined—viz., State champions, Balmain; First League, Granville; Reserve League, Granville; Club League champions, Pyrmont Swimmers (who also achieved second division laurels); first division, Rozelle. Granville, for the second successive time, won the Rawson Challenge Cup, and thus acquired permanent ownership. The success of Rozelle means a big effort to re-establish the district club, which should be welcomed.

Some suggestions for off-season consideration may not be amiss, and first mention may be made of the necessity for a thoroughly representative State body to control all representative and championship fixtures. Another point worth considering is the desirability of having uniformity in the matter of dates for the age qualifications of the school and compulsory age junior competitions. Then the matter of appointment of referees is vital. It has been conclusively proved that all the best referees are not in any one centre, and encouragement would be a big lever to further advance.

The Victorian premiership ended exactly as the cup final—that is, Melbourne Thistle achieved their second championship win. Albert Park, though not fully representative, made even a closer game of the fixture than the cup final, the final scores being 1 to 0 in favour of Thistle. George Brown, who visited Sydney in 1914, was the scorer.

METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATION.

The Metropolitan Association's season closed last Saturday, when the Balmain Caledonians beat Sydney in the final of the Charity Cup competition. Balmain Caledonians have gone through the season with only one defeat, and have won all the competitions—viz., First League, Dewar Cup championship, Charity Cup, and Reserve League.

BASEBALL.

THE LEAGUE UNOPPOSED.

The decision of the N.S.W. Baseball Association to provide a summer competition for its members, in opposition to the offers of the National Baseball League, has produced an interesting result, inasmuch as not a single nomination has been received. While as regards the defection of certain teams from the winter body, the League may regard this as a feather in their cap, it also goes to show that among the members of the Association there was not the demand for summer baseball that many expected, and that cricketers, when asked to choose between the old love and the new, prefer to stick to cricket. It would, for that matter, have caused great surprise if the winter baseball clubs of Mosman-North Sydney, Paddington, or Gordon had been able to raise teams for the summer game, so many of their members being first or second grade cricketers—and enthusiasts at that. The University, too, was not likely to raise a summer baseball team, which disposes of four out of the eight affiliated clubs. The Association has now, of course, quite dropped the idea of summer games.

That there is plenty of demand for summer baseball among those not wedded to cricket is, however, indicated by the entries for the League competitions, there being 24 teams for the three grades. Of clubs that played under Association auspices in the winter, the League numbers Waverley, St. George, and most likely Petersham, among its competitors. Leichhardt, of course, joined the League—or Summer Baseball Association as it was called then—after their disqualification by the winter body.

Play starts on Saturday, and the draw will be available to-morrow.

AT THE FRONT.

RUGBY FOOTBALLERS.

The different Rugby Union clubs and organisations have vied with one another since war broke out to occupy the most prominent place in regard to enlistments, and some fine totals have been registered. In the metropolis, Manly, Eastern Suburbs, and University put up some big totals, until Manly, now with 76 men at the front, or going, is on top of the list. In the country New England took the lead early, and was challenged by Bellinger, Hawkesbury College, Wagga Experiment Farm, and Orange. Each had its turn in front until Bellinger put up the record of 80 names, and was duly accorded top place, with the promise from New England that its list would soon reach the century, and from Orange that there were more to follow. Inverell sent in 32 names, with a similar promise, some time ago, and since then has been busy collecting names in order to place the issue beyond doubt, and there is no doubt that the list Mr. Hill received for the Rugby Union honour list last Friday has set the other unions a far bigger task than was expected. A printed list of 122 names has come from Inverell, and a striking appeal at the bottom as to who will be next and help keep the Inverell list at the top of the Rugby Union's total is likely to bring even more men. New England has promised 100 names, and is sure to be put on its mettle by the neighbouring union's fine achievement, and although so far ahead everyone feels that the task is not beyond some of the other bigger unions.

When the war started the Rugby Union had an objective of enlisting some 700 men. This number had to be altered early owing to the great response of the leading players, and 1000 was aimed at. This also has been passed, and then 1500 was talked of, and to-day the list of names received at the Rugby headquarters as having either gone on service or enlisted is within 17 of that number, with several lists still to be received, and men also enlisting every day.

CRICKET.

NEW ORDER OF THINGS.

The 1915-16 cricket season opened last Saturday, when what may be termed a new order of things prevailed. Firstly, the New South Wales Association's determination to experiment with the time-saving practice of eight balls to the over was brought into operation; and, secondly, a number of the younger players were introduced into the first grade ranks.

The abandonment of really serious district cricket did away to a great extent with the possibility of deriving a satisfactory result from the trial of the innovation regarding the number of balls to the over. Players are taking the field this season without any prospective reward, and one may perhaps assume that their efforts will not reach the tension that would obtain were the premiership at stake. Consequently the question of a bowler's fatigue is not a matter for very serious consideration, and the saving of time has little bearing on the result of a game. The majority of the bowlers are in accord regarding the experiment on Saturday, that is to say, they gave expression to the opinion that it was "all right." So, if the bowlers, who, in the main, are the individuals most affected by the change, are satisfied, the matter may remain as one of indifference to others as far as this season is concerned.

Batsmen had everything in their favour on Saturday, but the younger players were overshadowed by the veterans. Paddington, with M. A. Noble, who, by the way, has lost little if any of his old brilliancy to lead them, have Western Suburbs already beaten. K. Docker (42) and F. McMullen, not out (24), were the only batsmen to show any resistance to Noble, Sayle, and Henry; but the Paddington batsmen went along merrily, losing only four wickets for 156. Noble was particularly effective on the off; and Sayle hit vigorously, and his score included one six. Middle Harbour is also in a bad position with Balmain; and here, again, the more seasoned men prevailed. Bull was the only batsman to do anything against Wall and Mailey, Redfern's old "googlie" expert. With a lead of over 100 runs, to which Ratcliffe and Love contributed 54 and 55 respectively, Balmain has the game well in hand. Wall, a left-hand medium bowler, had all the batsmen in a state of uncertainty.

J. M. Taylor is the first century maker of the season, and the pity of it is that, notwithstanding one or two mistakes, his fine display should not take its place in premiership records. The Sydney fieldsmen by their errors helped to swell Petersham's total to 276, and with 50 minutes to bat the side lost two wickets for 80 runs. Smith's display for 42 not out was very entertaining. There was much energy and considerable variety in his methods, and he hit one 6. Fussdale (two for 17) finished best for Sydney with the ball; and Scott and Andrews divided the Petersham honours. This match would also appear to be won, unless there are other batsmen of Smith's calibre to go in.

"Freshmen" were in the majority on University's side against Waverley, while, on the other hand, Waverley's representation included Gregory, Carter, Davis, Sheppard, and N. Callaway. Best and R. Bardsley, both of whom did well last season, were the mainstays of the 'Varsity team. Bardsley was soon disposed of, but Best, although the luck was with him, reached 69 before Carter's smartness sent him to the pavilion. Leahy (20) is an aggressive batsman, who may be heard of later on. Norman Callaway, who has done so many great things with the bat, is still unconquered with 44; and with only three wickets down for 86 the game is by no means over. Ward (five for 65) was Waverley's best bowler.

North Sydney, without Hopkins, Chamberlain, and the brothers R. V. and L. Minnett, appear to have Gordon beaten. Bubb contributed 83 out of a total of 226. He was missed at 10, but he then continued master of the situation until Dive found his wicket. Wheatley's 55 was a very good effort. Macartney's early dismissal caused disappointment; he appeared to be in a scoring vein, but a l.b.w. decision sent him back. Dive was in excellent form with the ball, and finished with five for 42, which included the first "hat-trick" honours of the season. The Glebe-Redfern match has reached an interesting stage. Going in first, Glebe finished one run short of the second century; Newell with 55 top scored, and Helleway, when playing in customary safe style, went out to Barnes and was stumped.

The action of Mr. Clayton in writing a letter to the Premier regarding the enlistment of members of the Junior Cricket Association, came up for criticism at the meeting of the North Sydney Association last week. The secretary, Mr. G. T. M'Donald, said that the council had declined to ask Mr. Clayton for a copy of his letter, and if it was written subsequently to the annual meeting, that gentleman would be asked to resign.

There are four teams in for A grade, Christ Church, Wesley, Kirribilli, and Good Intent. It was decided to change the usual order of proceedings and play the matches out over three Saturdays, instead of two.

At the meeting of the North Sydney Junior Cricket Association last week, the secretary, Mr. G. T. M'Donald, reported that the roll of honour was now 73 and that there were a few more to be added.

The Bathurst Cricket Association has abandoned all fixtures owing to the war.

ENGLISH COUNTY CRICKET.

At a meeting of the committee of the Yorkshire council, held recently at Leeds, it was decided by 17 votes against 5 that competitive cricket should be played in 1916. One of the speakers said: "Competitive cricket would neither interfere with recruiting nor quench patriotism; and it was not fair to cry, 'Stop cricket.'"

Dr. R. B. Minnett, the well-known Sydney University and international player, playing recently for the R.A.M.C. against Eastbourne (England), took six wickets for 76, and then scored 53 runs.

GOLF.

English files record the marriage of Miss Gladys Ravenscroft, the well-known lady golfer, and a winner of the English, French, and American championships, to Mr. Alfred Temple Dobell, 6th Liverpool Rifles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dobell, of Oxton, Cheshire.

Miss Ravenscroft for some seasons was one of the leading lady golfers, and she made her first appearance in the English championship in 1905, having a handicap of 10 at the time of her entry, but bringing it down to 3 before the date of the meeting. It was in the 1912 championship that, after a series of remarkable victories, Miss Ravenscroft was successful. She beat Miss Temple 3 and 2 in the final, but her most sensational victory in the tournament was when she beat her great friend and rival, Miss Cecil Leitch, by one hole.

CLERGYMAN—ATHLETE.

HOW F. E. HULTON SAMS DIED.

The following account of the death in action of the Rev. F. E. B. Hulton Sams, the well-known amateur boxer, formerly of the Bush Brotherhood, in Queensland, who held a commission in the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, is published in the London "Evening News." It has been received by Lady Wiseman from the adjutant of a battalion of the D.C.L.I.:—

"He died a glorious death—that of a British officer and gentleman, commanding a company in an important position, and sticking it where many others might have failed. We were hanging on to the edge of a wood, and the Germans were trying to shell us out of it. That night the Germans attacked us again—bombs and liquid fire. C Company still stuck to it, and through all the terrific shelling they never flinched, although they lost heavily.

"They were there at 10 a.m., and I crawled to and talked to your brother several times. He was magnificent, and very cheerful. His last words to me were, 'Well, old boy, this is a bit thick, but we'll see it through, never fear.' His company sergeant-major told me that at about 10 a.m. your brother crawled away to see if he could get any water for the men, many of whom were wounded and very thirsty.

"He was hit by a piece of shell in the thigh and side, and killed instantly. He died doing a thing which makes us feel proud to have known him. He was a fine officer, a fine friend, and was worshipped by his men."

LAWN TENNIS.

METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATIONS.

The New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association has gone exhaustively into the question of admitting branch associations within the metropolitan area. The sub-committee appointed to report on the matter, after holding a conference with representatives of associations desirous of becoming affiliated, recommended that the affiliation of metropolitan branch associations be sanctioned on condition that each has a proviso inserted in its constitution to the effect that the standard of play of the members of the clubs affiliating be not higher than that of the lowest grade of the competitions controlled by the New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association, the affiliation fee to be £3 3s per annum for a maximum of 12 clubs, and 10s 6d for each additional three clubs, in addition to a capitation fee of sixpence per head per annum, to be paid to the head association for all members of such clubs affiliating with such branch associations. A further recommendation provided for the admission of associations of a higher standard of play, the fees for these being on a higher scale. After exhaustive discussion, the first recommendation was carried, but the second was lost.

Although the concession that has been decided upon is not very great, it may be regarded as showing that the council of the controlling body appreciates the wish of the associations to become affiliated. Disappointment will, no doubt, be felt by some of those still excluded, but the principle involved is one that cannot be broken carelessly.

The danger is not in the present, but in the future, for it is admitted by all that the associations now anxious to join would regret any injury to the head body. If, however, the right to form associations in the metropolitan area is allowed, the possibility of extreme danger cannot be disregarded. Such associations, free from the expenditure necessary for conducting interstate and other important events, and of maintaining a ground, would be in a position to conduct interclub competitions—their chief reason for existence—more advantageously than can the New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association. They could admit clubs to affiliation more cheaply, charge lower entrance fees, and give more valuable trophies. The inevitable result would be that many clubs now affiliated would fall away from the parent body. It might even happen that one large metropolitan association would develop, that would eventually absorb nearly all those now affiliated. Such risks cannot be lightly taken, and until some more effective safeguards can be devised than have yet been promulgated the aversion of the head association to the principle of admitting metropolitan associations must be appreciated by all who have its welfare at heart.

While matches and tournaments for patriotic purposes are being held in other States, very few have taken place in and around Sydney recently. In some cases this is due to courts being topdressed, but there are many open for play where such events might be seen. There are several players of the highest rank, including H. M. Rice and L. Todd, who have recently expressed their willingness to participate in any events of the kind, and they will be very pleased to assist by playing and organising if approached by any club or individuals who contemplate conducting lawn tennis events in aid of funds for patriotic purposes.

O. Kreuzer, the German international, is now with O. Froitzheim at Lofthouse Park, Yorkshire. He was first interned at Gibraltar, and on being brought to England was for some time on the Royal Edward off Southend. In a letter to "American Lawn Tennis," dated April 23, but not delivered until August 2, Kreuzer gives some impressions of the Davis Cup contest, in which Australasia was successful. After mentioning the adverse circumstances under which they played, viz., that they had only five days to prepare under strange conditions of courts and climate, only themselves to rely on as regards training, and the political conditions being in so critical a state, Kreuzer discusses his opponents in the match. He says that he would have been surprised to win against Wilding, as the latter was physically so much stronger. He was more hopeful against Brookes. "I knew beforehand," he writes, "that Brookes's way of playing, his service and his volleys are marvellous, but they baffle his opponents only when they meet him for the first time, as it was in my case. The result of the match proved to me that I have a good chance of winning after I have met him a few times. Why, it even might be the very next time. Of course, I do not under-estimate him, as he is an enormously powerful player."

According to "Lawn Tennis and Badminton," the English paper that still comes out weekly despite the war and the consequent cessation of all open tournaments, F. N. Doust has gone abroad with the 23rd City of London Red Cross. Prior to taking up this work he had been a member of the Fleet-street volunteers.

It is now said that Count Salem, the Austrian player, who was reported to have been killed early in the war, is in the automobile corps, to which he was transferred from the 8th Dragoons. Kinzl and von Wessely, who formed the Austrian Davis Cup team defeated by Australasia in 1905, are also serving as lieutenants in the Austrian army.

The tournament for the Australian Wounded Soldiers' Fund, was further advanced last Saturday. Following are the results:—

BOXING.

Tommy Uren's defeat of Herb M'Coy last Saturday for the Australian lightweight title, was a sterling performance, though it was unsatisfactory that his win should be on a foul. Possibly M'Coy had a little difficulty in making the weight, for he hardly showed his brightest form, but, even so, Uren was putting up a fast, clever exhibition, and had a good margin in his favour when the foul occurred. This is the first time for some years that the lightweight title has been held in New South Wales, and there is no reason why Uren should not retain it for some time. On recent form, in fact, the only men who could give him a hard contest for the championship are the man he has just defeated and the Frenchman Quendreux, who has fulfilled the residential qualification to enable him to box for the title. As Uren can hardly be expected to give M'Coy a return match just yet, the field of challengers looks very limited. Imported boxers, however, are likely to keep Uren fairly busy in the next few months.

Les. Darcy and Fred. Dyer, who are to meet in Sydney on Saturday next, will give training exhibitions at the Stadium this afternoon. Dyer put up an excellent contest with Darcy in Brisbane some months ago, losing on points by a small margin only.

The more Eddie McGoorty reveals the possibility of his being able to reverse the result of his disastrous contest with Darcy, the less likelihood does there appear of the match being made. On the result of the contest alone no one could have given the American a chance at a return meeting, but when he afterwards showed against Bond and Murray that he had his old form still at his disposal another match with Darcy was thought to be imminent. Then he beat a clever fellow in Harry Reeve in convincing fashion, and practically nothing has been heard since of a second meeting with Darcy. Doubtless both boxers will be kept fairly busy as it is (McGoorty will have more difficulty in finding opponents than Darcy will), but the match is one that the public would like to have seen. In the meantime Darcy has the satisfaction of possessing a valuable asset to his record in his knock-out victory over the American.

CONTEST IN LONDON.

LONDON, October 3.

In a six-round bout at the National Sporting Club Fred Donovan, of Stoke Newington, beat Private Les Coghill, of Sydney. The latter was disqualified for mauling in the third round.

BOWLS.

A SHORT PENNANT SEASON.

We advocated a continuance of the long pennant system, but the annual meeting of delegates and representatives took the view that the programme should be shortened. Their opinion now goes to the pennant committee in the form of a recommendation, and although there is nothing mandatory in the resolution, there is no doubt that the wish of the meeting will be observed. We are thus brought to the position that we foresaw, although we did not favour it. "It may be necessary to make some concession to the reformers for a time"—"S.M. Herald," June 23, and, further, in the same month: "There are good points in each case. . . The solution probably lies in increasing the number of sections and retaining home and return matches." For a period we are committed to this compromise. There can be no doubt that the committee will create new sections. Although at the annual meeting Mr. Alec. Thomson (Mosman) suggested 10 matches—five at home and five away—the number may be fewer, in order to eliminate byes. The broad fact, however, is that we are committed to a short pennant; the social players have out-voted those who are intent on raising the standard of play.

The long pennant advocates will, as true sportsmen, bow to the decision of the majority. While there was no justification for a speaker using the annoying expression "semi-professionalism" when referring to the players who want a long pennant, it is easy to understand the charm that the new system will have for mediocre players. The gap between the first-class players and the "ruck" players is not so wide as in lawn tennis, but as with the sister pastime the strength of the game lies in the number of "duffers" who throng the greens on fine days. Lawn tennis glories in its "duffers" who do not aspire to the greatness of Brookes or brave and lamented Tony Wilding; in bowls the same thing exists, but the difference is that good greens are so few that the great players and the poor players are necessarily thrown together. Hence problems arise that lawn tennis does not have to combat and it is not easy to meet the demands of the two classes of players. In the circumstances the bowling clubs have every reason to rejoice in the smoothness and unanimity which prevail. Just occasionally there is a little resentment and the challenge in Mr. H. A. Scott's motion expressed the feelings of the non-pennant members. They have carried their motion, and will receive every help from their opponents in making the coming season a success; it will undoubtedly be a very happy series of games.

Ku-ring-gai Club is early in the field, in order to ensure a strong team in December. A meeting will be held on Wednesday night, to decide the method of selection. Probably the members will choose 20 players to elect the four skips, and to the latter will fall the duty of filling the vacant places. It is not unlikely that Messrs. Wilfred Perry (formerly of North Sydney and Chatswood) and Elston (Marrickville) will play with the highlands club.

Bowlers will do well to keep in mind that a clever bowler is not necessarily a good skip. A man who is temperamentally unfitted to get the best out of his team should not be given the position of command.

The visitors were welcomed by Mr. George A. Thorne, hon. secretary, who apologised for the absence of the president, Mr. Felix Booth. Mr. Wiseman responded, thanking Victoria Park Club members for their hospitality, and trusting that as soon as a green was available Wollongong bowlers would have an opportunity of repaying the kindness shown to them. The visitors were entertained at luncheon and afternoon tea.

CYCLING.

As far as New South Wales amateurs are concerned, the close of open racing until such time as the war is over will be reached next Saturday, with the conclusion of the Pacers' Handicap, under the auspices of the Cyclists' Union. This event is open to those riders who acted as pacers in the recent Dunlop interclub premiership, and will be decided on the Harbour course.

The professional track-racing season commenced with the events at the Eight-hour sports on Monday, under the auspices of the New South Wales League of Wheelmen. Some good racing was seen, country riders showing up exceptionally well, but the afternoon, unfortunately, was not free from spills. E. L. Bessel, one of the oldest riders in the League, and one of the most consistent, had the misfortune to break his nose, while another scratch man in Les. Hammond, who had obtained leave from the military camp to make a farewell appearance, also got badly cut up. Kennedy sustained a dislocated shoulder, and A. C. Walker was severely shaken.

The next metropolitan racing under League auspices will be at the Sports Ground on the night of October 27. Entries for mile and three-quarter mile handicaps, and a five-miles scratch race close on October 16. In the meantime, cycling events are included in the Eight-hour Day sports programme at Lithgow and Tamworth on October 11, and at Bathurst a week later.

Australia imported from England bicycles to the value of £221,548 in 1914, as against £267,706 in 1913. The New Zealand figures show a decline for 1914, the imports being £208,122 last year, as against £271,929 in 1913.

Allegations of "teaming" in the American championship races have been made, the suggestion being that the little group of Australians who are showing such good form are in combination against Kramer, and it has been decided that in future only two riders shall contest the final heat. The Board of Control never thought of this, however, when the boot was on the other leg, and several Americans had to meet one Australian. To-day Kramer is the only sprinter who has any chance against the Australian contingent.

Jusserel, a well-known Belgian cyclist, enrolled in the Air Service of the Belgian army as a volunteer, won the Paris-Lyons cycle race, organised by the C.A. de la Societe Generale, on Sunday, August 15. The race was decided under the special rules for military preparation of the Union Velocipedique de France. Jusserel won with a good deal in hand, covering the 125 kilometres in 4h 31m 12s, which was 23m better than the time of the second man to finish. He took the lead quite early in the race at Bue, and steadily increased it at each subsequent stage. After the race protests were lodged against the winner and Charles Meyer, who finished fourth, on the ground that they were followed by motor cars during part of the journey. It should be mentioned that trainers or attendants were, by the regulations, not allowed to follow the competitors.

ATHLETICS.

GENERAL NOTES.

The military sports meeting, inaugurated by the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association, with the energetic assistance of the Y.M.C.A. Sportsmen's Battalion executive, was held at the Liverpool Showground on Saturday, but the public support and the competitive interest was very far short of anticipations. The function was quite overshadowed by metropolitan sporting fixtures; and, perhaps, better results would have been attained had the meeting been held a week earlier or later. But it is hoped that the controlling body of amateur athletics will not relax its efforts to bring together the various units of the Expeditionary forces in athletic competitions.

In England and in other parts of the British Empire this class of sport has proved very popular; and some idea of the magnitude of the meetings will be gleaned from the fact that recently at Aldershot (England) 2000 nominations were received, and that the programme was started at 9.30 a.m. and finished at 7 p.m. Speaking at that meeting, General Sir A. Hunter said: "There is nothing that tends more to maintain a high military efficiency than men being physically fit; and nothing does more to keep men fit than training for such events as are being contested to-day."

The events controlled by the New South Wales Athletic Association at the Eight-hour Day sports produced some excellent finishes. It was anticipated that Hunt and Cripps would be very close together in the final of the 130 yards handicap. Preference, however, was given to the Newington College boy, but Hunt, of the North Sydney Club, just won by inches, and Flattery (E.S.A.A.C.) was third. The race was run in 11 4-5s, a very good sprint. The mile handicap, won by T. Fitzgerald (Redfern Harriers) from the 45 yards mark, produced a magnificent finish. Fitzgerald showed good judgment, and did not make the mistake of allowing the exhortations of his supporters to upset his calculations. A good sprint well timed gave him the race with just a yard or so to spare. East Sydney A.A.C. opened its winning account by carrying off the 440 yards handicap. Jackson, from 20 yards, just beat Walsh (Botany Harriers), who was on the 12 yards mark, and Hunt (8 yards) filled the minor position. Jackson went to the front about half way, and there was no-one to race to extend him afterwards.

The mile walk was never in doubt, as Sweeting (South Sydney Olympic A.C.), was too liberally handicapped. The East Sydney A.A.C. representatives had everything to themselves in the next two events. The 120 yards hurdles found places for them, and Kyle, from 3 yards, beat Jackson, 7 yards further back, with Brookes in third place; but the race was by no means fast, occupying 18 2-5s. East Sydney's only opponent in the Allies' Relay Handicap was the North Sydney Club, and the younger body's representatives were quite overrun, East Sydney filling all the places.

A misunderstanding concerning Vincent's handicap in the professional 220 yards race necessitated a re-adjustment of 2 yards and a run off. Vincent won the League Handicap, but was not penalised for the later event, in which he was beaten by Devine.

Three clubs will participate in a meeting at the Sports Ground to-night. The programme is as follows:—

East Sydney A.A.C.—75 yards handicap, 440 yards handicap, 880 yards handicap, and broad jump.
Redfern Harriers.—75 yards handicap, 1 mile handicap, and 12lb shot putt.
N.S.W. Walkers and Field Games Club.—Running hop, step, and jump handicap and ½-mile handicap walk.

It is understood that the Botany Harriers will not again take part in these fixtures this season.

A splendid programme has been arranged in connection with the Botany Harriers-Western Suburbs A.A.C. challenge match at Pratten Park on Saturday. The following teams will represent the respective clubs:—

100 Yards.—Botany Harriers: W. Simmons, C. Lelliott, E. Hoskins, W. Cartwright, H. Arnold, and W. Leonard. Western Suburbs A.A.C.: W. J. Ryan, E. Barnes, A. McGee, B. J. Dwyer, L. Simpson, E. Hobart (G. Kendall). 220 Yards.—Botany Harriers: C. Lelliott, J. Walshe, S. Dellman, E. Beckett, H. Arnold, and W. Meet. Western Suburbs: W. J. Ryan, E. Barnes, A. McGee, J. Dwyer, J. Weeks, W. Kendall (G. Kendall). 440 Yards.—Botany Harriers: J. Walshe, V. J. Grinton, G. Spence, G. Brown. Western Suburbs: G. R. Cull, J. Weeks, W. Connelly, G. Parker. 880 Yards.—Botany Harriers: G. G. Grinton, P. Bland, G. Dand, S. Clarkson. Western Suburbs: G. R. Cull, G. Parker, C. H. Gunn, G. Cuthbertson (B. M'Carthy). One Mile.—Botany Harriers: H. Haydon, B. Tye, F. Cheeke, P. Bland. Western Suburbs: J. Mathers, J. Flood, H. Wadsworth, B. M'Carthy. Running Broad Jump: Botany Harriers: R. Nolan, W. Simmons, S. Haydon, J. Walshe. Western Suburbs: P. McPhee, L. McCarthy, L. Simpson, G. Kendall. Hop, Step, and Jump: Botany Harriers: R. Nolan, W. Simmons, C. German, J. Walshe. Western Suburbs: A. McGee, W. Kiddle, L. McCarthy, F. Pearlcut. High Jump: Botany Harriers: J. Grinton, C. Lelliott, J. Backhouse, G. Davidson. Western Suburbs: C. H. Gunn, L. McCarthy, A. Lord, A. Birrell. 16lb Shot Putt: Botany Harriers: J. Chegwyn, W. Simmons, C. Wearnan, A. Simmons. Western Suburbs: F. Farrelly, J. Farrelly, G. Parker, W. Kiddle (J. Grinton).

The following clubs will also hold events:—
East Sydney A.A.C.—100 yards handicap, relay teams' race, hop, step, and jump; 1 mile handicap.
Redfern Harriers.—440 yards handicap.
Walkers and Field Games Club: 1½ miles walk, throwing the javelin, throwing the discus, running hop, step, and jump.

SAILING.

FLYING SQUADRON'S RACING.

Owing to the counter attractions there was not such a big gathering on the steamer which followed the Flying Squadron's 18ft handicap on Saturday as there was at the two previous races of the season, but those who did attend were rewarded with a fine afternoon's sport. The interest in the heats and the final was well sustained, as the work from Shark Island to the finish at Clark Island—the last side of the triangle—was full of possibilities.

It can hardly be said, however, that the unexpected happened in the first heat, as Kismet was a strong fancy throughout, and had no difficulty in sailing from third place at Shark Island into first position before reaching the finish. The late starts of several of the boats, coupled with the big lee off Taylor Bay (which enabled her to get amongst all her rivals, except Acme), made Kismet's task easier than it would otherwise have been, though even as it was she was pressed all the way home by Golding, which finished a good second. Kismet again sailed a great boat in the final, and worked from sixth place at Shark Island to second, and with a little farther to go would also have overhauled the winner—Sunny South. The best home in the second heat saw a lot of changes, and from a rear position Australian sailed through her rivals, and by dint of clever handling on Webb's part, beat Desdemona for first, practically on the line. The latter appeared to have the heat won as both boats stood in close to Clark Island, but Webb took a bit luff out of his charge as she came about, and immediately after had the little boat, which was slow in stays, beaten. Mavis was regarded as dangerous in this heat, and, although third, was only 11s behind Australian, and on the other hand only 1s ahead of Sunny South; in fact 41s covered the five boats which qualified.

Had Allen not taken Sunny South so close in to Shark Island, where she was hung up with Enid, the result of the second heat would have been different, but he made amends by piloting this boat home the winner of the final, after a creditable performance. She was second boat at Shark Island, 1m 44s ahead of Kismet (sixth), this margin being reduced to 35s during the work to the finish.

Desdemona went so well on the lead to Taylor Bay, and thence to Shark Island, that nothing else appeared to have a chance in the final, but, the wind having eased off considerably, she was soon overhauled on the work to the finish, during which she did not hold a good wind. Golding again hung on well to Kismet over the major part of the triangle, but nearing the finish could not pace it with her rival. She, however, maintained third place, being followed across the line by Australian, and then by Desdemona.

Kismet, Australian, and Golding have started the season well, having each secured a prize every time they started, including the heats of Saturday's race. The total prize money for the three races already sailed was £85, and this amount has been won as follows:—Kismet £24, Australian £14, Golding £12, Sunny South £10, Nimrod £5, Scot £4, Pastime £3, Desdemona £3, Mavis £2, Evelyn £2, and Mississippi £1.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Rich.)

A BOTANY RESUMPTION.

The Minister for Home Affairs, for whom Mr. Pike, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor appeared, asked the Court to decide the amount of compensation payable to a Mr. Castle for the compulsory acquisition of a piece of land at the corner of King-street and Botany-road, Botany, for the purposes of a post-office, in 1912. There was no appearance on behalf of Mr. Castle, who, Mr. Pike explained, had never lodged a claim, nor could he be induced to make one.

The case was adjourned to November 15, the day's costs and expert witnesses' expenses to abide any order the Court might make.

CLAIM FOR COMPENSATION.

The amount of compensation to be paid to the children of the late John Morrison for the resumption by the Minister for Home Affairs of an area of 534 acres within the Federal capital site was also mentioned on the application of the Minister. Mr. Pike, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, appeared on behalf of the Minister. John Morrison, one of the seven children, was in attendance to consent, on behalf of himself and the other members of the family, to any order the Court might make.

Mr. Pike said an agreement was entered into by the Minister, offering £2000 for the land on a freehold basis, leaving the amount of compensation payable, £1112 5s.

The Court agreed to the amount payable, the money to be paid to the Registrar of the High Court within 28 days, the disposal of the amount to be the subject of a subsequent application.

John Morrison, on behalf of his brothers and sisters, asked the Court to allocate the amount payable to the seven children, on securities for subsequent repayment.

His Honor said that as they were entitled to only a life interest in the money, he would refer the matter to the Registrar of the Court to decide what security could be given.

SUPREME COURT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

In the case of Holland v North Bulli Colliery, Ltd., in which the plaintiff is suing for compensation for injuries sustained by him at the defendant's colliery, arrangements were made for a view of the mine by the jury, and the hearing was adjourned till their return.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

AN APPIN PROPERTY.

Dixon v D'Arcy and others.

The hearing was concluded of the suit in which the plaintiff, Margaret Mary Matilda Dixon, married woman, of Dick-street, Sydney, prayed, among other things, that her brothers, the defendants, Lawrence D'Arcy, hotelkeeper, of Bulli, and Patrick Joseph D'Arcy, carpenter, of Bulli, be ordered to convey certain property which she alleged belonged to the estate of her father, Lawrence D'Arcy, sen., of Appin, deceased, to some person, to be nominated by the Court; or, in the alternative, that they be ordered to account for the sum of £400 and interest from the date of a certain conveyance to the date of the decree in the suit.

Mr. E. J. Peterson appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Davidson, instructed by Messrs. Makinson and d'Apice (agent for Mr. A. A. Lysaght, of Wollongong), for the defendant, Lawrence D'Arcy.

His Honor said he was satisfied that the £400 had been paid by Lawrence D'Arcy to Henry Redman, and therefore the charge of fraud alleged by the plaintiff failed. The suit was accordingly dismissed.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

COMO GENERAL STORES, LIMITED.

WINDING-UP ORDER MADE.

Mr. Bethune, instructed by Messrs. Dodds and Richardson, appeared on behalf of Percy Shephard Pemell, produce merchant, of Ultimo-road, Haymarket, who petitioned for a winding-up order against the Como General Stores, Limited, on the ground that the company was unable to pay its debts.

The petition stated that the company was duly registered on July 19 last. It was indebted to the petitioner in the sum of £19 1s 6d for goods sold and delivered. It was alleged that two cheques for £14 1s 6d and £5, given by the company in respect of the indebtedness, had been dishonoured. Due notice of the dishonour had been given the company, but the amounts had not been paid. It was further alleged that other cheques given by the company had been dishonoured, and that there were a number of creditors to a total extent of about £250, who had either received dishonoured cheques or had not been paid. On September 9 Norman Bathurst Sawyer, a director of the respondent company, claimed the assets under a debenture, and thereby caused execution, which had been put in by a creditor, to be withdrawn. Petitioner submitted that the company was unable to pay its debts, and prayed that it be wound up under the direction of the Court.

His Honor made the usual winding-up order, and appointed Mr. W. H. Palmer official liquidator. His Honor ordered that all books and papers belonging to the company should be handed over to Mr. Palmer within four days after service of the order.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

"CHARLIE IN THE BANK."

INTERIM INJUNCTION CONTINUED.

The suits instituted by the Clement Mason Cinematograph Company, Limited, to restrain the Greater J. D. Williams, Ltd., and West's, Limited, from exhibiting the Charlie Chaplin film, "Charlie in the Bank," or a colourable imitation of it were mentioned.

Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley, appeared for the plaintiff company; and Mr. R. K. Manning, instructed by Messrs. John Williamson and Sons, for the defendant companies.

By consent, the matter was allowed to stand over till Friday next, the interim injunction, which his Honor had granted on September 24, to continue in the meantime.

ALLEGED BREACH OF AGREEMENT.

Dowling v Myers.

Mr. Bethune, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson, agents for Mr. C. W. Alexander, of Hay, appeared on behalf of John Edward Dowling, auctioneer and stock and station agent, of Balranald, in a suit, in which plaintiff prayed, among other things, that the defendant, Lachlan Robertson Myers, be restrained by injunction from starting or engaging in Balranald in a similar business to that of plaintiff's, on his own behalf, or from entering into the employment of any person carrying on such business, for a period of five years from the date of his leaving plaintiff's employ, or within 100 miles from Balranald.

Mr. J. A. Browne, instructed by Mr. W. H. Drew, appeared for the defendant.

Plaintiff set out in his statement of claim that the defendant entered his employ as a clerk, under a certain agreement, which provided that the engagement was to be determined by a month's notice on either side, and that, after leaving plaintiff's employ, the defendant was not, within a period of five years, to enter the employment of any person carrying on business as an auctioneer, or stock and station agents, or engage in such business on his own behalf in Balranald, or within 100 miles of the town.

The defendant admitted having entered the plaintiff's employ as a clerk at a salary of £2 10s a week, which employment was to be terminated by a month's notice on either side; but he denied absolutely that his engagement was subject to any terms or conditions as alleged.

The hearing was concluded, and his Honor reserved his decision.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

COLLIERY MECHANICS.

Mr. A. R. Croft, for the Colliery Mechanics' Mutual Protection Association, applied for consent to appeal against the award of their board (No. 2, Coal Mining North Group). His Honor gave consent as requested.

LABOURERS ON RAILWAYS, WATER-WORKS, ETC.

The constitution of the following boards in the Labourers' Group was before the Court:—No. 1 (labourers engaged on railways, tramways, bridges, and water conservation works), No. 4 (labourers employed by shires and municipal councils), No. 12 (iron and shipbuilding trades, iron and steel employees of Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd.), No. 23 (iron and ore employees of the same firm).

Mr. Stuart Robertson (representing the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association) made three separate applications. In the first of these he asked that all labourers temporarily or casually employed on railways, tramways, bridges, water conservation, irrigation, and reclamation works should be put in No. 1 Labourers' Board, and to be excluded from the Iron and Shipbuilding Boards Nos. 12, 14, 23, and 25. His second application was for the exclusion of timber getters procuring timber for the works stated in the first application from the Building Trades Group No. 11 Board, and their transfer to No. 1 Labourers' Board.

Mr. Robertson's third application was for the inclusion in No. 1 Labourers' Board of men engaged in making vertical or underlay shafts in unworked coal seams. The first application was opposed by Mr. Waldron (Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover), on behalf of Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd., and the Municipal Council of Sydney. Mr. M'Meekin appeared for the Broken Hill Proprietary, Ltd.; Mr. Till for the Municipal and Shires Councils' Union; Mr. Brooks for the Federated Iron Workers of Australia; Mr. Chubb for Messrs. J. and A. Brown; Mr. Cargill for the Chief Commissioner of Railways; Mr. Blunt for the Local Government Association; Mr. Carbines for the Rock-choppers and Sewer Miners' Union; Mr. Maund for the Shires Association; Mr. Black for the Electrical Trades' Union; Mr. Cowper for the Australian Gas Light Company; Mr. Rawlins for the Gas Employees' Union; and Mr. Milner for the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage—all in opposition to the application.

His Honor said that the first application failed on the general ground that casual employees should be treated as craftsmen. On the particular merits of the case evidence was entered upon, but was not concluded.

The second application, relating to timber getters, was opposed by Mr. Boyce, on behalf of the Associated Saw Millers and Allen Taylor and Co., Ltd. His Honor reserved judgment.

His Honor, in refusing the third application, said that the matter should be dealt with by the board, which may submit the question of jurisdiction to the Court if so desired.

RECRUITING STIMULI.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The several great services of intercession and memorial recently held in Sydney, and so numerously attended, have been evidence of the growing feeling of the necessity for the acknowledgment of God in this hour of national crisis. Whilst many are talking of coming revival as one of the consequences of the war, it is well that others should put such belief into practice, and definitely call the nation to prayer. It is unfortunate that we cannot expect our present team of politicians in power to take the lead along these lines, but we still have religious leaders who are unfettered by any political faction, and we may surely look to them to take up this matter.

Would it be too much to expect that such leaders should band themselves together for the holding of great national united services for prayer and memorial for, say, once a month?

Many and glorious would be the consequences of such united action. The lines of denominational cleavage would be, to a large extent, erased, the underlying spirit of real spiritual union revealed, and the much-talked-of revival of religion practically anticipated. Moreover, there is another consideration worth weighing in this connection. Remembering, as we do, that the men who are going forth are for the greater part young men from the Churches, what a stimulus such great services would give to recruiting—a result that can never be expected to follow cheap and ordinary campaigning of the professional politician. I am, etc.,

ROYAL ART SOCIETY.

EXHIBITION OPENED.

Mr. W. Lister Lister, whilst introducing Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, Vice-President of the Executive Council, to the assemblage at the Royal Art Society's 36th annual exhibition yesterday afternoon, took the opportunity of explaining that the R.A.S. was not officially represented at the art union exhibition at Grace Bros., though he cordially wished the artists connected with it success in disposing of their works; nor was the Art Society connected with exhibitions by any other firm. The artists of Sydney certainly owed thanks to the Government, and more especially to Mr. Campbell Carmichael, for the beautiful galleries around them. He hoped that the present Minister for Education (Mr. Arthur Griffith) might go a step further, and see that his own rooms, and those of other Ministers, were properly adorned with the best Australian works of art. (Applause.)

Mr Fitzgerald, before declaring the exhibition open to the public, explained that Mr. Griffith was detained at a Cabinet meeting, adding humorously that otherwise, in these war-times of almost cheese-paring economy, his absence might have been attributed to a desire to avoid the solution of the problem presented in Mr. Lister's suggestion. He must admit that where the walls of the Government departments exhibited photographs of distinguished occupants of the past, portraits by competent artists would have been infinitely preferable. As an old member of the Royal Art Society, who had attended every spring show for the past 25 years, he was able cordially to compliment all concerned upon the 36th annual exhibition. It was, indeed, one of the best. The high standard of the veterans was to be expected, and was evident in the work of Lister, Watkins, and Norman Carter, but there was also an advance on the part of the younger exhibitors. He thought portrait-painting should be more directly encouraged. The Commonwealth Government had done well in establishing at Queen's Hall, Melbourne, the gallery of Australian statesmen, and others, but yet more should be done, and might well take the direction Mr. Lister had indicated. The richer members of the community also should show a greater appreciation of the increasing interest of family portraits as time rolled on. He greatly valued the grateful allusion to Mr. Carmichael in connection with these splendid galleries, and hoped that there would never be any kind of division between the Department of Education, which already encouraged the all-important foundational art of draftsmanship at the Technical College, and the noble art of painting. (Applause.)

KAROOLA AT SOUTHAMPTON

TO BE A HOSPITAL SHIP.

Mr. A. J. Moylan, of Howard Smith, Ltd., has received a letter from his brother, Mr. W. J. Moylan, who is purser on the M'Ilwraith M'Eacharn liner Karoola, which left here some months ago with troops for the front.

Mr. Moylan writes from Southampton, at which port the vessel arrived, after having landed her troops, and after having made a call at Marseilles. He says:—"I have now been here a week, and feel that I know all England. Much to my disappointment, we were ordered into this port instead of going to London, as intended, but we soon found out that we were lucky in coming here for more reasons than one. On reporting to the Admiralty I found that all officers of transports were entitled to a first-class pass to any port or town in the British Isles; so I am going to Glasgow, via London, where I am to stay for a few days. The Government are treating us very well, and have issued a very neat badge to show that we are on war service, so we are not likely to be jeered at by the people ashore, who might think one should be at the front.

"We had a very fine run from Marseilles, calling in at Gibralta for a few hours; then with all speed to England. We are to stay her about six weeks while they are converting the ship into a hospital, and, from present appearances, she will look beautiful when finished. In walking round the deck I can hardly realise that it is the same ship that left Sydney last June. Ten of the nurses who are on board are daughters of titled people here. I have been kept very busy here, as the police will not let you in or out of the dock gates without a pass, and it falls on me to issue them.

"A lot of our men were camped near here, but they left for the front just before we arrived.

"The hospital ships from France and the Dardanelles berth near us. The men are discharged into trains to go on to the hospitals."

THE ONLY PEACE TERMS.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

ENEMY MUST BE CRUSHED.

The president of the Imperial Maritime League, Lord Willoughby de Broke, in the course of a letter which has been widely circulated, says:—"From the very commencement of its recruiting campaign the League realised that working below the surface there was a strong pro-German and anti-British propaganda being carried on, and that sooner or later this would develop into an open organised movement to stop the war in the interest of Germany. The league has, therefore, utilised its campaign to exert quietly and steadily a counteracting influence. The following resolution for signatures was drawn up and has been extensively signed:—

"We, the undersigned, desire to place on record our unswerving determination to use all the possible means at our disposal to support the Governments of the Allied Peoples in carrying on the war until peace has been restored by the unconditional surrender of the enemy, and thus for all time crush the arrogant military despotism of the German Empire, with which she is now seeking to dominate the world."

"Now that the league's forecast has proved correct it is anxious to have this phase of its work more widely known, and we would ask all patriotic people to sign the petition and to induce their friends to do so. All who have the time to organise a house-to-house canvass in their neighbourhood would be doing a patriotic service."

When the last mail left London 485,000 signatures had been secured, and thousands of names were being added daily. The league is anxious to make the movement an Imperial one, and to number its supporters by millions.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Coonamble.—With the plain simple treatment of your fowls there should be no disease. It is possible they are affected with the fowl tick. The birds and their sleeping quarters should be thoroughly examined at night.

C.A.V.—Indian Game, Rhode Island Reds, would be a good cross for market poultry; but why cross them when both breeds are excellent for this purpose? Crossing was much in practice 30 or 40 years ago, when there were very few utility breeds of poultry.

Inquirer.—The roup powder recommended in the English paper you mention is made of equal parts of powdered aniseed, fenugreek, liquorice, and ginger.

Orpington.—You should not begin to save the eggs for hatching until the birds have been penned up for a fortnight. By that time there will be no danger of the eggs being affected by the previous mating.

Six months of the Hawkesbury College egg-laying competition terminated on Thursday evening last, the results in most of the sections being better than for the corresponding period of 1914. The first-year hens averaged 513 eggs, against 506 last year, and the second-year hens 388, against 379. The six pens roosting in the trees still keep ahead in production as compared with the six in ordinary houses.

High prices for table poultry of every description continue. Cockerels of good quality realised to 10/ last week, old fat hens to 8/, Muscovy ducks 8/, drakes 15/6, turkeys to 30/ and over, and geese to 11/ per pair. In previous years it was customary to hold turkeys and other meaty birds until Christmas. Better prices than those now ruling, however, need not be expected, and every week's delay in marketing lessens the profit.

On account of the expected cheap cereals and meals, poultry breeders are increasing their stocks, both by incubator and hen hatching. Others, to avoid the risks attending hatching are purchasing newly-hatched chickens, which are now a feature of the poultry auction sales. On Thursday last there were from 300 to 800 at the various rooms, for which there was a brisk demand. Leghorn chickens to a week old fetched from 6d to 8d each, while Langshans, Orpingtons, and others of the heavy breeds sold readily to 10d each. Young ducklings brought twice the above rates.

The egg market continues good, and lower rates are not expected this season. During the first two weeks in October supplies are more abundant than during any other period of the year, and prices consequently are low, the present high rates being due to the great reduction in stock through the late high food prices. While the shortage in supplies is more pronounced on suburban poultry farms, other egg-supply districts are also experiencing considerable reductions. In Monday's "Herald" it was shown that the quantities received in Sydney for August last were more than 30 per cent. below those of the same month in 1914, the interstate arrival for the same period being short by 15 tons.

Two or three years ago, when the Buttercup fowls were introduced here, the general opinion was that, whatever their records might be as layers, their small size placed them outside the region of table poultry. At last Thursday's poultry sales such predictions were found to be much at fault. Three pens of cockerels of this breed, forwarded by Mr. A. G. Greenwood, fetched 8/5, 8/9, and 8/10 per couple respectively.

THE KENNEL.

(BY W.C.J.)

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J.G. (Bowral).—The enclosure came to hand safely. A reply has been posted.

W.B.W. (Mudgee).—The Skye is a long, low-set dog. There are not many big Yorkshire terriers about, as nearly all the breeders follow the toy type. Will do the best we can.

R. (Adelaide).—Glad to hear that your State's successes are likely to help the bulldog breed.

Esme (Bathurst).—You should be able to procure a terrier of the breed named by advertising.

NOTES.

A special meeting of the Hound and Gun Dog Club was held at Bateman's Hotel, George-street, last Thursday. Mr. Banks tendered his resignation as hon. secretary of the club. There were three nominations for the vacant position. The election resulted in favour of Mrs. E. M. Hope, who was a former secretary of the club.

Meetings have been held by the council of the Royal Agricultural Society respecting the conference with the Kennel Club regarding next year's Royal Show. It is understood that nothing definite has been decided in the matter.

CHAMPIONSHIP JOINT SHOW.

The schedule is to hand of the championship joint show of the British Terrier Club of Australia, the Bulldog Society (N.S.W.), and the Collie Club (N.S.W.). The date is the 30th instant, and the venue the dog pavilion at the Agricultural Society's Grounds. The show will be held under the rules of the Kennel Club of New South Wales.

The judges in the terrier section are:—Fox-terriers: Smooth, Mr. W. Houghton; wires, Mr. G. Rooke (12 classes). Irish-terriers: Rev. R. McKeown (8 classes). Yorkshires (10 classes): Scottish, Mr. S. S. Meyer (6 classes); Airedales, Mr. W. MacWalker (4 classes). Skye: Mr. J. Crichton (3 classes). Bull-terriers: Mr. G. Rooke (3 classes). West Highland White (1 class). Entry fees: Members and interstate, 4s; non-members, 5s. Prize-money: Three and more entries—1st, 75 per cent. of entries; 2nd, 25 per cent. There are seven specials.

The Bulldog section has 12 classes. Mr. G. Rooke is the judge. Entry fees: Open classes, 5s; puppy classes, 2s; other classes, 2s 6d. Prizes: Open, 21s, 15s, and 10s; puppy, 10s, 5s, and 2s 6d; other classes, 15s, 10s, 5s. There are 18 special prizes and four challenge trophies.

The Collie Club has 13 classes. Mr. J. R. Robinson is the judge. The prizes are on a sliding scale, ranging from 5s first to 15s first. Entries close on the 16th instant. Mr. R. G. Geddes is hon. general secretary, Mr. R. N. Allworth B.T.C. hon. secretary (collies), Mr. G. E. Bragg (bulldogs) and Mr. A. E. Fisher (collies).

DOG SHOWS.

There is a feeling abroad in Melbourne (writes "Wattlebark") that, owing to adverse circumstances, dog and poultry shows, such as those fanciers have been used to for many years past, are not likely to be held in Melbourne for a long time to come. Probably they have gone for the next decade. There is apparently not the financial or influential strength amongst present-day fanciers to cope with a big show. The fancy may have to be content for a long time with dog parades or shows catering for a limited number of breeds and limited entries.

The foregoing remarks are, it is to be hoped, a little too pessimistic. The war is not going to last a decade, and the depression in canine matters is merely temporary. There is, however, in Sydney, as in other Australian capitals, a feeling against the three days' general shows that used to be held. The Kennel Club of New South Wales is not holding shows, and the other big body, the Ladies' Kennel Club, has passed out.

The Sydney Royal is likely to continue its dog section, which is the canine event of the year. The one-day shows held by the Fox-terrier, Bulldog, Collie, and other specialist clubs have received excellent support. So have the several combined club exhibitions. There are plenty of fanciers here, and more good dogs than ever, and, despite the war, the canine fancy is not likely to diminish in interest.

AUTOMATIC TELEPHONES.

Evidence in regard to the proposed new automatic telephone exchange was given yesterday by Mr. E. J. Young, Deputy Postmaster-General, before the Federal Public Works Committee:—Mr. J. Riley (Chairman), Senators Keating, Storie, and Lynch, and Messrs. Gregory, Fenton, Finlayson, and Laud Smith.

Mr. Young stated that although the automatic battery was comparatively new, he believed it would be the cheaper of the two, and prove a great boon to the public.

CIVIL SERVICE SALARIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—At one time payment of salaries to Civil servants in the country districts was made in a spasmodic way. Later on arrangements were made so that every officer was to receive payment on the 15th and 30th of each month. Since the Railway Commissioners saw fit to reduce the train services to the country salaries have been received at any old time. Take, for instance, the South-western line, where three trains a week are run, leaving Sydney on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. If a pay day happens to fall on a Friday the procedure is as follows:—The several head offices post the cheques on Thursday. These are kept at the G.P.O. until Friday (when the train leaves), and they arrive at their destinations on Saturday afternoon, and consequently officers do not receive their pay until Monday, or three days late. The officers in the several account branches in Sydney, who are responsible, do not appear to have "nous" enough to have the cheques posted a day earlier to ensure the salaries being paid on the right dates, as they are in the more favoured parts of the State. I trust the Treasury officials will make arrangements to have this matter remedied.—I am, etc.,

CHAPTER XIX.—Continued.

For the suggestion that Slippery Sam had made to her that afternoon had taken root. It was no sudden inspiration to better herself. She had been waiting for the opportunity ever since she was 18 years old.

After tea, Rachel strolled along King-street. She appeared to be quite unconscious of the attention she attracted, but half the men who passed looked at her, and every third man looked twice or three times.

As she passed the bottom of Duke-street she saw her master's car and the hired car standing at the kerb just outside George Boddington's rooms. Before she turned the corner the Rolls-Royce started, the electric light was switched on, and she saw Sir John, Samuel Hesketh, and—Miriam Guryado.

Rachel gave a little sigh of satisfaction. The car went up Duke-street and turned to the left in Jermyn-street, as if making for Piccadilly. Evidently they were not returning to Crowhurst Hall. She lingered for a while in Duke-street, walking up and down outside the entrance to George's rooms. She crossed the street and looked up at the windows. It was becoming dusk, for darkness creeps over the city early, and Rachel saw light shining from the sitting-room. She knew George Boddington was there, that he had not run away. She had half a mind to go up and see him, but haste might spoil the plan she had mapped out.

So she made her way to the Strand and amused herself at a picture palace until 8 o'clock, then collected the parcels she had placed on the seat by her side. There was only one of any size or importance, and, re-adjusting her veil, she went out into the road and took a cab to Duke-street.

When the cab stopped she did not get out, but sat in waiting until the hall-porter appeared. She asked if Mr. George Boddington was at home.

The hall porter gave her a quick, comprehensive glance.

"Mr. George caught the night train to the Continent, miss. He said he expected a lady to be calling to-night or to-morrow morning. He said she might be leaving a parcel, that if she wished to go up I was to give her the keys."

Rachel got out of the cab at once, almost too quickly. She paid the man, giving him a handsome tip, as if it had been her practice to drive about in taxis all her life.

"If you'll give me the keys I'll go up," she said to the hall porter.

The man looked at her again, then gave her the keys of young Boddington's rooms. The latter had not given the name of the young lady he expected, he had merely described her. Rachel seemed to fit in with the description.

Rachel walked up slowly. She had really come to see George Boddington. But, hearing that he had run away, it was merely an inspiration which had made her seize the opportunity of going into his rooms. . . . She had been there once before, as a servant, of course, with a message from George's mother. Now she was going as a friend . . . one of his lady friends.

As she turned the key in the door and opened it she wondered which, not that she knew any of them, but she fancied she knew the handwriting of a few. He had expected a parcel, too; it was lucky she had brought the little leather suit-case she had bought in Bond-street with her. She had had it wrapped in brown paper, so it might have contained—anything.

Rachel closed the door behind her and turned the key. She stood for a moment in the darkness before switching on the light. A little shiver shook her body as she looked round the room; it seemed strange and eerie somehow. She felt she had no right there. The room seemed dead, as if the man who had occupied it and whose things still remained there would never return.

It was obvious that he had left in a hurry. The bedroom door was open, and Rachel could seem some of his clothes lying scattered about on the bed. On the bureau the blotting pad was open, a sheet of paper lay on the floor; some flowers had fallen from a vase. A pipe lay forgotten on the mantelshelf, and the ends of some half-smoked cigarettes on an ash-tray. The windows were closed, and there was a queer perfume in the atmosphere of tobacco smoke, flowers, and—something else. Something which reminded Rachel of the events of the previous evening at Crowhurst Hall.

She smiled, then again a little shiver shook her body as she crossed the room.

She was intruding. . . . A wave of pity for George Boddington swept her for a moment. It went as quickly as it came.

She put down her parcels and began to search both rooms; she was not searching for anything in particular, but just a vague curiosity backed by a desire to find out anything that might be of interest or value to her.

What she might have found out from George if he had still been there his room could perhaps tell her.

But after twenty minutes she had not learnt it. Some of the papers and bills she discovered told her what she already guessed; that Sir John's son and heir was deep in debt. She knew why he had run away.

She sat down to think for a moment; finding a cigarette in the half-empty box on the table, she put it between her lips and smoked it.

Why had not the old man helped the boy? Probably Lady Boddington did not know. . . . What funny things parents were.

Rachel gave a little sigh of content. The Turkish cigarette was delightful; the arm-chair was extremely comfortable. She could picture herself living in a little suite of rooms like this. She stretched out her arms, then winced, as if at a sudden spasm of pain, and she put her hand over her side. Leaning forward, she unbuttoned her blouse, then stopped suddenly.

She had left on the electric light in the bedroom, and the door open. It occurred to her that she would have time to carry out a little plan she had formed in her mind—in George Boddington's rooms! It was not likely the hall-porter would disturb her.

Sir John would not return now. Keeping her hand on the bosom of her dress she slowly walked across the room. Lying on the floor, half concealed by the vallance of the chesterfield, was an envelope. She had seen it when she got up from the chair, she gave it a little kick with her foot.

A letter. The envelope was addressed to—Miriam!

Just Miriam, that was all.

She picked it up quickly, almost eagerly. Without a moment's hesitation she opened it. There was a letter inside; brief. And, as well as the letter, another piece of paper. A cheque.

She looked at the cheque first. "To George Boddington, Esq., or bearer." For five thousand pounds. The cheque was not crossed. George Boddington had endorsed it. Rachel's fingers trembled a little as she read the letter.

"I love you; that's why I'm doing this. That's why I'm running away. Of course, you'll find it difficult to believe I love you—I suppose no one believes in love at first sight. I didn't yesterday. . . . Still, that doesn't matter now. I just know. You will do what I promised father I'd do, won't you?—bring those beastly things here, pack them up, and address them to him. Or, if it's easier, have them sent here or to Crowhurst Hall, whichever will cause you least embarrassment. I think the enclosed should be sufficient. I hope there will be a bit over for you to keep. I don't understand anything; but, in spite of everything, I just believe in you and love you. I know one day we shall meet again.

"GEORGE."

Rachel lit another cigarette. She smoked it right through and read the letter again. Then, striking a match, she burnt the letter until nothing but ashes remained. These she crumbled to powder and threw into the grate. She placed the cheque carefully in her purse, and put it into her pocket.

(To be continued.)

ORCHARD PESTS.

THE BURGUNDY MIXTURE.

Although the careful orchardist has been busy fighting pests by spraying during the winter months, the present period of the year is the time when the fight becomes active. Fruitgrowing in this country has reached the stage in the great majority of instances when it is impossible to make a profitable proposition of the industry from a commercial standpoint, unless systematic spraying is made part and parcel of the working of the orchard. Pests now are so numerous and destructive that the orchardist rarely can hope to succeed in marketing prime fruit unless the trees have been sprayed both in winter and spring. Even then some new pest, or some particularly virulent outbreak of disease, may diminish profits considerably. On the whole, however, the pests common to our orchards can be combated with proven preventives and remedies.

In the course of an article in the South Australian Agricultural Journal Mr. G. Quinn, horticultural expert in that State, points out: "One primary fact of which everyone who sets out to repress pests—be they of vegetable or animal origin—should be fully seized, is that all organised objects are at their most vulnerable stage when in their infancy. In the inscrutable plan of creation the breeding powers of any organism may be said to be fixed in an inverse ratio to its size. Hence it is that the smaller the individual pest the greater care becomes necessary in the application of the repressive measures used against it. To this end it usually follows that it is not ordinarily the great strength or killing power of the remedy which makes for effectiveness, but the thoroughness of its application and the selection of the right time when it should be utilised. By way of example, it is found to be practically useless to apply a fungicide to the peach or nectarine to repress curl-leaf disease after the young green tips of the leaves have merged from their winter buds, and it is almost tantamount to shutting the stable door after the horse has gone to spray the apples or pears after the pustules of the "black spot" are seen upon the fruits or foliage, or the "sawdust" like burrowings of the codlin moth caterpillar are seen protruding from those fruits."

Mr. Quinn states that in a series of experiments conducted in South Australia upon rows of Elberta peaches over four seasons, the copper soda, or Burgundy mixture, yielded the uniformly best results in the repression of curl-leaf, as compared with Bordeaux mixture, pure bluestone, Bordeaux paste, and powder, and lime-sulphur compounds. The strength or formula used was 1lb bluestone, 1lb 14oz washing soda crystals to each 10 gallons of water. In these trials a certain number of trees were sprayed once only with each compound, just as the flower-buds began to move, whilst others were sprayed a second time when the colour of the petals was clearly displayed in the swollen buds. With the exception of the ordinary Bordeaux, viz., lime and bluestone, the single dressing of the copper-soda spray proved more effective than the two dressings given of any of the other compounds. In dealing with the curl leaf a distinction may be made in the treatment in accordance with the climatic conditions incidental to the locality. For instance, one spraying given to trees as the blossoms unfold on the plains of Adelaide with its 20 inches of rainfall and a rapidly drying spring atmosphere—proves as efficacious as two applied to the same varieties at Blackwood, where the moisture in soil and atmosphere is more abundant and prolonged after the bursting of the leaves and the air temperatures are cooler, and that more particularly at night-time.

The article referred to advises that in making Burgundy mixture advantage will be found in diluting the solutions of bluestone and soda whilst they are still separated with a considerable portion of the water to be used in making up the spraywash to its full volume. By way of example, if 10 gallons only are to be made, dilute the soda down to 5 gallons and the bluestone to a like volume before blending the two together to complete the wash. The same remarks will also apply to making ordinary Bordeaux mixture, with its lime and bluestone constituents. The advantage appears to rest in the lighter compound resulting from the combination, thus enabling it to float or remain in suspension longer, and in consequence assure a more even strength of the fungicide being spread over the tree by the sprayer. This Burgundy mixture, or compound, has not been tested widely upon apple and pear trees to suppress the fusicladiums, or black spot, in this State, but owing to the ease with which it may be made and passed through the sprayer, Mr. Quinn thinks it is certainly worthy of being given an extensive trial, and that more particularly for the first spraying just as the buds unfold.

THE WHEAT CROP.

IN THE TAMWORTH DISTRICT.

SUMMER FALLOW POPULAR.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

II.

Reference was made in a former article to the splendid crops in the Tamworth district, especially on the old Peel River subdivision area. Some of the best individual crops in the district are to be found near Nemingha, on the undulating land above the Peel River. There are some paddocks in this locality which look equal to a 25 or 30 bushel crop, and they will only require a light shower or two to set the grain properly. Mr. Lord, jun., and several of his immediate neighbours, have some of the best crops in the district, and their wheat gives evidence of good cultivation and careful sowing. Most of the farmers in this locality, as well as those in many other parts of the Tamworth district, go in for the summer fallow. That is, they burn off the stubble as soon as possible after harvesting, and the ground is then given its first ploughing. This enables them to take advantage of the heavy rains usual in December, January, or February, after which the land is harrowed and cultivated to conserve the moisture for the wheat season.

A well-known farmer in the district is Mr. J. E. O'Grady, formerly editor of the "Agricultural Gazette," who has a small farm—something under 200 acres—on the Peel River subdivision. Mr. O'Grady practises up-to-date methods, suiting them to the peculiar conditions to the district. He was at first regarded more as a theorist than a farmer, but the methods he applied to wheat culture have proved successful, and his example has come to be pretty generally followed. Last year Mr. O'Grady had an average of 21 bushels when the average yield in the district was about 6 or 8 bushels. He supports the official view that ploughing soon after harvest is absolutely necessary in the Tamworth district, in view of the heavy summer rains, especially early in the year. As an instance of what can be obtained by this method—known as the summer fallow—he put the fourth and fifth crops into one of his paddocks, and from these two crops, one of which was grown in a drought season, he averaged 25 bushels.

Some farmers contend that if they have a wet winter after summer fallowing the wheat will have a tendency to lie down, but the very large following now gained for this system shows that experience is proving its great value. It is certain that there was more summer fallowing this season in the Tamworth district than ever before, although owing to the peculiarity of the season its value this year was not so evident. There has been no heavy rain, nothing of sufficient volume to soak the subsoil, so that the fallowing, which aims at conserving this subsoil moisture, has not really been essential. All paddocks which have been well ploughed and cultivated, no matter whether the soil is dark chocolate or light red, give promise of heavy crops. Even apart from the conservation of moisture, however, summer fallowing helps to get rid of the summer weeds and part also of the winter weeds, so that it has been of some value. The crops have made such vigorous growth that the weeds have not had a chance this year, and the oats are not as bad as usual, so that the crops generally are very clean.

There are three kinds of soil for wheat-growing in the Tamworth district. The richest is the black soil overlying limestone, and will not be exhausted for very many years. The chocolate soil which overlies basalt is also very rich and gives heavy yields of wheat in any ordinary season. The light-red soil overlying slate is the poorest, and will be the first class to be exhausted. Superphosphate is not required in this district, as the crops come on quite early enough. The effect of super. is to stimulate growth, but experiments in the district have shown that, unlike Riverina, it is unnecessary. It will probably be found, however, that five or six crops grown on the very light red or grey soil will be quite enough without a spell being given. The paddocks can then be allowed to revert to pasture, when the manurial effect of sheep pasturage will be found beneficial. Of course, the long fallow would be of service in this regard.

In treating a small section of his land which needed a spell, Mr. O'Grady has allotted a portion for experiments in fodder plants by the agricultural inspector. The rape and barley—in alternate rows—appear to give the best results. Field peas were also grown, and the wild oats were allowed to grow amongst them, the whole being fed off to sheep. Although these crops can be planted in February or March, it was April before a sowing was made this year, owing to lack of moisture, and the fodder has been eaten off three times since July 24. He has some bad patches of black oats near by, and next year Mr. O'Grady intends sowing rape and barley mixed there, the whole being fed off to sheep. It appears to be a very workable way of getting rid of oats and renovating the soil at the same time. Farmers who had early wheat this year found it invaluable when sheep feed was hard to get. One farmer estimated that his early wheat was worth £300 to him for feeding to sheep; but for this the lambing in the north and north-west this year would not have been nearly as good as it was.

Regarding varieties in the north, Yandilla King has a great following this year, and has had for several years. As with other districts, Federation became very widely introduced a few years ago, but there is little doubt that it is not so well suited to the north as for, say, Riverina. It is liable to bleach badly, especially where summer rains are usual, and is also subject to rust and smut. All the same, it shows out best as a bag-filler, and it is very popular in the north and north-west, as in other districts. Federation, too, has much in its favour in respect to its resistance to storms. There is a good deal of Rhymer grown, especially on the lighter soils. Cumberland is also grown by many Tamworth farmers, as it has also proved a splendid hay wheat. Mr. O'Grady, who has experimented with many varieties of wheat, considers that if it were possible to get a cross possessing the Federation quality of straw and the Yandilla King head it would be the ideal wheat for the Tamworth district. Neither variety is liable to shell through wind action or storms. Marshall's No. 3 is also largely planted, as also is Bunyip. Steinwedel, once very widely grown, has lost a good deal of its popularity on account of its shelling propensity, which is a fatal defect in a district like Tamworth.

In the Quirindi district there is every prospect of the best harvest for many years. The rain which was so beneficial to Tamworth crops was much lighter there, and a further fall will be required this month to ensure a high yield. Wheat sown on the black soil is looking quite as well as that on the chocolate soil. A large proportion of the farmers in this district now carry out the summer fallow, following the lead of Mr. Smith Pollock, whose success as a wheat-grower is widely known by his exhibits at the Royal Show. The three main varieties grown by this farmer are Warren, Yandilla King, and Federation, smaller sowings of Rhymer, Marshall's No. 3, and Steinwedel also being made. Although the crops are well grown and very uniform, the drying winds experienced lately have made a further fall very necessary. The district should average between 15 and 20 bushels. The lack of moisture in the subsoil, due to the absence of heavy rains earlier in the year, has made the season a very critical one, but fortunately there have been frequent steady showers up to the present.

STATE WHEAT FARM.

In the Legislative Assembly last night the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Grahame, gave some information regarding the Government wheat farm at Tottenham, in reply to questions by Mr. M'Girr. The rainfall, he said, for the district had been below the average, and the prospect of the early sown crops was not at all promising. Sheep at present had not been turned on to the area, but it might be available to arrange for sheep to be utilised in eating off the crops on portion of the area. It was impossible to estimate the yield of wheat, as everything depended upon weather conditions.

HARVEST LABOUR.

APPEAL FOR HELP.

BATHURST.—The secretary of the Farmers and Settlers' Association has written to the local branch in furtherance of the co-operative scheme that has been decided upon in the securing of sufficient labour for the coming harvest. The scheme provides for the compilation of a list of those farm workers who are willing to assist in the harvesting operations in other parts of the State. "Full harvest rates," wrote Mr. Campbell, "are to be paid. Many of our inland farmers are short-handed for harvesting operations through the enlistment of their sons and relatives, and, whilst we have supported and encouraged enlistment for active service, we recognise that the efficient handling and gathering of our food supplies and the provisioning of our fighters is of immense importance, and should be in the same category as the manufacture and supply of munitions of war. We feel that there are many of our middle-aged farmers who are anxious to do their part in Empire defence, and we appeal to these in particular to assist their brother farmers who, through patriotism and self-denial, are now in need of practical help in the work of gathering the abundant crops it is hoped the Commonwealth will be blessed with."

MOLONG.—Mr. Chas. Coghlan, Orange district organiser for the Farmers and Settlers' Association, wrote to the Department of Labour and Industry asking whether union conditions were imposed on the supply of harvest labour through the channel of Government agencies. The Under-Secretary of the department replied that the departmental exchanges have been established solely for agency work, and that so far from interesting themselves in disputes between employers and employees they would regard such disputes as occasions for the suspension of their activities.

At the last meeting of the Molong branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association the secretary announced that the local Employment Bureau, conducted gratuitously by a member (Mr. W. Cole) was proving a great success, numbers of inquiries from persons wanting employment having been received, and employers were also registering at the bureau. The members were sceptical regarding the Government's avowed intention to dissociate the Department of Labour and Industry from union conditions in so far as the supply of harvest labour was concerned.

It was resolved that the district municipal and shire councils be requested to refrain from letting works contracts in the near future, so as not to withdraw men from harvest labour.

WESTERN DISTRICT EXHIBIT.

MUDGEE, Tuesday.

At a meeting of the Mudgee Agricultural Association on Saturday a communication was received from Bathurst Agricultural Association asking for co-operation in promoting the western district exhibit at the next Royal Show. It was decided to write to the organiser asking if expenses would be allowed to an organiser to work up exhibits in this district.

PASTURES PROTECTION.

MOLONG.—At the last meeting of the Molong Pastures Protection Board, the stock inspector (E. G. Finch) reported that he had made 46 inspections since the previous meeting, travelling 321 miles. Although rabbits were breeding, they did not appear to be on the increase appreciably. A great many had been trapped, and a large number of owners were diging out. Poisoning had been carried on on some holdings, but the rabbits would not take the poison. Pasturage had made good headway, and there was now fairly good feed throughout the district. Most stock were healthy, and putting on good condition. A few sheep had been affected with lung worms, for which turpentine drenches had been used with good effect. All crops were looking well, and there were prospects of a good harvest. Two holdings were reported unsatisfactory, and prosecutions were ordered if reinspections showed no improvement. The secretary announced that the credit balance was £584 10s 9d, and £60 in rates was outstanding.

When Your Baby Starts to Walk

you will know that your love and devotion have brought him safely through the perilous first few months of life, and his sturdy limbs and happy, contented disposition will make you glad that you insisted, from the first, that Baby's food must be either his mother's milk—or Glaxo, the one safe and most economical alternative for breast milk.

As a Harley Street Infant Specialist said when called in consultation over a doctor's own baby, "It must be either Glaxo or a Wet Nurse." Glaxo was chosen, and ten months afterwards the doctor wrote: "I am more than satisfied with the result of 'Glaxo' feeding in my child's case. He is firm, has cut his teeth up to date, and there is plenty of bone. He is now 11 months old, stands up well, and there are no signs of rickets."

Glaxo builds healthier, happier and brighter babies than those fed on starchy and flour foods, because a pure, easily-digested milk is the only food suitable for a young baby, and Glaxo is the solids of pure fresh milk enriched with extra cream and milk sugar. Only the very best milk is made into Glaxo, and, so that it shall be quite fresh, the milk is delivered to the Glaxo factory within two hours of its being drawn from the cow, and is immediately pasteurised and filtered and the necessary cream and milk sugar added. All the natural sweetness and purity is retained by the Glaxo Process, which dries the milk and cream to a powder, and also causes the nourishing casein of the milk subsequently to form into light flaky particles easily digestible by even a very weak baby. As another doctor has said: "Glaxo is superior to cow's milk for infants, being so much more digestible, and should be absolutely invaluable to mothers who for any reason cannot suckle their infants."

(Signed)———,
M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

There is nothing secret about Glaxo, because every mother has a right to know of what the food she gives her baby is composed—and she knows that starch, flour, malt, and cane sugar are not in breast milk nor in Glaxo. If Nature had thought them necessary or good for Baby, they would be in breast milk, and we should have put them in Glaxo, and we should then have been able to sell Glaxo for less money because these things—if not so good for Baby—are Cheaper than Glaxo.

That is why starchy, artificial foods cost less than Glaxo, but such foods are not cheap because milk or cream must be added to them to make them nourishing, so that you have not only the food to pay for, but also a heavy milk bill. Because Glaxo is itself milk with added cream and is a complete food for baby, it is instantly prepared by adding boiling water only—no added milk or cream is required—so that you have nothing to pay for but the Glaxo.

Strong babies fed on Glaxo keep strong, and when twelve months old look like 18 months old babies. Weak babies soon lose their weakness when fed on Glaxo, and in a few months are so altered in appearance, health, and spirits, that they are not recognised as the same babies. A Mother says:—"Up to Baby being three months old, he was very small and puny, and we tried all kinds of foods, milk, and barley water, still he was not thriving. However, eventually we took him to the doctor, who advised us to immediately put him on Glaxo (saying we ought to have done so before), and from that time he has never looked back, and we are constantly being asked what we are feeding him on."

Give your Baby Glaxo, either as his sole food or in turn with breast milk, and you will be giving him the food which is cheapest in the end, the food which doctors recommend and give to their own babies, the food from which, even from birth, baby can derive everything he needs to grow up big and strong and bonnie.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1915.

GREECE AND BULGARIA.

It was not to be expected that the German envoys and their sympathisers would allow the kingdom of Greece to be definitely ranged on the side of the Allies without making a final effort to preserve, if not her friendship, at least her neutrality. From the beginning of this year the Emperor and his ambassador, Baron Shenck, have employed every artifice known to their diplomacy in order to prevent the sympathies of the people and their chosen leader from expressing themselves in action. Attempts have been made to bribe the nation by promises of German capital, and afterwards to terrorise it, first by warnings of an attack from Bulgaria, and afterwards by threats of devastation from Germany. It is quite clear that these efforts have been redoubled since the sudden reunion of the King and his chief Minister in response to the Bulgarian mobilisation. Bulgarian envoys have been sent to Athens, presumably with assurances that Greek territory is not to suffer. After their frigid reception, the Germans, through their newspapers and their envoys, have resumed their habitual device of painting Great Britain as the treacherous partner, impotent to help her friends, but determined to make her profit out of their misfortunes. Certain of them have suggested that the troops now landed at Salonika may be used to force the Greeks to yield territory and a port to Bulgaria, and so to buy off the threatened Bulgarian attack. Others have pointed to the landing of troops in a neutral country as evidence of the incurable hypocrisy of the British mind. It is typical of the German method that no attack should be made on the French, whose popularity in Athens is widespread, and invulnerable. But the Government organ, which answers charges and suggestions alike, is careful to bracket both France and Britain in their claims on the friendship and gratitude of the Greek people. The Belgian precedent is turned very neatly and very justly against its authors. There is in reality no analogy between the landing at Salonika and the attack on Liege. The Powers have undertaken no solemn engagement to protect the neutrality of Greece. Greece is under no corresponding obligation to preserve herself from engagements to other Powers. Her King is, therefore, at liberty to do what King Albert had bound himself not to do. She may forfeit her neutrality without breaking her oath, and if she wishes to formally preserve her neutrality, she may do so by an unsupported protest. The uneasiness reported to exist in Greece was, no doubt, caused by the belief that Bulgaria might still negotiate and induce the Allies to take possession of Greek and Servian territory, to be handed over after the war. But the Russian ultimatum, issued with the support of the Allies, proves that Bulgaria can no longer negotiate on the old footing. Before she can again ask the Allies for territory she must dismiss the Austro-German visitors who have settled in Sofia as their friends settled in Constantinople. The time for negotiation of any kind is obviously very short. The Russian Black Sea fleet, after its comparative inaction, may even now be bombarding the two Bulgarian ports. The armies from Greek soil are ready to sieze the railways and to occupy one of the two Bulgarian ports on the Aegean. It is quite clear that Bulgaria is not to have the time for preparation which was conceded to the Turk nor the opportunity for treachery which she used at the beginning of the second Balkan War. Happily, the only coincidences may be the desertion of Bulgaria a second time by the Central Powers and that sudden march up the valley of the Struma which decided the war and vindicated for the Greeks their claim to valour and endurance.

The suggestion of the "Kreuz Zeitung" that Great Britain will remain where she has once set her foot has, fortunately, been anticipated by Enver Pasha in his address to the Young Turks. Enver dreams of a Turco-German alliance from the Baltic to the Persian Gulf. German statesmen, with equal candour, and with characteristic brutality, speak of an Empire in which every non-German element will be kept in a subordinate place. The model peace terms, which have been set before the Chancellor by political bodies throughout Germany, almost all agree that Servia must be destroyed, not because she contains a nest of robbers, but because she bars the triumphal march of the German people to the Aegean. The second Balkan war was a calamity, not because it cost Bulgaria considerable territory, but because it strengthened the barrier between the German people and their ambitions. It is no doubt a sense of this impending fate which accounts for the reluctance of the Turks to receive German officers, and which has inspired the Bulgarian opposition in their interview with the King. The opposition cannot compel the King to change his plans, and once war is declared the nation will be united by its instinct for defence. But we may expect the traditional feeling for Russia, and the knowledge that Germany comes as a master, to weaken their sense of union, and to make the nation more willing to listen to overtures for peace. Evidently some Bulgarian leaders remember that their country was urged to the second war of 1913 by Austria, and then deserted. Of the disposition of the Greek people in the event of Bulgaria continuing to side with the Germans there can be little doubt. They have already done enough to incur the displeasure of the German Emperor and of the Turk. They have much to lose by a Bulgarian victory, and they are assured of new and valuable possessions in the Aegean and the Levant if they join in the defeat of Turkey. For many reasons the Allies would have been better off if they could have reconstituted the Balkan League, and adjusted the claims of Bulgaria by their diplomacy. But if a new battlefield is to be opened it is satisfactory to hear that they have lost no time, and are ready to take advantage of every opening. Bulgaria may indeed have opened the way by which the attack on Constantinople may be successfully carried out with the assistance of the Italian army and of the Greek.

REFERENDUM SOPHISTRY.

The third stage in the referendum farce has been reached. The first was the decision of the Labour conference which controls the Ministry to go on with the expensive luxury of attempting to amend the Constitution in war time. The second was the passing of the necessary measures through Parliament; and now the third is the issue of the case "for" and "against." We shall not at this stage have anything to say concerning the case against the proposals as presented in the official document. It speaks for itself, and will soon be in every elector's hands. But there is much to be said in criticism of the case in favour as fathered by the party in power. Had the Government in this crisis of our history been able to say that these proposals would reduce the cost of government in the Commonwealth, and so had urged that, though the taking of a referendum was admittedly expensive, ultimately it would justify the initial outlay, then the arguments put forward would demand a patient hearing. Nothing of this kind, however, is or can be urged in its favour. It cannot be shown that the transfer of power from the States to the Commonwealth will save the taxpayer one penny per annum, either through the greater efficiency of Federal as against State control, or through the elimination of State activities. The passing of the referendum will not bring about any reduction in taxation either on the part of the Commonwealth or of the States. It will not reduce the army of State employees in either sphere of government, but assuredly will increase them. At the same time the referendum itself will cost the Treasury of the Commonwealth anything between £50,000 and £100,000, and this in face of the fact that no time has elapsed since the people flatly refused to grant the very powers now asked for. "This is a people's question," the Government says, yet, in placing it once more before the people so soon after its rejection the Government flouts the very people whom it pretends to serve.

Then we are told, in the apologia for insistence that the people should reverse their earlier finding, and that the Labour party will before using any of the new powers pass the Initiative and Referendum Bill which "gives the electors powers to veto any measure of which they do not approve." But what does this mean? Does it not mean that further scores of thousands of pounds of the taxpayers' money will have to be expended to put the popular veto upon unpopular measures? A cheery proposal, indeed, for the already over-burdened taxpayer. "Every Parliament in the Empire has the powers asked for," so the apologists say, but they fail to add that if the Constitution be altered as proposed there will be six Parliaments in the Commonwealth that do not possess these powers, as against but one now. In the framing of the Constitution it was decided that some powers should be delegated to the Federal Parliament and others reserved to the States. It is not possible to aggrandise the Commonwealth without diminishing the powers of the States. Not that we should regard this as a very cogent argument in itself, but it shows what those who state the case for the referendum are endeavouring to force down the throats of the people whose honest guides and humble servants they pretend to be. Labour to-day is stronger relatively in the Commonwealth than in the States, therefore the Commonwealth must be aggrandised and the States dwarfed. Such is the policy of the party in power. How different from the attitude of these self-same men in pre-Federation days, when they feared that Labour would be a negligible factor in Federal politics.

One argument is used that may carry some weight among an unthinking class. The cost of living undoubtedly has increased of late. This is said to be due to the war, and we are told that there are business concerns which are reaping huge profits as the results. "Many have made, and are still making, great fortunes out of this war, many more are making higher profits than in peace time, and, despite protestations to the contrary, surprisingly few great companies and capitalists have been seriously affected by the war." So it is contended. There is only one answer that can profitably be given to such a statement, and that is that it is a deliberate untruth, and that the Government well knows it. The incomes of the great majority of corporations and private individuals have been very materially cut down as the result of the war. Everyone at all acquainted with the facts knows that this is so. Anyone who wishes to ascertain the facts can do so in a few minutes. No one has any particular sympathy with those who have turned the war to their personal advantage, but these are surprisingly few. The number that has suffered very acutely is enormously great. These are facts of common knowledge. Had the Government stuck to its guns and refused to amend its income tax proposals so as to make the year of taxable income coincide with the war period, instead of partly preceding it, the receipts at the Treasury would have been hundreds of thousands of pounds greater than they will be, and the Government is well aware of that fact. The cost of living has certainly gone up of late in a most regrettable manner, partly because of the war interfering with transport, a factor that the Commonwealth is helpless to remove, whether these additional powers be granted or not. Partly, and more particularly, the cost of living has increased because of the drought; and lastly, but not least, prices have advanced because the hand of the Government has been so heavy that an ever-growing burden has been placed upon the people. There is now no proposal to reduce this burden, but there is one to increase it.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Governor-General, accompanied by Mr. J. A. Jensen, Minister for the Navy, left Sydney yesterday on a visit of inspection to Port Stephens. His Excellency will return to Sydney to-day.

The Governor-General on Monday morning inspected the visiting contingent of the 106th Sikh Grenadiers prior to their departure for India. His Excellency subsequently warmly complimented the officer commanding, Lieutenant Hastings, on the splendid appearance and soldierly bearing of the men.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Fisher, left Sydney last night for Melbourne.

The Lord Mayor of Melbourne, Sir David Hennessy, will be re-elected to that position on Saturday for the fourth consecutive year, which is a record.

Mr. Justice Ewing, of the Tasmanian Supreme Court, is on a visit to Sydney. He was recently appointed in succession to Mr. Justice Dobbie. Prior to his elevation to the Bench, Mr. Justice Ewing was a well-known politician in Tasmania, and for some time was leader of the Opposition in the Legislative Assembly there. At the invitation of Mr. Justice Isaacs, Mr. Justice Ewing occupied a seat on the Bench in the High Court yesterday.

Mr. Richard Barrows, the Victorian Consul for Chili, is spending race week in Sydney, with Mr. William Brown, the local Chilian Consul, and one of the State's largest horse-breeders and racing men.

SERUMS.

FEDERAL MANUFACTURE OPPOSED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Efforts are being made to induce the Minister for Customs (Mr. Tudor) to abandon the proposal favoured by Dr. J. H. L. Cumpston, Director of Quarantine, that the Federal Government should establish an institution for the manufacture of serums, anti-toxins, and vaccines. Mr. Tudor states, however, that he intends to submit the scheme to the Cabinet.

MOTOR CAR OWNERS.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR FRIDAY.

The Red Cross Society desires to notify to motor car owners who were asked to furnish cars to meet the wounded arriving on Thursday that the time of the arrival of the transport has now been altered to some time on Friday. Car owners who have already replied, making their cars available for Thursday, are therefore requested to send their cars on Friday instead, and car owners who have not yet replied are requested to treat the request as for Friday, instead of Thursday, as mentioned in the circular. Drivers should call for their badges at the Red Cross office, 224 George-street, at 8.45 on Friday morning.

MUNITIONS METAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Federal Attorney-General says there is "no truth whatever" in my statement—that it is, indeed, the very opposite of the truth. Perhaps Mr. Hughes will now be good enough to give me, with other producers of these rare minerals, the opportunity of making these statements upon oath, and to allow miners working molybdenite, wolfram, and scheelite, in isolated parts of the Commonwealth, to give evidence by sworn declaration.

Certainly somebody should go to gaol over this muddle, and if there has been no "hold up" in Australia of these rare minerals; if production has not been curtailed by any Federal action; if the industry throughout the Commonwealth is not jeopardised by unnecessary conditions in respect to grade and purity; if all I have said is a myth, and—in the words of the Attorney-General—there is "no truth whatever" in my statement, then it should be myself. On the other hand, if it is true that for two months all shipments of these indispensable minerals ceased; that large quantities were taken out of the holds of mail steamers on the eve of departure, which by this time would have been turned into munitions; that appeals for permits to ship were disallowed, and contracts for the British and French armies and navies dishonoured—if these and other sensational revelations, I am, with other producers, prepared to make upon oath, are true, then I claim to have done Australia some service in directing attention to the greatest munition muddle of the war.

Now, in reply to the "complete denial" of Messrs. Dalgety and Co., who say all "marketable" wolfram and molybdenite of the grade specified by the British Government has been shipped with the exception of 30 or 40 tons. But my statement was that 80 per cent. of the Australian production of these minerals cannot be brought up to the grade and purity specified, and therefore must accumulate, or production must cease. Moreover, it is not till a year after the war that these previously unheard-of restrictions are imposed, and they are not even now called for by contractors to the British and French armies and navies, whose engagements with respect to supplies of Australian molybdenite have been broken by a Government proclamation issued only two weeks back, and against their expressed wish to abide by their contracts.

Will Messrs. Dalgety and Co. also completely deny that for two months all shipments of these minerals were stopped throughout the Commonwealth; that their present undertaking to take prompt delivery is only after this long uncalled for delay; that the standards of this extraordinary proclamation shut out the great bulk of Australia's output, and will shut up most of our mines if persisted in? If they cannot deny these assertions, then the public will regard it as a complete admission on their part.

I am, etc.,
J. E. SCANTLEBURY.

HIGH COMMISSIONER.

STATEMENT BY PRIME MINISTER.

FEDERAL AND STATES' BORROWING.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Andrew Fisher, returned to Sydney yesterday after spending a few days on the mountains, and in conversation with a "Herald" reporter last evening he stated that both himself and Mrs. Fisher, who accompanied him, were delighted with their trip to the Jenolan Caves.

"It was my first visit," said Mr. Fisher, "and I would like to say that, in my opinion, the caves are not advertised half enough."

Mr. Fisher's health has much improved of late, and he stated that by the time he got back to Melbourne—about Tuesday of next week—he expected to be quite ready for "the collar" again. He left last night for Canberra, where he intends spending a few days, and then he will visit the Naval College at Jervis Bay, which he has not seen since the buildings were begun.

The Prime Minister was questioned on the subject of the High Commissionership in London. "There is really nothing fresh to say on the subject," he said. "As you know, Sir George Reid's term of office is drawing to a close, and we have definitely decided that his place shall be taken by someone representing our views. The Cabinet has not yet considered the question of appointing a successor to Sir George Reid, but of course it will have to do so very soon."

Mr. Fisher was not to be drawn on the question of his own appointment to the position. "I can only say that Cabinet has not yet considered it," he said. And in reference to certain "presentations" that were made at a recent private function, at which he and some other Ministers and Mr. Joseph Cook (leader of the Federal Opposition) were entertained by the Oversea Representatives, he added, "I have seen it stated that in acknowledging the presentation of an anchor, I remarked that I was anchored to Australia. As a matter of fact, I was not there at the time, but I believe the remark was made that it was to be hoped I would remain anchored to Australia. Mr. Tudor, I believe, was presented with a buoy, and Mr. Cook with a gun—to blow up the Government, I suppose. It was harmless frivolity. All I can say," said Mr. Fisher, with an enigmatic smile, "is that I shall at all times be anchored to Australia, whether I am here or elsewhere."

Commenting on the success of the Anglo-French loan in the United States, the Prime Minister, who is also the Commonwealth Treasurer, said it simply went to show that the credit was good—"good enough to raise money in any country."

Referring to the finances of the Commonwealth and States, he said that another Commonwealth loan would be necessary next year, but the amount would depend on circumstances. "At present," said Mr. Fisher, "we are spending at the rate of £1,000,000 a week. In regard to separate borrowing by the States, I understand that the matter has not been finally settled by the Premiers, and that a further conference is to be held. It is quite possible that we may come to some mutual arrangement. I had hoped to have a chat with Mr. Holman on the subject, but I have not yet had an opportunity."

Mention was made of the big recruiting rally arranged by the British Labour party, and Mr. Fisher stated that so far as he was aware the Labour party at home had made no special effort in this connection up till now. He quite approved of what was now being done. "Here," he added, "we have been conducting our recruiting campaign all the time. We must remember that the conditions are totally different. In the old country the Labour party is only a third party; here it is the governing party."

LONESOME PINE.

LEICHHARDT MAN'S ACCOUNT.

"ALL MEN WANTED."

The following interesting letter was sent by Private A. W. Dunn, of 132 Elswick-street, Leichhardt, to his wife on August 12. The private was then resting on board a hospital ship:—

"Owing to the will of a divine Providence, I came out of a very heavy four days' fighting with the enemy scathless on the afternoon of August 6. The O.C., 1st Brigade, informed us that the naval and military forces were going to bombard a position called The Lonesome Pine.

"The bombardment was for one hour—4.30 p.m. till 5.30 p.m.—and then the four battalions which comprised the brigade jumped out of their trenches, which were 9ft. high, and charged the enemy's trenches, which were from 80 to 100 yards in front of us, with fixed bayonets. While the bombardment was going on we could hear the pitter-patter of the Turk's bullets against our sand-bags; nevertheless, at 5.30 p.m. the order was given to charge. Wilson and I were together over the trenches, but we got mixed up in running across, and I lost the run of him; anyhow, I got safely across, while hundreds were falling like skittles. What was left of us occupied the Turk's trenches, and we bayoneted them out. About two hours after the trenches were filled with dead, wounded, and dying, four feet deep in some places; so you can imagine what a hot time it was; and as the night wore on the Turks were bringing up reinforcements to try to retake the position.

"We captured five machine guns and about 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition, which we are using against the Turks. The Turks made a great effort to bomb us out, but we were quite equal to the occasion. They came up in droves, and were mowed down like grass, but the attack cost us dearly. There are 1000 men in a battalion, and four battalions to a brigade—4000 in all—and we fought from 5.30 p.m. Friday, August 6, till 1 a.m. Monday, August 9, without a wink of sleep. We got relieved at 11 a.m., and then marched to our base for a roll-call; only 220 answered the call, so you can see what a rough time we had of it. Jack Wilson was not there. I made various inquiries about him from members of our battalion, and was informed that he was shot in the leg and arm while running across. Where he is now I cannot say, but in all probability he is in hospital.

"After we got relieved I could hardly see or stand up with exhaustion. Next morning I was covered in perspiration, and could not get up. Others were in the same state; too long without sleep; over 80 hours blazing away with the rifle; had them smashed in my hand, but except for a few minor cuts I am uninjured. Anyhow, during the day I saw a doctor; my temperature was 102, and he informed me that it was fever and ague, and I had a day's spell with the rest of my battalion. The next day I was worse; temperature 104.8. The doctor ordered me for a rest, and at present I am on this ship, which is a hospital boat. There are over 2000 on board, sick and wounded. Ten deaths have occurred here, and the bodies were buried at sea.

"The sight on board is awful, most of the men being British Tommies, who have legs and arms shot off, most of them being cut up the first day they landed. As soon as I get fixed up I will get back to the firing line again, as we are all badly wanted. This war with Turkey, in my opinion, has only started, for there are miles upon miles of trenches yet to capture and hold before they are beaten.

STATE CABINET.

The State Cabinet met yesterday, and afterwards the Premier announced that it had been "decided to go on with the bill to make provision for the children at the Randwick Asylum who are being ousted by Senator Pearce's action."

It was also stated by Mr. Holman that a report had been received that three types of machine guns were being made at Walsh Island. One had been invented by the State Works, another by somebody outside, while the third was a British design, of which ten replicas were being made. The matter of aeroplane building was proceeding satisfactorily, and a slight hitch had occurred in connection with shell-making. He had no doubt that the State tender would eventually be accepted.

BULGARIA'S TERMS.

CESSION OF MACEDONIA.

STATEMENT BY M. RADOSLAVOFF.

ABSOLUTE GUARANTEES.

The "United Press" of New York publishes the following interview, which its special representative, Mr. Henry Wood, has had with M. Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian Premier:—

"Bulgaria is fully prepared and waiting to enter into the present war the moment absolute guarantees are given her that by so doing she will attain that for which the other nations already engaged are striving, namely, the realisation of her national ideals. The bulk of these aspirations are comprised in Serbian Macedonia, which, with its 1,500,000 Bulgarian population, was pledged and assigned to us following upon the first Balkan war, and is still ours by the right principles of nationality. When the Triple Entente can assure us that this territory will be returned to Bulgaria, and our minor claims in Grecian Macedonia and elsewhere realised, they will find us ready and waiting to fight with them. But these guarantees must be real and absolute. No mere paper ones can be accepted. Only certainty on this point can induce the Bulgarians again to pour out their blood."

The foregoing statement was made to me by the Bulgarian Premier, M. Radoslavoff, who, more than any other man, is to-day conceded by European diplomatic circles to hold in his hands the future destinies of Europe. By the vicissitudes of the present war, and also by her geographical position, Bulgaria, which is one of the smallest in the European family of nations, has come very largely to hold the key to the present European conflict. An attack on Turkey from the rear, the rapid fall of Constantinople, the passage of the Dardanelles, and the carrying of munitions into Russia would, diplomats frankly admit, probably prove the turning-point in the war for the Allies.

By continuing her neutrality Bulgaria, it is likewise conceded, can, to Germany's advantage, seriously, if not indefinitely, delay the attainment of these ends. Since the crystallisation of this new situation Sofia has suddenly become the centre of the most extensive and aggressive diplomatic action since the war began. Diplomatic agents of every Great Power involved in the present conflict swarm there, and day and night their pressure centres on M. Radoslavoff, with whom lies the momentous decision, with its portentous consequences for all Europe.

GERMANY'S OFFER.

As Bulgaria's leading man of letters, he spoke with the slow, calm dispassionateness of a man accustomed to quiet study and contemplation, but also with the clean-cut incisiveness of the statesman who, during Bulgaria's most critical moment, proved his worth. "Unfortunately," he said, "our aspirations, if realised as the result of the present war, are not attainable by the direct force of our own arms. We cannot go and take the territories which we feel are rightfully ours. Instead, they must be ceded to us by others in compensation for the concourse of our arms in the general conflict. We have therefore accepted frankly and openly the offers of both groups of Powers to negotiate to the end. Only by dealing with both sides do we feel we can secure the best guarantees that what we desire will be attained. On the part of the Entente we are asked for a direct participation in the war with the full concourse of our entire army, whose valour the whole world knows. On the part of Germany, Austria, and Turkey we are only asked for a continuation of our neutrality till the end of the war.

"Candidly, this latter we are loth to grant. We cannot foretell what the future holds for us. To discount it entirely would be impolitic indeed. The continuation of our neutrality for a lesser period we might concede, but whether we remain neutral or whether we fight, the end to be gained by us and the motives governing our decision remain always the same. In these negotiations we have no disposition to gain time. We seek only to gain absolute guarantees for the realisation of our national ideals. To understand what these mean it is essential that all should know that Bulgaria now has living outside her borders nearly 3,000,000 Bulgarians. The bulk of these inhabit districts contiguous to us, in which they constitute the majority, and whom our national ideal has united to the Fatherland. Of this total number half a million inhabit Bessarabia, and another 300,000 Roumania. Others are in Thrace, while finally the great bulk—a million and a half—inhabit Serbian and Grecian Macedonia. It is there, we frankly admit, that the bulk of our national aspirations also lies, and it is from there also that thousands, rather than live under a foreign yoke, have become refugees here. It is also almost exclusively from amongst them and for the same reason that the Bulgarians now in the United States have emigrated.

"This lack of a united Fatherland creates for us and for them a situation as real as it is difficult. Already we have over 100,000 refugees largely from Serbian and Grecian Macedonia. Indeed, half the population at Sofia consists of refugees. These come without work or means of support. We cannot refuse to receive them.

"THE ONLY SOLUTION."

"They are our brothers—of our own blood. Sometimes they bring epidemics with them from the territories from which they have fled, which become a menace to us and to Europe generally. Nevertheless, we have provided for all these as best we can. Your own American sanitary philanthropic missions have accomplished wonders amongst them, but that can never be a real solution of the problem. The only real solution is a united Fatherland, and that is why our people, who have already known the horrors of two wars, are again ready to pour out their blood. Only this time they must have real guarantees that the end for which their blood is shed, the same end for which it was shed during the previous wars, will not be frustrated. That, too, I frankly state, is our only aspiration.

"Amongst some Powers there is uneasiness lest, should Bulgaria go to the rescue of the Allies in the Dardanelles, her aspirations might not fall short of Constantinople. Those fears are groundless. The international, commercial, and political responsibilities attaching to a city occupying the geographical position of Constantinople would be far too great for a nation that must always remain small like Bulgaria. Above all, the call of race is not to us from that side. While Bulgaria is quite ready to participate in the war, she does not underestimate the cost. She knows Turkey is strong, far stronger than Europe yet realises. Nevertheless, we are prepared for every eventuality. The fatigue which our army naturally felt at the close of two successive wars has passed, and it is in better condition and better equipped than ever. Organised on the Russian military system, its officers have also studied in all the leading European military schools, and the army has now incorporated in it the best to be found everywhere. The nation, too, is provisioned and prepared as never before, but we can only fight for one end, and for an end that must be guaranteed to us beyond doubt. If we are asked to fight alone, we are ready. If we are asked to fight with a new Balkan alliance, our willingness remains the same, but also on the same condition. Give us back Serbian Macedonia is all we ask, and then we will fight in the way we can serve you best."

The Parliamentary Socialists have addressed a letter to the Premier, demanding, at this critical moment in their country's history, that the people's representatives should be consulted. They remind him of his declaration that nothing should be done without the approval of Parliament, and point out that any thing in the nature of a fait accompli at this juncture would be dangerous. They insist that the Premier should convoke a special session of Parliament. The opposition leaders have passed a resolution on similar lines, and demand, at the same time, that the Premier explain the situation to the country.

A SOLDIER'S APPEAL.

WARM WORDS FOR THE SHIRKERS.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

Privates Sloan and Wilton, two returned wounded soldiers, arrived home last night, and were accorded a civic reception. In returning thanks, Private Wilton emphasised the need for every able-bodied man without encumbrance to volunteer. He said those that were in a position to volunteer and did not do so were practically murderers, because they were content to allow their fellow Australians at Gallipoli to remain without support, and thus be killed. He had lost the sight of one eye, but he would return to the fighting line if the military authorities would have him rather than that his mates over there should go without support.

NO REPLY TO RUSSIA FROM BULGARIA.

MACEDONIA.

REPORTED ALLIED LANDING.

At a late hour on Monday (the Russian ultimatum expired at 2 o'clock—London time—on Monday afternoon) no reply had been received from Bulgaria.

Reuter's Agency in London says that, owing to recent developments, the Bulgarian Government must be taken to have rejected the Allies' proposals.

The Opposition leaders in Bulgaria, in a dramatic interview with King Ferdinand, protested against the pro-German policy of the Government.

A report of the landing of an Anglo-French force at Salonica lacks official confirmation, but the Greek newspapers comment on the clear assumption that the landing is progressing or has been completed.

It is reported from Rome that two powerful Russian squadrons are threatening Varna (a fortified Bulgarian port on the Black Sea).

The Greek Premier has issued a formal protest against the landing of the Anglo-French force.

An unofficial Paris message says that the bombardment of the German second line positions continues in preparation for another assault.

The Germans occupied part of the Russian trenches near Dvinsk. The Russians counter-attacked, and re-occupied the trenches. The Germans fell back with heavy losses.

EASTERN FRONT.

NEAR DVINSK.

HEAVY LOSSES

SUSTAINED BY GERMANS.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

A Petrograd communique states:—

Near Dvinsk the Germans yesterday opened a heavy fire on our regiments, and occupied part of our trenches, but we counter-attacked, and reoccupied them. The Germans fell back with heavy losses. We reoccupied the trenches near the river at Madziolki.

We carried a village in the Koziany region (north-east of Vilna), capturing prisoners and quick-firers. We dislodged the Germans at the point of the bayonet from other villages. Our troops on the Spiaglitzy River passed to the western bank, and took three hundred German prisoners, many quick-firers, and other trophies.

ENEMY REPORT.

A Berlin communique says: The Russians after strong artillery preparation attacked General von Hindenburg's forces between Postawy and Smorgon (south-east of Vilna). The attacks collapsed with heavy enemy losses.

H.M.S. GOLIATH.

DESTROYER'S DARING.

PARIS, Oct. 4.

A romantic story is being circulated in connection with the sinking of the British battleship Goliath. Fourteen destroyers, divided in parallel lines, protected the battleship. The destroyers alternately steamed slowly up-stream and drifted back again. The night was very dark, and the look-out on the Goliath towards midnight thought he noticed eight destroyers in one line instead of seven. Then a torpedo struck the Goliath. It appears that a Turkish destroyer, German manned, slipped into the British line of destroyers and awaited the moment to torpedo the Goliath at 500 yards.

[On June 6 a German correspondent at Constantinople wrote that the destroyer Muavenet, in command of Lieut. Firle, and whose crew included 16 Germans, crept down the Dardanelles after sunset and found two British ships. The Muavenet's torpedo tubes were manned at 1 o'clock. Meanwhile the British sighted the destroyer. When within easy range the Muavenet discharged her first torpedo, which struck the Goliath under the bridge, the second hit her between the funnels, and the third on the quarter. A dull explosion and a sheet of flame followed, and the battleship sank in three minutes. The Muavenet doubled back at full speed, and when the British destroyers closed on her they were received by a hail of shot and shell from the coast defences.]

WESTERN FRONT.

ANGLO-FRENCH ATTACK.

BOMBARDMENT CONTINUES.

GERMANS USE SUFFOCATING SHELLS.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

A Paris communique says:—Northward of Arras our progress has been continued at Givenchy Wood and Hill 119, where we occupied the crossroads. One of our air squadrons dropped 40 large calibre bombs on Sablons railway station, at Metz. Other aeroplanes carried on a bombardment of railways, junctions, and stations behind the German front.

The enemy in the Champagne continued to fire suffocating shells into our positions and the lines behind our front. Our artillery replied very energetically.

SILENCE IN GERMANY.

The Press Bureau has issued a French official statement, which points out that in order to allay uneasiness in Germany the German headquarters has announced nothing regarding the recent victories of the Allies in the Artois and the Champagne, except the retreat of one division. The German headquarters is silent regarding the capture of 25,000 prisoners and 150 guns.

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S REPORT.

Sir John French in a report says: The enemy on Sunday afternoon delivered a heavy bombardment, followed by repeated attacks over the open against our trenches between the Quarries and Vermelles, on the Hulluch road. The attacks were pressed with determination, but were all repulsed with severe loss, the enemy failing to reach our trenches. The enemy further to the north west succeeded in recapturing the greater portion of the Hohenzollern redoubt.

PREPARING FOR ANOTHER ASSAULT.

It is reported from Paris that the bombardment of the German second line positions continues in preparation for another assault. The Germans are not allowed to know whether the same points or entirely different points are threatened. Critics point out that only three British army corps were deeply engaged on September 25. Sir John French, therefore, possesses ample troops for a further advance. Meanwhile, time is being allowed the German reserves to exhaust themselves in counter attacks, in which they are losing heavily. Meanwhile the French and British are clearing up the ground won in the recent advance. The new method of attack by an overwhelming force over a large area necessitates the capture of the first line of trenches, then a rush beyond the system of blockhouses and isolated machine-gun pits, which form the advance works of the second line.

During the recent charges the French did not stop to take each work, but sped on until further advance was impossible, without further artillery preparation. The troops then dug in, usually linking up a line of shell craters. An attack on isolated fortifications followed. For example, a commanding height at Butte De Mesnil—600 feet—resisted until yesterday, through being left behind when the French attacks swept forward a week ago. Machine guns on the summit continually enfiladed the French lines, and their capture greatly consolidated the French position. Many machine-gun positions were cemented and armoured, and so covered with earth and grass that the attackers were at first unable to distinguish the source of the deadly stream of bullets. These were besieged for a week, bombed with grenades, and carried at the point of the bayonet.

THE MAGIC ORDER.

A well-known Rugby footballer, who was in the fighting on September 25, writes: "It was a real live battle. The magic order, 'Over the parapet' came at 6.30. We advanced in short rushes practically the whole day, the Germans meanwhile playing skittles with us. Naturally our losses were heavy, but we had the surprise of our lives in the afternoon. The fact was, though we were unable to see it, the Germans had been practically rounded up like rabbits. Just as we expected the climax, the Germans came out unarmed, with white flags. When they were all there they seemed to altogether outnumber us. It was a wonderful sight, and worth all the months of waiting. When the Germans surrendered it was like the end of an international 'rugger' match. Everybody walked across the ground as if the war was over, and there was no more need for cover. We were fighting every day since, until relieved after a week."

GERMAN VERSION.

German headquarters explain that the retirement from the first lines during the recent offensive was not due to the English commander's abilities, but in consequence of a successful surprise attack with intoxicating gases. The German staff calculates that the French casualties were 130,000, and the British 60,000; while the Germans did not lose a fifth of the number.

A Berlin communique says: Five monitors unsuccessfully bombarded Zeebrugge yesterday, killing three Belgians. Our offensive against the British front is progressing. The French successfully hold a small portion of a trench north-west of Givenchy (in the Artois). We repulsed their attacks elsewhere.

We also repelled attacks at Massiges and Ville Sur Tourbe (in the Champagne), and caught their troops in concentrations by our fire, inflicting heavy losses. Our airship successfully bombed Chalons station.

GERMANY AND AMERICA.

THE ARABIC CASE.

A message from Washington states that following a conference between President Wilson and Mr. Lansing (Secretary of State) to consider Count Bernstorff's last Arabic Note, it was announced that Germany had failed to satisfy the Government's requests that Germany disavow the sinking and assume liability. It is stated, therefore, that final refusal to meet the American view may lead to a rupture of diplomatic relations.

Naval officers assigned to examine the metal found aboard the Hesperian are virtually convinced that a mine wrecked her.

THE BALKANS.

BULGARIA.

NO REPLY TO RUSSIA.

ANGLO-FRENCH LANDING.

REPORTED AT SALONICA.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

The Balkan situation is the all-absorbing topic in London. Interest has been transferred from the British offensive in the western front. The Russian ultimatum expired at 2 o'clock this (Monday) afternoon (London time). The evening papers are awaited with most intense eagerness. The newspapers discuss the result in the event of Bulgaria taking part in the war, and publish frontier maps, with special articles, showing the strength of the Balkan States.

Reuter's agency in London learns that at a late hour on Monday no reply to the Russian ultimatum had been received from Bulgaria. Owing to recent developments, the Bulgarian Government must be taken to have rejected the Allies' proposals, to which no answer has been returned, consequently the proposals have lapsed.

The Bucharest correspondent of the "Messagero" (a Rome newspaper) says that General Savoff has gone to Berlin to explain the situation of the Bulgarian army, and to ask Germany for immediate military support.

ACTIVITY IN ROUMANIA.

Advices received in Rome from Bucharest report the greatest activity is apparent in Roumania, in precautionary military measures. "Secolo," says the Roumanian Government is greatly impressed by the possibility of hundreds of thousands of the Entente armies landing on the Balkans.

The "Corriere Della Sera" (a Milan newspaper) says that General von Mackensen has arrived at Temesvar. It is reported that 100,000 men have been transferred from Bukowina to the Servian frontier. Germany is withdrawing large forces from the Carpathians, leaving a small nucleus. Russia will shortly send 20,000 troops to Servia's assistance.

It is reported from Athens immediately the Turco-Bulgarian agreement was signed Turkey evacuated the fortresses on the Bulgarian frontier, and transferred 80,000 troops, mostly untrained recruits, to a fortified line between the capital and the Dardanelles.

Dr. Radoslavoff (Premier of Bulgaria) told a prominent politician: "It would be better for us not to gain an inch of territory than see an extension of Greece and Servia."

It is reported from Rome that 550 Bulgarians, in order to escape mobilisation, landed in Italy, and are emigrating to America. They describe mobilisation as very unpopular with the Bulgarians.

The Rome newspaper "Tribuna" states that two powerful Russian squadrons are threatening Varna (a fortified Bulgarian town on the Black Sea).

MARTIAL LAW IN SOFIA.

The Paris "Temps" states that Sofia is practically under martial law. The price of bread has been fixed. Meetings are prohibited. The Municipal Council has decided to name three of the principal Sofia squares Berlin, Budapest, and Vienna, respectively. German and Bulgarian songs are sung in the cafes, payments made in marks, and many other Teutonising signs are apparent.

The "Petit Parisien" publishes a statement of a traveller from Bulgaria who says:—The rulers in Sofia are fooling the public. One day they issue proclamations that the army is going to march against Turkey, and the next day they proclaim that the mobilisation is against Servia. Veteran soldiers declare they will not fight against their old Russian comrades. Most of the troops lack enthusiasm. It is reported that Germany is allowing Bulgaria a monthly indemnity of fifty million marks.

An Athens message says the Government has taken possession of three railway lines in Macedonia. Of these, two are worked by Austrian companies and one by a French company.

Six German airmen have arrived in Sofia, and skilled labourers are leaving Constantinople in groups for Bulgaria.

It is reported from Bucharest that the Bulgarian War Ministry have to submit all orders for the approval of Austrian and German officers.

A correspondent of the newspaper "Epoca" states that the Austro-German artillery moving towards Servia include 17in guns. It is expected that General von Mackensen will establish his headquarters at Versecz, 50 miles north-east of Belgrade.

The "Petit Parisien's" correspondent in Sofia says that Germany, in order to obtain the intervention of Bulgaria, guaranteed the neutrality of Greece and Roumania, without really knowing the attitude of either.

DRAMATIC INTERVIEW.

The "Daily Telegraph's" Rome correspondent publishes a verbatim report of the dramatic interview between King Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, and the Opposition leaders last month, when the latter protested against the pro-German policy of the Government.

M. Malinoff, a Democratic leader, addressing the King, said the Government's policy was to throw Bulgaria into the arms of Germany, contrary to the aspiration and interests of the country. "If the Government obstinately continues," he added, "it will provoke disturbances of the greatest gravity."

The King did not reply.

M. Stambulivski, a sturdy rustic, who wore a labourer's blouse, said, speaking on behalf of every farmer in Bulgaria, he held the King personally responsible for the disastrous adventure in 1913. It would be irreparable if that adventure were repeated. "The nation will not hesitate," he said, "to call you personally to account."

M. Zanoff, leader of the Radicals, said: "Sire, I had sworn never again to set foot in your palace, but the interests of my country compel me to protest at this juncture."

M. Gueshoff, a former Prime Minister, supported the protests.

All the leaders handed written communications summing up their parties' views, and awaited the King's reply for some time.

King Ferdinand rose and said: Gentlemen, I have listened to your threats, and will refer them to the President of the Council of Ministers. He will decide what to do.

A chilly silence followed. The King, pacing to and fro, nervously attempted to change the conversation, but M. Zanoff abruptly intervened. "We cannot on any account," he said, "approve of an anti-Russian policy. If Bulgaria repeats the criminal folly of 1913 it will be a premeditated crime, deserving of punishment."

The King replied frigidly: "The policy which I have decided to follow is that I consider best for the welfare of the country."

M. Stambulivski retorted: "It is a policy which will only bring misfortune, and compromise not only the future of the country but your dynasty, and may cost you your head."

King Ferdinand (astonished): "I don't mind my head; it is already old; rather mind your own."

SALONICA LANDING.

The landing of the Anglo-French Balkan Expeditionary Force has not yet been officially announced, but the Greek newspapers comment on the clear assumption that the landing is progressing, or has been completed. It is generally expected that the Allies will occupy Dede Agach, and the Russians will descend on Varna, where it will be easy to dispose of the few Bulgarian torpedo craft. Russia has organised sufficient tonnage to transport an expeditionary force to Varna. Even a feint to put troops ashore would detain a large Bulgarian army, which would otherwise be available against Servia.

The "Patris," the chief Government organ in Athens, states that any attempt to resist the disembarkation would not be approved by the Greek people. The Central Powers have no right to take exception to Greece's attitude, since Greece has formally protested against the violation of her neutrality.

The "Patris" adds: "Resistance would expose Greece to certain destruction. The Greek Government, by their passive protest, faithfully reflects the counsels Germany gave King Albert before the invasion of Belgium. The Greek people are not failing to manifest feelings of gratitude and traditional sympathy at the prospect of an Anglo-French landing.

ALLIED MINISTERS' STATEMENT.

It is reported from Athens that the news of the projected landing at Salonica has aroused curious uneasiness in Greece, necessitating the British and French Ministers issuing reassuring declarations. Ministers point out that the Allies have a mission to defend the railway against Bulgaria, and to succour Servia. They will also co-operate with Greece, if the latter join the combatants.

The Greek Government has issued a formal protest regarding the landing of troops at Salonica. The public accept the necessity of the step, though they regret that it was unavoidable. The public have been obsessed by a doubt whether Greek territory is to be used for Bulgaria's benefit. A revulsion of feeling has been manifested since Sir Edward Grey's statement, and the nominal breach of neutrality is welcomed.

A well-known Greek politician states that the protest is a pro forma one, and could have been avoided if some mistakes had not been committed. It was absurd to compare it with the violation of Belgian neutrality. Complete unanimity exists among the governing factors. If Bulgaria attacks Servia Greece will go to her ally's assistance.

A Bucharest message states that a Bulgarian patrol opposite Zimnitza, on the Danube, on Tuesday, fired twenty shots at Roumanian fishermen in Roumanian waters, but they were not hit.

SATISFACTION IN ITALY.

The Paris "Matin's" Rome correspondent says the announcement of the landing of troops of the Allies at Salonica, which has been definitely decided, has created extreme satisfaction in Italy, where the prospect of so turbulent a power as Bulgaria establishing itself on the Adriatic could not leave Italy indifferent.

The Greek newspapers refer in a moderate tone to the proposed landing of the Allied forces at Salonika. It is generally realised it is best to passively let events take their course, in view of the Allies' consistently friendly interest in Greece.

GERMAN COMMENTS.

The "Frankfurter Zeitung" (Berlin) says:—"England's threat to land a force at Salonica are attempts to frighten Greece which cannot be taken seriously, as it is impossible to see where the Entente could get 150,000, and, if attempted, Greece would have an urgent interest in preventing the landing. Where England plants her foot she generally stays."

The "Kreuzzeitung" similarly scoffs at the idea of 150,000 landing in support of Servia.

ARMENIAN MASSACRES.

UNITED STATES' ACTION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.

The United States has decided to inform Turkey that unless the massacres in Armenia cease, continuance of friendly relations will be threatened.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

The Central Control Board has decided to further reduce the hours for the sale of alcoholic liquor in London. In future the hours will be from noon to 2.30 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m. A scheme of exemption is being prepared, enabling night-workers on newspapers, docks, and produce markets, to obtain necessary refreshment by means of a system of permits.

The Secretary of State for Home Affairs (Sir J. A. Simon) takes a serious view of the night club evil, and is determined to control it. He is conferring with the military authorities, and will introduce legislation, if necessary. The police at present are not empowered to enter the premises, and the only requisite for starting a club is 5s fee for the license, which anyone may purchase, even if known to the police as undesirable.

Captain Mark Gardner, ten other doctors, twenty-five nurses, fifty orderlies, and a new field hospital—the nation's gift to Russia—are proceeding to Petrograd.

The Australian War Contingent Association has appointed a sub-committee, Madame Ada Crossley being president, to arrange concerts and other entertainments at hospitals where Australian wounded soldiers are patients.

At a political meeting in Capetown a heckler asked General Hertzog whether, if England wins the war, he would favour restoring South-west Africa to the Germans. General Hertzog replied: "Not since we have it. It would be insanity to hand it back again."

The "Vossische Zeitung" (a Berlin newspaper), publishes a long report from Captain Johannes Schmidt, who escaped from a concentration camp in Alexandria Park. He says he escaped on September 2, and slept in a park in London. He tried to enter a London dock as a newspaper vendor, and later, with some drunken workmen, but the docks were too well guarded. Then, disguised as a clergyman, wearing a long black coat and gold eyeglass, he visited cafes. While in London on September 8 he saw a Zeppelin drop bombs and hit a hotel. Next day he boarded a ship disguised and escaped.

The Admiralty has awarded £200 to the officers and crew of the steamer Cottingham, which fouled and damaged a German submarine, and then reported the incident, thus enabling patrol boats to destroy the submarine.

ROLL OF HONOUR.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

Second-lieutenant John Harold Clark, of the Wiltshire Regiment, was killed on September 25. He had been a member of the Australian defence forces.

Mr. Leslie Sweet-Escott, youngest son of Sir E. B. Sweet-Escott (Governor of Fiji), was killed in action in France on September 25.

Captain Robertson Ker-Clark was killed in France on September 26. He was aide-de-camp to two New South Wales Governors, and private secretary to the Governor of New Zealand in 1910. He joined the Seaforth Highlanders at the outbreak of the war.

[The late Captain Robertson Ker-Clark was the son of the late Mr. J. Ker-Clark, a station-owner in the Boggabri district. He was A.D.C. to Lord Beauchamp and the late Sir Harry Rawson (Governors of N.S.W.), and Lord Islington (Governor of New Zealand). He was a nephew of the late Sir John Robertson (an ex-Premier of New South Wales).]

WAR NOTES.

THE BALKAN NEUTRALS.

In view of the part Bulgaria, Greece, and Roumania are likely to play in the world drama in the immediate future, it is of interest to set out their respective figures regarding area, population, and armies. In connection with the latter, it may be stated that in all three cases military service is universal and compulsory, and the figures given are a mere approximation of the armies on a war footing:—

	Area. Sq. M.		Pop.		Army.
Roumania ..	53,489	..	7,508,009	..	400,000
Greece	41,933	..	4,821,300	..	300,000
Bulgaria	43,305	..	4,752,997	..	300,000

ALLIES LAND IN GREECE.

Reading between the lines of this morning's cables it would appear as though the Anglo-French force has actually been landed at Salonika. Notwithstanding the formal protest against the violation of Greek neutrality, it looks highly probable that the operation has been carried out in accordance with a complete understanding with the Greek Government. As to what the Austro-Germans might say about the matter the Greeks have an excellent precedent to quote to them, for they have merely done what the Germans asked King Albert of Belgium to do when his territory was about to be violated—make a protest pro forma, and let it rest at that. Beyond this phase of the matter there is, of course, no parallel between the cases of Greece and Belgium, for—apart from the fact that Belgium's neutrality was guaranteed against just such a contingency as arose—the Entente Powers would assuredly never have dreamed of throwing an armed force into Greece had there been any prospect of such a move being forcibly opposed. At the present stage of the war the Allies would certainly not wantonly add Greece to their enemies. As to the exact sphere in which the Allied expeditionary force will operate we have not yet sufficient information on which to base an opinion. A Salonika message states that it is generally expected that the Allies will occupy Dede Agach, the only Bulgarian port on the Aegean Sea, which is connected by rail with Salonika on the west and Adrianople on the north-east. This would give them a base from which to operate either against Bulgaria or Turkey, and would place them in a position to check an attempt on the part of the Bulgars to go to the assistance of the Turks in Gallipoli. But the Allies would only send the whole of their expeditionary force to Dede Agach if they were quite confident of the army in Servia being able to hold back the impending Austro-German thrust against that State. Whether the reinforced Servian troops on the Danube are sufficiently strong for this task we have no means of judging, but it seems highly probable that at least a portion of the troops landed at Salonika will be sent north to aid in warding off Von Mackensen's onslaught, for it is essential that no chances should be taken in regard to the Austro-Germans linking up with the Bulgarians.

THE SERBO-ROUMANIAN NECK.

One of the first moves on the part of the Bulgarians when they enter the war—and we may take it that they are practically ranged against the Allies already—will doubtless be to attack Servia on the southern side of that narrow neck of territory mentioned yesterday which links up with Roumania. In this region there is only about 30 miles separating the Austro-Germans from the Bulgarians, and as the former will attempt to drive south the latter will try to drive north, and effect a junction. This is an added reason why at least a portion of the Allied expeditionary force should proceed from Salonika direct to Northern Servia. The Anglo-French troops could be landed at this theatre of operations very speedily, for there is a railway running up from Nish right to the point where the Bulgarian, Servian, and Roumanian borders join. As to the terrain that will have to be fought over if the Austro-Germans are to link up with the Bulgarians; this 30-mile neck of territory represents in itself no slight obstacle to the attackers. In the first place, there is the Danube to be crossed on the north, an operation that would be fraught with tremendous difficulties in the face of well posted artillery, of which we have been led to believe the Servians have now an ample supply. Then, just as the Danube represents the border between Austria and Servia, so is the border between Servia and Bulgaria represented by the river Timok, a stream much narrower and less difficult than the big river, but still a stream well suited to defence. And between these two rivers, occupying the whole width of the 30-mile neck of territory, is the Golubinsk mountains, which are really a southern continuation of the Transylvanian Alps, being separated from the latter by the famous gorge through which the Danube passes—the Iron Gate of Orsova. Thus it will be seen that, with a determined force holding this little 30-mile strip of territory, the Austro-German advance into Bulgaria will, as we remarked yesterday, be far from a parade march.

SUGGESTED RUSSIAN LANDING.

The opinion seems to be generally held that Russia will send an expeditionary force to make a descent upon the Bulgarian coast. She is said to have organised sufficient tonnage to transport a considerable body of troops from Odessa down to Varna or Burgas. These two places are Bulgaria's only ports on the Black Sea. Varna is a fortified harbour about 15 miles south of the Roumanian frontier; Burgas, which is not fortified, is 55 miles further down the coast. They represent the eastern termini of the two main railways running east and west through Bulgaria. The two ports are, roughly, 250 and 300 miles respectively from Odessa. As far as the Bulgarian "navy" is concerned, there would be no serious obstacle in the way of the Russians, for the whole of that navy is comprised of three or four little torpedo vessels. But there is one naval consideration that should make the Russians go warily, and that is the recent report that there were four German submarines in Varna Harbour. If this report proves to be really true then it might seriously influence the Russian plans in connection with a landing on the Bulgarian coast. Apart from the naval side of the matter, any Russian attempt to land would certainly be met with formidable opposition—the Bulgarians would strain every nerve to prevent themselves being taken so completely in the flank. But, as the cables this morning point out, even if the Russians only made a feint at throwing troops ashore, it would have the effect of very materially helping the Allies on the western frontiers of Bulgaria, in that it would detain a big Bulgarian force on the coast that would otherwise have been used on the main front.

"HIGH" AND "LOW" EXPLOSIVES.

The difference between a "high" explosive like that with which shells are charged and a "low" explosive such as is used in a rifle or a gun to propel the bullet or shell is a matter governed by the decomposition of the explosive itself when once it is ignited. A "high" explosive can only be used as a bursting agent, because, if it were used as a propelling agent, it would wreck the chamber of the rifle, for the rise of pressure by its conversion into gases would be so rapid that the bullet could not get out of the barrel of the rifle quick enough, and something would have to smash. On the other hand, a "low" explosive, which is converted into gases not quite as rapidly, is lacking in wrecking effects. A writer in "Engineering," in explaining this in a popular way, points out that with "low" explosives, owing to the gradual rise of pressure, the bullet begins to move down the barrel long before the charge is consumed. Were the bullet fixed during the explosion, the pressure within the chamber would rise to about 100,000lb per square inch; fortunately for the firer, this is not the case, for, although the total pressure continues to rise until the projectile reaches the muzzle, yet the pressure of the gases already formed falls; in an ideal charge the last particle is ignited as the bullet leaves the rifle. Despite the increased space afforded by the projectile's translation along the bore, the pressures are enormous, 51,000lb per square inch in the Mauser, and 42,000lb per square inch in the Lee-Metford rifle, and this in either case means a pressure of about 2000lb on the base of the bullet, a fact which of itself explains why the modern bullet is so energetic and can be so destructive. A "high" explosive detonates rather than burns; its energy does not pass from particle to particle by flame contact, but by a wave motion that traverses the charge at a rate of 19,000ft per second. However, it is impossible to draw a hard-and-fast line between explosives that burn and those that detonate, for sometimes the former get their temperature and pressure so raised by the explosion that the latter part of the charge detonates, and in this way, especially in the earlier days of sporting powders, when their behaviour was less understood, have given rise to accidents from the bursting of the piece.

BRAVE NEW ZEALANDER.

SHOT WHILE SIGNALLING.

The "Central News" special correspondent with the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force tells a fine story of a New Zealander which should go down to posterity. "As an example of sterling pluck it is without precedent. Unfortunately, as in so many other instances, the name of the gallant colonial hero cannot be ascertained. All inquiries have so far failed to produce even the name of his regiment. The story was told me by the Chief Scout of the New Zealanders, who witnessed the spectacle.

"It seems that in the advance one of the men found himself cut off on a high promontory. The Turks were advancing in full force upon him, and the only hope left was for him to surrender. His isolated position, it soon became clear, was due to his having been wounded and overlooked. The strength of the advancing enemy was unknown to us, and the Chief Scout was at his wits' end how to find the required information.

"Judge his astonishment when the wounded man, perched on his excellent point of vantage, began signalling a message. He had not progressed very far when the Turks opened fire upon him. The poor man fell for a moment, but he rose again and resumed his message. Again he was shot down—but he was game. He continued to signal valuable information until six shots had found their mark on him. The last shot disabled one arm, yet the dying man raised himself and waved the completion of his message before he fell back dead.

"There have been hundreds of instances of wonderful pluck," the Chief Scout added, "but I believe that caps them all."

CHIEF RABBI IN FRANCE.

After visiting several hospitals in Boulogne, the Chief Rabbi, accompanied by the Rev. Michael Adler, C.F., was received at general headquarters by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Simms, principal chaplain to the forces in the field (states a London journal). Speaking to Jewish officers and men at the Soldiers' Club, he said that 15 years ago he was engaged in a similar mission to the Jewish troops in the South African War. To-day, however, the cause was immeasurably vaster, nothing less than England's life as a nation being at stake. In the wake of a national disaster there would follow the disruption of the British Empire, which was earth's nearest realisation hitherto of might coupled with justice of power joined to mercy. Such a calamity, he declared, would convulse the whole fabric of the human race. The Jews of the Empire have fully realised the duty of the hour and nobly have they responded to their country's call. As the late Colonel Goldsmid so admirably expressed it, "Loyalty to the flag for which the sun once stood still can only deepen our loyalty to the flag on which the sun never sets." Dr. Hertz and the Rev. Michael Adler were introduced to Sir John French, and later began a tour of the troops stationed near the fighting line.

THE WATCHWORDS.

ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY.

NEEDS OF THE HOUR.

The importance of economy and efficiency was urged by Archbishop Wright, Mr. Meredith Atkinson, M.A., and other speakers at a meeting held in Martin-place during the luncheon hour yesterday to inaugurate what will, it is hoped by the organisers, develop into a national campaign.

The Rev. R. B. S. Hammond, who presided, said that the idea of the meetings, of which this was the first of a series, was to suggest ways and means by which those unable to go to the front might best serve their country. The need of the hour was for them not only to make themselves efficient individually, but to make the whole community efficient. Economy did not necessarily mean spending less, but spending more wisely. (Hear, hear.) Foolish economy might dislocate business and do very great harm.

Archbishop Wright, who was given a good reception, remarked that he felt rather like a cobbler away from his last. When he had been asked in the name of patriotism to give his thoughts on the pressing subject of economy and efficiency, he felt it would have been unpatriotic of him to have said no. Though he was not an expert, he knew that economy and efficiency were being practised in England, and that they had long been practised in Germany, and that the time had arrived for more economy and more efficiency here. Economy did not seem to have been discussed at all in Australia yet. The great thing that mattered was that they must win this war. (Hear, hear.) He wondered if there was any man in that gathering who thought it was immaterial whether they won or not. If there were such a man he would like to—well, educate him. (Laughter.) He would like to teach him for a little while what it meant to live under the German flag and in a conquered province. He would very soon find out the difference. It was for them to consider whether they were doing everything possible toward securing the end that all wished would be speedily attained. The only way to overwhelm the enemy was by a force more effective than his own. They had got to get the most efficiency out of the men and women of Australia, and use their resources to the best advantage. Had they been making the most of their women? He did not know, but one had suggested recently, when some complaints were made about the cooking in the camps, "Why not have asked us about it?" It would probably have had a good effect. Had they made the most of the men? Many men who could not go to the war wanted to know whether their services could not be utilised in some other direction. It seemed to him that some might take up such work as that of special constables, and allow more police to get away. He had been informed that 200 policemen had already gone to the front. Nowadays, when law and order prevailed so much, the police were given the work of compiling electoral rolls, and duties such as that special constables might well take up. That was only one suggestion. How was the great cost of the war, which fell much more heavily on those closer to the scene of conflict than upon us, going to be borne unless the people economised? Efficiency must, of course, accompany any action. As far as Australia was concerned, production must increase, and it would not help if too much money was spent on what was imported from outside. They must begin to save on their luxuries, so that they might have more to spend on their necessities.

"Take your Drink Bill," the Archbishop continued. "I am not preaching teetotalism now, but just asking you some questions. We spend about £20,000,000 annually on drink. Do we need to spend it? I do not think so. That amount loaned to the Government for war purposes would have been a very big help. Take racing. I am told that already at the Randwick meeting something like £100,000 has changed hands. Well that has not been very serviceable to the country at a time like this. I understand this State is the only one that has not reduced the number of its race meetings. What I ask you to do is to spend your money wisely in the interests of national economy and efficiency, and in your spending to exercise restraint from the highest of all motives—patriotism." (Applause.)

Mr. Meredith Atkinson, M.A., said that if the war were merely one of attrition, of wealth against wealth, there would be every ground for easy confidence and optimism. Britain and her Allies had thousands of millions of wealth to their credit in excess of that enjoyed by the Teutonic Allies, and they were greatly superior in regard to numbers. If this war had shown one thing more than another, it was that not mere wealth and population were going to be effective. What was needed most of all was organisation—efficiency and economy—and it was in that respect that Germany was so far ahead. Of late the authorities in Great Britain and here had learnt lessons. They were realising that the thing that counted was not so much the number of men coming forward as effective organisation. The question for them to consider was what could they, as civilians left behind, do to help their country. They could help the Government by welcoming any equitable form of taxation to produce the money required to meet national emergencies. There had, for example, been too much complaint against the Federal taxation. There was not, he claimed, one of them who could not afford to pay a great deal more than the taxes levied. The position should be regarded not from the party, but from the national, standpoint. They could save on luxuries. He did not suggest that the time had come in Australia yet for them to deny themselves of all luxuries, but they could certainly be cut down in a great many cases. They should be prepared to sacrifice even a quarter of their incomes to help in securing victory. Each individual must organise his or her resources, and be prepared for sacrifice. The organisation of Australian democracy was for its own benefit. The few who talked glibly about being as well off under the German as under the British flag did not know what they were talking about. Not only did they require physical efficiency, but it was necessary for many of them to alter their mental attitude in respect to political matters, and take the national instead of the party viewpoint. It was not a question of winning the war in the end—they were all confident about that; it was a question of winning it quickly. (Applause.)

The speakers at the meeting to-day will include ex-Senator Pulsford and Dr. Arthur, M.L.A.

ISLAND MURDERS.

STRICTER CONTROL REQUIRED

TREACHEROUS CHIEFS.

Mr. J. H. Dickinson, a well-known trader and planter in the Solomon Islands, who is at present in Sydney, complains of the lack of control of the Government over the natives, and states that island murders could in many cases be prevented if the Government took definite action against the native chiefs when warnings were received.

Mr. Dickinson's headquarters are at Ugi, but he also has plantations on San Christoval Island. "Eighteen months ago," said Mr. Dickinson, "I was recruiting at the same place where the late Mr. Laycock was murdered recently. On that occasion I had with me as interpreter a native who came from the place we were visiting, but who had been living at the island of Ugi for some time. It landed at Manogeer, a short distance from Waioni Bay. There were a couple of hundred natives on the shore armed with snider rifles, bows and arrows, spears, axes, and clubs. They told me there were four boys to be recruited, but they did not come forward, and my interpreter told me not to stop, as he had heard bad news, and the natives wanted to kill a white man. Later on the chief told the interpreter that he wanted to kill a white man, and the interpreter informed him that there would be a big row if they killed me. The chief eventually agreed not to kill me, if the interpreter paid a fathom of red money. He also asked that the other white man on the recruiting vessel should be induced to go ashore. The interpreter told me we had better clear out, and we returned to the ship.

"Some time afterwards a Roman Catholic missionary told me that I had had a very narrow escape, and that, although I did not know it at the time, the native interpreter had actually paid the red money to save my life.

"I reported the incident when we got to the Government headquarters, and I told as many recruiters as I could to be careful of this place. The Government, after getting a second warning from another recruiter, posted up warning notices regarding this place. The Government, however, took no steps to go to the spot, and look into the matter properly, and bring the chief to book who was to blame."

MORE WOUNDED.

TO ARRIVE TO-DAY.

CONFUSION AS TO DATES.

The matter of ships arriving with wounded and sick on board, apparently owing to the dual control of the navy and army, and instructions from Melbourne, is confusion worse confounded. On Monday information was received early in the day from headquarters, Melbourne, that two ships would arrive this week—one, as already advised, on Tuesday, the other on Thursday. Preparations were accordingly made at No. 4 General Hospital, Randwick, for the reception of the wounded and sick on Tuesday. Late on Monday word came through from Melbourne that no boat would arrive on Tuesday, but that one was expected on Thursday, and orders were issued accordingly. It was further stated at local headquarters of the military that nothing was known of the second vessel referred to in the earlier telegram. Yesterday morning, however, a supplementary telegram arrived from Melbourne conveying the information that the vessel, of which nothing was known the day before, would arrive to-day. It would bring 17 Queenslanders, 41 New South Welshmen, and 1 officer and 22 men for New Zealand. The other vessel, said to be held up in Melbourne owing to defects, was billed to arrive on Thursday morning at 9.30. Last night, however, it was officially advised that this boat will not arrive until some time on Friday, it is hoped in time to disembark on the same day.

The actual position, therefore, is that one ship brings wounded and sick soldiers home to-day, and another on Friday.

The route through the city in the cases of the wounded and sick will be the same as at previous disembarkations, and the same regulations will hold good at No. 4 General Hospital, where those patients, after giving particulars of their injuries and ailments, able to go to relations or friends will be allowed 48 hours' leave before having to report for detailed examinations at the hospital.

LEARNING THE LESSON.

TAKE THE GLOVES OFF.

Writing to the secretary of the British Immigration League (Mr. H. E. Easton) from the London War Office, on August 20, an official says:—

"The German power is at its zenith. Our time will come, and in all probability about the time this letter will be due in Sydney, there will be a great forward movement in the western frontier. But what a ghastly business this lack of preparation has been. And it is pitiful reading, that thousands and thousands of our best and bravest now in their graves might have been alive had our Empire (especially the United Kingdom) taken heed of the warnings which Lord Roberts gave us during the past ten years, and made the necessary preparation.

"In districts especially liable to fire, no one but a fool would neglect to adequately insure. But the Empire, knowing it had been existing for several years past over a boiler likely to suddenly explode, was content to allow its trading community to go on adding dollar to dollar, and its politicians, at the direction or suggestion of our enemies, to very seriously reduce the most effective and needed branch of the army, i.e., the artillery.

"We are still fighting with kid gloves, and, as the conflict is not a boxing match, they will yet have to come off. Had our politicians been game enough to have proclaimed Lord Kitchener as Dictator from the commencement until the end of the war, cotton would have been declared contraband and the North Sea closed. Feeling sorry for American cotton-growers, and other trade and vested interests, has sacrificed good lives and millions of money. Germany at war does not care for vested, or any other interests, or anything else that may cross her path. We can well take a lesson from her in the way she places the needs of her fighting men above those of non-combatants. There is, perhaps, some consolation in knowing that as matters politically were going, had this war come ten years later, the chances are that nothing could have saved the British Empire, especially the far-distant Dominions. I wonder if the lesson will be learned?

"After the late South African war, as you know, I had a great deal to do for the Government over the unemployed question, which reached a crisis during 1905-6-7. Are we going to profit by the bitter experience gained then? Unless the lands of the Empire are organised and utilised, I fear not. Can no one explain that the history of every great war shows that enterprise, capital, and progress are crippled for years? After the close of this great upheaval who will have money to purchase goods? People at home are to-day making plenty of money in connection with the war, but it is well to remember that the free and lavish expenditure of borrowed money indicates a fictitious prosperity for the time being only. There are many cases of work-people here who previous to the war were making from 20s to 40s per week are now receiving from 60s to 144s per week. I fear many are not saving much for the lean years ahead.

"Directly or indirectly to-day there are close on 20 millions of people in the public service, or receiving their livelihood from the State. As soon as the war ceases a very large proportion of their work will cease, and then what will the outlook be for them? The very thought should be sufficient to make the most callous or indifferent person reflect. To-day we have about three millions of the Prince of Wales' Fund left. This sum would not last a week in doles, and I do not think the public would raise another five millions for any cause. And yet the cost of two weeks' war could easily find employment and homes (not charity) on our lands for over a million families, if properly employed. I hope you will bring the contents of this communication before the board of the British Immigration League. Never will the league have a grander or wider field for its activities. Let me know how its campaign in favour of land settlements in Australia is progressing."

BEST CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

MEN AND MUNITIONS.

By a transport which arrived in Melbourne last week came Lieutenant T. A. J. (Jack) Playfair, of the Australian Field Artillery, who prior to the war was an alderman of the Waverley Council, and who last night was the honoured guest of the Mayor and aldermen of that municipality.

Prior to his arrival there had been many rumours afloat that Lieutenant Playfair had been horribly disfigured, and, in fact, from his own story, those who saw him after he was wounded the first time had good grounds on which to base their rumours; but, as he stated yesterday, the doctors are so wonderful that a man who looks a hopeless wreck when carried back from the trenches is not only put together again as good as new in a few weeks, but is able to return to the trenches. This was his own experience, he explained to a "Herald" reporter last night, and one could hardly know that he had been wounded, save for a slight scar on the nose.

"As far as my actual experiences are concerned," said the lieutenant, "I am afraid I cannot tell you a very thrilling story. I went out with the 1st Battery of the Australian Field Artillery, and landed at Anzac Cove on April 26, being attached as a naval forward observing officer to the navy. Of course, it was an underground existence, as we spent most of the time in the trenches taking observations over parapets as occasion arose. It was while I was engaged in taking one of these observations that a Turkish shell burst a couple of feet in front of my face, burying it in stones and sand, and also getting me in the chest. My eyes were full of stones and my face of sand, and, naturally, I was bowled over, and did not regain consciousness until I arrived in No. 17 Hospital at Alexandria some days later. My nose and lips were cut through, but the doctors fixed me up almost as good as new, and in July I returned to duty with my battery at Cape Helles. We put in some interesting work, which I am not even now at liberty to disclose, and on August 6 I was again on forward observing duty. Once more the Turks got one in on me; otherwise they dropped a shell through the roof of the observing station where Lieutenant Selmes and I were doing duty. The shell crashed through the top of our station, and wounded Selmes in the foot and me in the head. We were both conveyed to safety, and I cannot speak too highly of the work of the men of the A.A.M.C. and the stretcher-bearers. They have no chance to hit back or to enjoy the pleasure of a charge; but they go on steadily and quietly and satisfactorily doing their work as if they were only carrying out a demonstration in perfect safety. They are heroes all.

"One or two other things I would just like to say a word about. The flies are awful; but the way we were fed and clothed showed masterly organisation. What are wanted most, though, at Gallipoli, are men and munitions. The more men and munitions Australia sends the surer we are of ultimate victory, and no Christmas presents to the men in the trenches would be half as welcome as a big number of good reinforcements fully trained and equipped."

RECRUITING.

SECOND CAMPAIGN.

TO OPEN ON MONDAY.

The second recruiting campaign in New South Wales—but apparently distinct from the State Parliamentary campaign that has been proposed—will open in the Town Hall on Monday evening. The speakers will be the Governor-General (Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson), the Federal Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes), the leader of the Opposition in the House of Representatives (Mr. J. Cook), the State Premier (Mr. Holman), and the leader of the Opposition in the Legislative Assembly (Mr. Wade).

The campaign will occupy about five or six weeks. This is the estimate given by Mr. Webster, M.P., who has been looking after the arrangements on behalf of the Federal Government. Mr. Webster says that after the State has been traversed by the recruiting speakers other States will be visited in turn. New South Wales has been mapped out into districts, and the north and north-west will be toured by the advocates of recruiting simultaneously with the metropolitan district. Afterwards the South Coast, the North Coast, and the western district will be the scene of the platform operations.

Mr. Webster stated yesterday that he was unable to say which State the recruiting committee would next direct its attention to after finishing its work in New South Wales. It depended on the flow of recruits. If a State was responding well, it would not be visited till after itineraries had been made to the places where the response was not so satisfactory.

STILL A LOW AVERAGE.

At Victoria Barracks 72 men enlisted yesterday, making a total of 135 for the three days of the week to date. At the Town Hall 52 were accepted, and at the Board of Health 38.

The following figures of country enlistments on Monday have been supplied to the Premier by the military authorities:—Goulburn 37, Armidale 3, Narrabri 20, Cootamundra 17, Lithgow 3. Total, 80.

TRAMWAY DISMISSALS.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY.

The select committee appointed to inquire into the case of certain tramway men who were dismissed in connection with the raid made on an alleged gaming-house at Redfern took further evidence at Parliament House yesterday, Mr. Fingleton presiding.

Constable Dein, examined by Mr. A. C. Warton (secretary of the Tramway Employees' Union) said he had reported that the man who had boasted that he had beaten the police was a man of bad repute.

To the Chairman: He saw no actual gambling, but there was evidence of suspicion that gambling had been going on.

Constable N. D. James, of No. 3 Station, Darlinghurst, stated that a tramway employee's wife had complained that her husband had lost his wages gambling at this house.

To Mr. Warton: Witness did not know if the woman who had complained was in reality the wife of a tramway man. He had not made any inquiries in respect to the matter.

The committee adjourned till Thursday afternoon.

An option agreement is to be prepared, for submission to the parties concerned, embodying such terms as may be agreed upon in regard to debenture, interest, currency, convertible rights, etc. The option period to commence from the date of the signing of such agreement.

THE REFERENDUM.

LABOUR BODIES CONFER.

ADDRESS BY MR. HUGHES.

CAMPAIGN INAUGURATED.

A conference of representatives from unions, branches of the Political Labour League, and other Labour bodies was held at the Trades Hall last night to make arrangements for the opening of the referendum campaign. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, M.L.C., president of the executive of the P.L.L. Mr. W. M. Hughes, Commonwealth Attorney-General, Mr. J. H. Cann, Minister for Public Works, Senators Watson, M'Dougall, Mr. J. M. Chanter, M.P., Mr. E. H. Farrar, M.L.C., and Mr. P. C. Evans, general secretary of the P.L.L., occupied seats on the platform. There were over 200 delegates present, including many from country districts.

The chairman said it had been stated that the time was not opportune. But he contended that if Labour could not carry these proposals now it would never do so. They had to consider the end of the war. The party was bound to do its utmost to have the proposals carried.

Mr. W. M. Hughes, who met with a very cordial reception, said that on the last occasion many people of their own party did not agree with the proposals, and many more did not understand them, and had, therefore, voted against them. Arguments for and against the proposals had been circulated amongst the electors. Mr. Cook had, however, declared that to confine him to objections would be too narrow a margin, and be cut short all further argument by saying, "This is not the time." On the other hand Labour said, "This is the time," and that was how the matter stood to-day. Mr. Cook might have remained in power and avoided an election. Labour was prepared to allow him to do this. But he would have an election, with the result that he was put into Opposition. Now, that same gentleman would say that to call on the referendum questions would only arouse party strife. If he (Mr. Hughes) had any idea that the taking of a vote on these referendums would delay the conclusion of the war by one single day he would not be in favour of bringing them on. But he knew the vote would have no effect on the war, and, therefore, the Government was determined that the voice of the people should be taken in December next. (Applause.)

According to the Melbourne daily press, said Mr. Hughes, the Labour party could not do anything right. Not a word was said about the work done in sending away or preparing to send no less than 160,000 recruits. Not a word was said about the fact that 90,000 had already been transported, with the loss of only one man, and that through an accident. In the very natural order of things, something must be done right by a body of conscientious men, yet nothing was right in the eyes of the "Argus."

PARTY STRIFE.

It was absurd to say, continued Mr. Hughes, that the taking of the referendum vote would raise party strife. How could it? Who said so? If there were Labour people in favour of high prices, let them come forth and show themselves. The only people who were opposed to the referendums were the exploiters, who would be against them, war or peace. (Applause.) Would there be one less recruit because of this referendum? The world's tortures had brought fortunes to some men. The British Government had taken action to meet the financial problems. All other Governments in Europe had done the same. Australia was the only national Government that had not the power to promulgate the war to a success. This power would never be complete while the people could be exploited by monopolies. The objection of the exploiters was not so much that the referendum was going to be put, as it was that it was going to be carried. (Applause.) When the proposals were first put to the people they were badly beaten, but when put again in 1912 one of the questions (trusts) was almost carried, the shortage being only 8000 votes in a poll of 2,000,000. If Mr. Cook had put them forward again on the occasion of the last election, when Labour got back to power, they would have been carried. Was it fair that men should be compelled to create a dispute before the Government could take steps to prevent it? (Applause.) The arguments for the referendums would again be circulated amongst the electors, and probably also the arguments against them. The power wanted was such that the Commonwealth Government should make laws to protect the people. This power was already possessed by every other dominion in the Empire. The war was no excuse for postponing the referendums. The Government had, therefore, decided that there would be no further delay in putting to an end the exploitation of the people. The power asked for would not be used for party purposes, but for purely national purposes. He hoped, therefore, that every effort would be put forward to have the proposals carried. (Applause.)

AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN.

Mr. J. H. Cann, Minister for Public Works, moved the following resolution:—

> That in the opinion of this meeting of representatives from unions, P.L.L. branches, and other Labour bodies, an active campaign be immediately inaugurated to give effect to the resolutions carried at the Adelaide conference, and so secure an affirmative majority in answer to the referendum questions to be submitted to the electors of the Commonwealth on December 11, 1915.

It was, he said, simply arguing the ridiculous to say we could not prosecute the war and at the same time vote upon the referendum proposals. It was, therefore, up to the Labour bodies to get a "hustle on" if the Commonwealth was to have the power aimed at. Senator Watson seconded the resolution. He said the time was urgent for the submission of the proposals. Coal miners had had to give 14 days' notice to cease work in order to secure a compulsory conference.

Mr. H. Lamond asked if it was proposed to have a protracted campaign or a short, sharp flutter?

Mr. Hughes said a long campaign was not desirable. The Government proposed to inaugurate its campaign on November 10, and continue it for a month.

Mr. George Dempster (Mascot), an organiser for South Sydney, expressed the hope that there would be no further delay in getting out the rolls. Since the last election 188,000 names had been taken off the roll and only 120,000 put on.

Mr. J. M. Flanagan (Newcastle) contended that organisation should be taken in hand forthwith by the unions and leagues.

Mr. E. H. Farrar, M.L.C., said the idea of the executive was to inaugurate the campaign within the ranks before the Town Hall meeting. To do this it was essential to effective organisation to have the rolls early.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

The President stated that there would be a conference at 10 a.m. the following day for the convenience of country delegates.

DUTY OF ENROLMENT.

In connection with the vote on the referendum proposals, which will take place on December 11, the writ will probably issue on November 2. After the issue of the writ, any comments on the proposals appearing in the press must be signed.

Those entitled to be on the roll have the duty cast upon them under the Electoral Act of seeing that their names are included, and failure to do so is liable to a fine. The public have till the day of the issue of the writ to see that they are duly enrolled.

"IS IT WORTH WHILE?"

LONDON "TIMES" ARTICLE.

We give below the full text of the leading article in the London "Times" of August 13, which was quoted in the official "case against" the Referendum published in yesterday's "Herald."

AUSTRALIAN POLEMICS.

We watch with some concern the course which affairs are taking in the Commonwealth Parliament of Australia. Not that anything which has been happening there has affected in the smallest degree the effort which Australia is making to train, equip, despatch, and maintain the largest possible number of troops for our armies. The politicians of Australia vie with each other in the enthusiasm with which they encourage all this. Apart from it—well, they remain politicians. We do not blame them for that, or think for a moment that there is anything worthy of blame in it. Nor have we any idea of thrusting unasked advice upon the able men who lead the Commonwealth Parliament of Australia. Far from it. But we may be permitted to observe that to read its recent debates in the official record of its proceedings which has just reached us is to experience the feeling of having stepped into another world. For us, since this time last year, the thought of Australia has been thrilled through with a feeling, part gratitude, but chiefly pride. Her men came to our aid so freely and so gaily. Their very known independence of spirit and outlook made the speed and the spontaneity of their rally a particularly splendid thing. We of the British Isles realised—in our slow and voiceless way—all that it meant. Then came the landing in Gallipoli, with its bright, light-hearted heroism, accomplishing the almost impossible through sheer gallant refusal to see how impossible it was. Our minds are still full of the golden memory of that great feat of arms when we think of Australia. We turn to read the debates of its central Parliament. Here all is controversy; violent, partisan, remote altogether, as it seems to us, from the high vision that sent men—clear-sighted and joyful and unafraid—to their death on the dreadful beaches of Gallipoli. The game of party politics goes on. We have no concern with that, but feel impelled to record our opinion that there is something particularly grim about the printed records of such a game, played in these days with so complete an apparent forgetfulness of what is happening in the world outside.

It may, none the less, be worth while to make an effort to understand what it is all about. A general election, which took place shortly after war broke out, drove from power the Liberal party under Mr. Cook, and put in its place a Labour Ministry under Mr. Fisher. The Federal Constitution of Australia gives certain limited powers to the central Government, but reserves very considerable powers to the Governments of the various States. The Labour party has always chafed against these restrictions on the powers of the Federal Government, particularly those which hamper its control over dealings in commodities and over trade combinations. Twice, when they have been in power before, they have framed proposals to amend the Constitution in these respects, and have sent them to a referendum, or special vote, of the whole people. Twice their proposals have been rejected. Now the Labour Government has determined to send them to the vote again. The Liberals protest that this is to raise the most bitter party strife at a time when controversial matters should be allowed to rest. The Labour men retort that at the beginning of the war they proposed a party truce, with the suspension of the elections, and that the Liberals, who were then in power, and thought they would win at the polls, refused the offer with scorn. This is true, but not very helpful at the moment. More pertinent is the Labour contention that the limitation of the powers of the Federal Government is particularly mischievous in war time, and that now is the moment for sweeping away all these hampering restrictions. Moderate Liberals, like Sir William Irvine, have admitted that an amendment of the Constitution is necessary. They admit it still, but say that the moment is inopportune.

We have no title, and not the least desire, to take sides in so domestic a controversy. Much that is said on either side appeals to us as eminently reasonable. The case for amendment of the Constitution, for instance, made by Mr. Hughes, the Attorney-General, in the House of Representatives on June 22, was very strong from the legal point of view. But immediately the doubt suggests itself whether this is the moment for insisting too strongly on the purely legal aspects of such a problem. There is no doubt at all that the Labour proposals, if forced to a vote, are going to plunge Australia into a violent contest. Liberals will resist with all their might, protesting that in doing so they are following the course of true patriotism. Labour men will retort—have already retorted—that all this talk of patriotism is hypocritical nonsense, that the Liberals have always found specious reasons to cloak an interested opposition to Constitutional amendment, and that this appeal to patriotic sentiment is merely another disguise for an opposition as interested as ever. The stream of abuse, innuendo, recrimination which has already flooded the House of Representatives will flow over the whole of Australia. And, meanwhile, in the trenches of Gallipoli, Australians, forgetting all these dusty conflicts of a momentary strife, will be fighting side by side the great fight for freedom under an alien sky. The contrast, we can only suppose, does not seem so strange to the leaders of Australia as it does to us. It is for them to judge. But is it worth while?

VICTORIAN LIBERALS.

THE PARTY SPLIT.

NO-CONFIDENCE MOTION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the Legislative Assembly to-day Mr. M'Leod's motion of want of confidence in the Government came on for discussion. He attacked the Government's actions regarding the regulation of food prices, the raising of fares and freights on the railways, and the curtailing of tram services. He said the State was at present in a more prosperous condition that it had been for many years, while loan expenditure had grown considerably.

The Premier, in replying, said the Government had had to face exceptional times. When it accepted office it did not expect to be popular, but whatever the result of the no-confidence motion, whether he remained Premier or not, there were many difficulties ahead, and if they were not dealt with on broader and bigger lines, it would be bad for the people of Victoria.

The debate was adjourned.

DEFENCE OF THE PACIFIC.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Questioned in the House, Mr. Massey (Prime Minister) said the Imperial Defence policy in the Pacific was a matter for the Imperial Conference to decide. He hoped the conference would meet at an early date, when New Zealand would be represented by the Premier and the Finance Minister, Sir Joseph Ward.

"SPIRIT OF REVENGE."

NOVEL EXCUSE FOR THEFT.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

At the Circuit Court to-day, before the Chief Justice, Sir Wm. Cullen, Ernest Buttrum was convicted of stealing ship's stores, goods, and articles, the property of the King, from the Susanne Vinnen, in the port of Newcastle. Mr. Cowan, instructed by Mr. Braye, appeared for the defendant, who pleaded not guilty. Mr. Breckenridge conducted the case for the Crown.

Many articles were found in the back room of accused's residence. Accused said he took them off the Susanne Vinnen, a German vessel, taken over by the Government shortly after the war broke out.

Accused, in a statement from the dock, said he was placed aboard the Susanne Vinnen as a naval guard in February last. He did not see any harm in taking the stuff for his own use. "There are British ships detained in Germany," said Buttrum, "and how much will be left aboard those vessels after the war? I removed the goods out of a spirit of revenge, and I thought there was no harm in it." Accused added that he had been in the Royal Navy for a number of years, had served in the South African war, and had been given a good discharge certificate. He had also served in the Naval Reserve at Newcastle for the past six years, and was a Government employee for 15 years. He had one son in camp, and had himself volunteered to go to the front.

Accused was remanded for sentence.

LIEUT.-COL. EVERETT'S DEATH

Mr. R. R. P. Hickson has heard by the last mail from his daughter in London particulars of the death of her husband, Lieutenant-Colonel W. F. Everett. He had been ailing for some time in Egypt. Three days after his admittance into Netly military hospital he died of pleurisy and dysentery. He was given a military funeral. Mrs. Everett has received a message from the King and Queen expressing their sympathy, and regretting the loss the army has sustained in the death of her husband.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP.

CANDIDATES ON ACTIVE SERVICE.

The State Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, as chairman of the Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee, desires it to be notified that absence from Sydney on active service will not debar any candidate from appointment to the Rhodes Scholarship. Any candidate about to enlist should communicate immediately with the warden of the University, Mr. H. E. Barff.

The appointment will be made in December as usual.

SMALLPOX.

With regard to the outbreak of smallpox at Newcastle, the Director of Public Health stated yesterday that the 50 cases that had been isolated were of the usual mild type. In some cases, however, Dr. Paton added, the rash was more extensive than was usual.

Out of the 1400 cases of smallpox which had occurred in the State during this and last year there had been no single death due directly to the disease.

STATE SESSION.

GOVERNMENT BILLS.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

Several Government measures were dealt with in the Legislative Assembly last night.

RED CROSS ART UNION.

The Attorney-General stated, in reply to Mr. Haynes, that the Auditor-General's report regarding the Australian Artists' Red Cross Art Union disclosed that the financial records in connection with it were not satisfactory from an audit point of view, and an explanation of certain items was considered desirable. The report, however, did not impute any wrong-doing.

BORDER RAILWAYS.

The Minister for Public Works informed Mr. Ball that the Premier of Victoria had asked that a proposal for the construction of a railway from Henty (N.S.W.) to Yarrawonga (Victoria) be included in the list of proposals to be dealt with by the proposed joint commission on border railways.

RECRUITING EXPENSES.

Mr. Gardiner asked the Premier:—What are the names, the amounts received, and the places visited of all persons, including Ministers of the Crown, members of Parliament, Public servants, and others, who received money from the Government as expenses in connection with recruiting in this State?

Mr. Holman replied: It is not the intention of the Government to publish any information in this connection.

Mr. Gardiner asked if there was any special reason for the Government's refusal to furnish the information?

Mr. Cann, in the absence of the Premier, replied that the question was one for the Premier to answer personally, and asked for it to be directed to him.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

Questions affecting the welfare of returned wounded soldiers occupied the attention of the House for a considerable time. The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Grahame) promised Dr. Arthur that he would give favourable consideration to a suggestion that returned wounded soldiers should be given an opportunity to enter the State agricultural colleges, in view of the fact that there were many vacancies on account of students having gone to the front.

The matter of training wounded men in other avocations was touched upon by Mr. M'Girr, and Mr. Cann stated that a committee had been appointed, which would act for the Federal and State Governments, and endeavour to get the best results for the men concerned.

The position in which the wounded men find themselves in regard to railway travelling was mentioned by several members. Mr. Kearsley cited the case of a man who was compelled to pay his fare when returning to hospital for surgical treatment. Mr. Edden mentioned another case, and Mr. Haynes brought under the Minister's notice the case of a man who, he alleged, had been removed from a railway carriage by two officials at Culcairn because he could not produce his pass.

The Minister stated that there was a regulation by which wounded men were allowed to travel on the railway free of charge, the pass being available for a month. He knew nothing of the cases mentioned, but promised to investigate them if proper representations were made.

PATRIOTIC FUNDS.

The administration of the patriotic funds by the Town Hall authorities was brought up by Mr. Thrower. In a series of questions, he asked if it was not true that as many as a hundred men were attending at the Town Hall daily making inquiries as to whether they could obtain personal relief and relief for their wives and families from the funds. The assistant town clerk was the only person who could interview the men, and, on account of the number of applicants, he could not deal with them. He asked the Government to endeavour to have a proper bureau established at the Town Hall, where all the applications would be dealt with promptly.

The position in which the relatives of railway employees who have volunteered find themselves in respect of collecting the pay of the men at the front was touched upon by Mr. Fallick. He said that the Commissioners were withholding the difference between the men's military pay and their official salaries, and asked the Minister to see that the practice was stopped.

In both the cases mentioned an inquiry was promised.

DELAY AT WHARF.

Mr. Cann also promised Mr. Keegan to have an inquiry made relative to the inconvenience suffered by certain returned soldiers who were compelled to remain on a wharf for a considerable time prior to their removal to hospital.

WILLOUGHBY CONTEST.

Mr. Haynes asked the Premier if he had communicated with the Federal Attorney-General with a view to having him (Mr. Haynes) arrested for certain statements which had been made by him during the Willoughby election campaign? He also desired to know if the regulation of the Lands Department ordering officers not to discuss the war with Germans in the Public Service was still in force.

The Premier replied that, in regard to the first question, he could only say that if the Attorney-General or anyone else had seen his way clear to have the hon. member arrested it would have been conferring a definite boon on the Labour party. (Ministerial laughter.) Any legal advice he received from the Federal Attorney-General or any one else he regarded as being confidential. The other question could not be answered without notice being given. The hon. member must know that he (the Premier) had nothing to do with the regulations of the Lands Department.

SPEAKER'S WELCOME.

Mr. Cusack gave notice of the following motion,—"That, in view of the honourable observance of neutrality by the Government in connection with by-elections since the war broke out, and in view of the vicious and unprecedented circumstances surrounding the Willoughby by-election, the action of Mr. Speaker in welcoming Mr. Haynes to this House was uncalled for, injudicious, and calculated to destroy the respect of Parliament in him."

MEMBERS AND RECRUITING CAMPAIGN.

The leader of the Opposition asked if a recruiting campaign was to be commenced, as announced, on Monday next, and if the House was to adjourn while the Government and hon. members were so engaged?

The Premier said he was not in a position to say that a recruiting campaign would be commenced on Monday next. No decision had been come to by the Government. He understood that a public meeting was to be held on Monday next in connection with the recruiting movement, but he knew nothing about a campaign commencing on that day.

Mr. James then asked would the Premier make a statement clearing members on that side of the House who might be suspected of charging their expenses during the recent recruiting campaign. (Opposition cheers.) It had gone out to the public that members of Parliament had been paid for assisting in the work of recruiting.

The Premier: I will deal with the matter on Wednesday. (Opposition cheers.)

STATE LOAN EXPENDITURE.

Dr. Arthur asked the Premier if his attention had been called to a cable in which it was stated that the Agent-General had written to the London "Times," controverting a certain statement to the effect that the loan expenditure for this State had been cut down to the irreducible minimum.

The Premier replied that in regard to the statement in the London "Times" he could only say, expressing his own opinion, that it might have been better perhaps if the correspondent had obtained his information first-hand from the Government. It did appear, judging by the brief summary which had been cabled to Australia, that the statement had not done justice to New South Wales. (Ministerial cheers.)

LAKE MACQUARIE FISHING.

Mr. Edden moved the adjournment of the House to call attention to the vexatious nature of the regulations issued by the Fisheries Department, preventing prawn-catching on Lake Macquarie. The lake was a holiday resort for the miners of the district, who would be harassed by the restrictions on a stretch of water 40 miles long.

Mr. Black said that the department's action was based on the report made by an inspector to the effect that the fish in Lake Macquarie was being depleted by the miners, who caught young prawns in nets, and in so doing destroyed a large number of young bream and whiting. He promised to inquire into the matter further.

T. M. SLATTERY'S PETITION.

The petition tabled by Mr. Keegan for the adoption of the select committee's report upon the petition of T. M. Slattery was opposed by Mr. Cohen. He analysed the evidence given before the committee, and said that the whole of the facts were not elucidated by the inquiry, and the report was misleading and wrong.

The debate was adjourned.

TEMPORARY PUBLIC SERVANTS. GOVERNMENT BILL.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Hall) moved a resolution affirming the desirability of introducing a bill to enlarge the powers of the Public Service Board, and give it power to place temporary employees upon the permanent staff of the Public Service. In outlining the measure, he said it was a great anomaly to have a huge temporary staff. These men to all intents and purposes were permanent employees in everything but name. About 2000 men were employed on the temporary staff, and it was only common justice to them to extend the powers of the Public Service Board in the direction stated. Before the employees could be placed on the permanent staff certain requirements would have to be filled. In the first place, the man would have to be employed for two years continuously, or for two terms aggregating three years. The board could exercise its powers in cases where the applicants were 50 years of age, and in special cases 55 years of age.

Mr. Price objected strongly to the introduction of the bill. He pointed out many injustices which might be done by the bill, and particularly stressed the point that under it many good men might be jockeyed out of positions which they had honourably filled for years.

Mr. Dunn supported the resolution, but Mr. M'Garry strongly criticised the Minister for bringing down such an important resolution and not giving the House information to support it. He considered that the introduction of such a measure was highly inexpedient, for it would add a new charge upon the taxpayers, without in any way improving the efficiency of the service.

Mr. Hickey suggested that if the bill became law, and if a superannuation bill were passed, temporary employees joining the permanent staff should be excluded from the benefits of the bill unless they were under a certain age.

Mr. Fitzpatrick supported the resolution.

Mr. Wright regarded the resolution as waste of money and waste of time.

The resolution was agreed to.

TRUSTEES' DELEGATION OF POWERS.

In moving the second reading of the Trustees' Delegation of Powers Bill, the Attorney-General pointed out that legislation of the kind had already been introduced into Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand. The bill had the endorsement of the Law Institute in New South Wales. The necessity for making provision in the case of a trustee leaving the State had been intensified by the war. In plain words, the bill simply allowed a trustee to delegate his powers and responsibilities to another person during his absence. The proposed period for the delegation of powers would not exceed two years. In the case of a soldier going to the front, who was a trustee of property, it was essential that he should be allowed to appoint a trustee in his place. None of the rights of trustees under existing legislation would be curtailed or withdrawn. Those powers would be extended under the bill

Mr. Colquhoun said that in his opinion delegated powers should be vested in the Public Trustee. In the case of a trustee who was leaving Australia for a few months the ordinary powers of attorney should suffice.

Captain Toombs said that the Public Trustee should automatically step in if a trustee had to leave the State.

Mr. Cohen, while supporting the bill, suggested that the time for the exercise of delegated powers should not be extended to two years. He thought twelve months would be sufficient.

After several amendments had been moved the Attorney-General consented to three of the principal clauses, 3, 4, and 8, being postponed. The other clauses were passed without alteration.

STOCK BRANDS BILL.

Mr. Grahame, Minister for Agriculture, spoke to a motion approving of the expediency of bringing in a bill to amend the Stock Act of 1901, to provide for the ear-marking of cattle. The first reading was carried.

LOANS INTEREST BILL.

On the motion of the Premier, the House approved of the expediency of bringing in a bill to authorise the raising of loans under existing Acts at rates of interest exceeding 4 per centum per annum.

The Premier explained that the bill was practically the same as the one which had been passed, but which contained the limitation period of one year.

CITY RAILWAY BILL.

On the motion of the Minister for Works, the House accepted the slight amendments of the Council to the City and Suburban Electric Railways Bill.

The House adjourned at 10.30 p.m. till this afternoon.

WHEAT ACQUISITION.

CLAIMS FOR COMPENSATION.

FARMERS ASK 6/ PER BUSHEL.

The Government acquisition of wheat to the extent of ten and a half million bushels, at 5s, has resulted in compensation claims by farmers which amount to more than half a million pounds. The claims, which number about 3000, were considered yesterday by the Necessary Commodities Control Commission, sitting as a Court of Appeal. An average of one shilling a bushel above the proclaimed price is claimed.

Mr. Blacket, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Stewart, of the Crown Law Department), appeared for the Crown; Mr. James (instructed by Dibbs, Parker, and Parker), for the appellants. Mr. T. I. Campbell represented the Farmers and Settlers' Association; and Mr. W. K. Fitzpatrick the Wheat Acquisition Board.

Mr. Shepherd, of Messrs. Shepherd, Harvey, and Co., was examined in regard to a number of farmers for whom his firm had acted as agents. He stated that there were cases in which farmers had sold their wheat at 6s a bushel. While the wheat was in transit the Government proclamation was issued fixing the price at a lower rate. A good deal of this wheat was acquired by the Government at the proclaimed price. The farmers were now appealing for the difference between the contract price and the proclaimed price.

Thousands of bags, said Mr. Shepherd, were sold to a Melbourne buyer at 6s. Other lots brought 6s 4d before the proclamation.

Mr. Campbell was examined in connection with appeals which numbered 800.

The hearing was adjourned till this morning.

RANDWICK ASYLUM.

WHOLE BUILDING FOR A HOSPITAL.

MINISTER'S LETTER.

The Minister for Public Instruction complained last night that up to the present a reply has not been received from the superintendent of the Randwick Asylum to a letter sent on Friday last from his department. In the four days that have intervened, a Saturday, Sunday, and a holiday have occurred.

"I am directed," wrote the Minister's secretary, "by the Minister for Education to inform you that this afternoon the Military Commandant called on his colleague, the Chief Secretary, and notified him that the Commonwealth military authorities have issued a notice to your trust to deliver possession of the whole of the asylum buildings by the 9th inst. Mr. Griffith has also learned that the select committee appointed by the Legislative Council has decided that the Randwick institution should be taken over by the Government, and the children provided for by the State Children Relief Board. Under these circumstances, the Minister for Education definitely offers to take over the whole of the children, during next week, and to place them in cottage homes in the country, or to board them out either with their own or foster parents, as the circumstances of each case may warrant.

"The Minister adds that he is writing direct and promptly, so as to relieve your trustees from what might otherwise be a difficult position in regard to the disposal of the children under their care."

GOODNA ASYLUM.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Further evidence was given by Dr. Ellerton before the Goodna Asylum Commission to-day.

The witness said that the attendants who were to blame for the unsatisfactory state of wards were disrated, and had the commission not visited the institutions the state of the wards must have ultimately been discovered. When he first saw the institution he felt like returning to England because of its generally unsatisfactory state. About £100,000 had been spent on the place during his term, and improvements were promised which would cost another £50,000.

MR. G. UPWARD'S DEATH.

A FAMOUS ROWER.

Mr. George E. Upward, who was very well known in rowing circles, and was a prominent official of the Victorian State Parliament in pre-Federation days, and afterwards of the Commonwealth Parliament, died in a private hospital at Paddington on Monday night, after a brief illness.

Mr. Upward retired from the position of clerk assistant of the Senate in June last, having been 34 years a public servant. He entered the Victorian Public Service in July, 1881, as clerk in the Government Printing Office, and in the course of his promotion filled the positions of private secretary and shorthand writer to Mr. Duncan Gillies, when Premier of Victoria. He afterwards became sergeant-at-arms and clerk of committees in the Victorian Parliament, and upon the establishment of Federation was appointed Usher of the Black Rod and Clerk of Select Committees in the Senate. He was promoted to the position of clerk assistant of the Senate on July 1, 1908.

A notable sportsman, Mr. Upward was closely identified with amateur rowing. He began his career in 1875 as a member of the Corio Rowing Club, in which he soon became recognised as the exponent of a superior style of rowing. He won the eight-oared championship of Victoria in 1878, and in 1880 stroked the crew (Victoria), which won the Australian championship; also in the following year, but was beaten in 1882. He, however, stroked the winning eight of 1883; and then became coach, which position he held with marked success for 17 years.

In 1888 the first Australasian four-oared championship was rowed on the Parramatta. He stroked Victoria, which won easily from New Zealand, New South Wales, and Tasmania. Mr. Upward's interest never waned, and the success of New South Wales rowing was almost entirely due to the tuition of the greatest mentor amateur rowing in Australia has ever known.

Upon his retirement last June the members of the Senate expressed their regret at the loss of his services, and the President wished him a long and a happy retirement, saying that Mr. Upward had been an honoured and trusted official of the Senate since its inception.

Deceased, who was 60 years of age, leaves one son, the well-known scenic artist. His remains were conveyed to Melbourne by the express last evening for interment in the Geelong Cemetery.

DECREASE IN TRADE.

BAD YEAR IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

The Government Statistician (Mr. Fraser) has issued a return of the Western Australian imports and exports for the year ended June 30 last.

The war and drought have exercised a detrimental effect upon the general trade of the State. The total trade of the State for the year showed large decreases, amounting to only £13,670,329, as compared with £20,133,854 for the previous year—a decrease of £6,463,525, or £19 9s per head of the population.

As disclosed by the Customs figures, the oversea imports were only valued at £4,003,167, or £1,265,225 less than 1914-15, and the oversea exports at £3,255,046, a shrinkage of £2,677,346.

STRIKE OF RAILWAY WORKERS.

KEMPSEY, Tuesday.

The railway workers at Kempsey struck work on Saturday last. The reason given for the stoppage was that certain gangers had refused to take tickets in the Railway Workers' Association. The men claim that the gangers, previous to the Railway Officers' Association being formed, gained concessions as members of the workers' association. Men in various parts of section five have already struck and it is anticipated that before the end of the week work on the whole section will be stopped.

FIRE IN CITY.

MELBOURNE STOCK MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day, 17,800 fat sheep were penned, the bulk being shorn sheep of good to prime quality, with a few pens of extra prime and heavy crossbreds. There was a good attendance of buyers, and the supply, proving to be within requirements, the market opened brisk at an advance on late values, and improved as the sales progressed. Prices for shorn sheep were generally firm at 6/ to 7/ per head above the high rates ruling at the close of the sales, last week. Sheep in the wool did not share in the rise to the same extent, and were comparatively neglected until near the close of the day, when they firmed materially. Quotations: Shorn sheep, prime crossbred wethers 28/6 to 32/6, extra to 39/9, good 24/6 to 26/6, seconds 21/ to 23/; prime crossbred ewes 27/ to 32/, extra to 35/6, odd pens to 37/, good 23/6 to 26/. Fat lambs, 7450 penned, about 5000 being of this season's drop, mainly good to prime and extra prime, very few small sorts being penned. There was a sprinkling of good lambs in wool, and a few pens of shorn. The demand was much in excess of the supply, and prices showed a good advance all round, ranging from 2/ to 3/ per head on prime medium-weight and heavy lambs, with small sorts showing a more pronounced advance. The closing sales were the best quotations this season; Prime 23/ to 26/, extra to 28/10, good 20/ to 22/, seconds 17/ to 19/. A few only lower old (woolly) from 22/ to 26/6, extra to 28/2, odd lambs to 35/, old (shorn) from 18/6 to 25/4, with a few odd lots at lower rates.

BIG JEWEL ROBBERY.

DARING WORK IN GEORGE STREET.

The shop of Mr. Morris Solomon, jeweller, of 779 George-street, was broken into some time on Monday, and jewellery to the value of about £1000 was taken away.

Mr. Solomon discovered that the premises had been entered late on Monday night. When he returned to the shop a panel had been taken out of the door, and this enabled the thief to push back the lock and effect an entrance. The robbery must have been very well planned, because the continuous stream of passengers on the street did not seem to have disturbed the burglars. About 200 gold bangles and large quantities of other articles, such as watches and diamond rings, were stolen. A sum of money was also taken from the till—between £9 and £10.

PASSING ON THE DUTY.

The Customs Act in section 152 provides—

> If after any agreement is made for the sale or delivery of goods duty paid, any alteration takes place in the duty collected affecting such goods before they are entered for home consumption, then in the absence of express written provision to the contrary, the agreement shall be altered as follows:—(a) In the event of the alteration being a new or increased duty the seller, after payment of the new or increased duty, may add the difference caused by the alteration to the agreed price.

Upon the validity of this section the Full Court of Victoria pronounced judgment on Friday last. The matter arose on an appeal from the County Court in an action Crespin and Son v Colac Co-operative Farmers, Ltd., in which plaintiffs claimed £13 2s as due to them in respect of Customs duties paid by them on certain gunny-bags sold to the defendants. The plaintiffs contracted to supply a quantity of gunny-bags to the defendants when the bags were not dutiable. On December 3, 1914, a duty of 10 per cent. was imposed. The plaintiffs claimed that they had paid the duties on bags delivered to defendants afterwards, and were entitled under section 152 of the Customs Act, to add the amount of that duty to the contract price. Defendants refused to pay the amount, and in an action heard in the County Court obtained a judgment in their favour. The Full Court, by majority, upheld the County Court. Mr. Justice Hood said that section 152 did not affect any agreement until the terms of that agreement were near completion. The plaintiffs had satisfied the agreement by delivering goods in compliance therewith after paying the extra duty, and under the section the seller having paid the duty was entitled to recover. But objection was raised that if the section did include agreements such as the present, it was invalid, at all events, as to the extent of such agreement, and with that objection he agreed. The construction, which appeared correct, enabled a seller who had paid duties on goods of which he was the owner to recover all or portion of those duties from a purchaser who at the time the duties were paid had no interest in those goods. Such legislation was not taxation. It was simply an attempt to make a purchaser in certain circumstances pay more than the agreed price because the seller had been compelled to pay on his own goods more duties than he anticipated. The section was either a taxing of an individual or an attempt to equitably adjust the relations arising out of an agreement. In either event it was altogether out of place in a Customs Act, and no authority had been cited that would support it. The section might be valid if it was restricted to the sale of specific goods, though then the plaintiff in this case could not succeed, but, taken generally, as he thought it should be taken, it violated section 55 of the Commonwealth Constitution Act. The appeal should be dismissed, with costs. Mr. Justice Cussen agreed.

IN FAVOUR OF VALIDITY.

The Chief Justice (Sir James Madden) dissented from the judgment of his brethren. In his opinion, section 152 was more distinctly inclusive of the class of contract to which this case belonged than it was of contracts of sale of specifically ascertained goods. It was intended to apply equitably the burden of taxation on the party who was to use the goods, apart from technical ownership at the moment the duty attached to the goods. On the question whether the section was ultra vires, he thought that it was to be regarded as falling within that class where the Commonwealth Parliament, having clear authority to tax, sought to make persons pay that tax, who, though beneficially interested were not formally the owners. He thought the appeal should be allowed and judgment entered for the plaintiffs.

SECTION 55 OF THE CONSTITUTION ACT.

Section 55 of the Constitution Act, under which Mr. Justice Hood held section 152 of the Customs Act invalid, is as follows:—

> Laws imposing taxation shall deal only with the imposition of taxation, and any provision therein dealing with any other matter shall be of no effect.
>
> Laws imposing taxation, except laws imposing duties of Customs or excise, shall deal with one subject of taxation only; but laws imposing duties of Customs shall deal with duties of Customs only, and laws imposing duties of excise shall deal with duties of excise only.

Section 152 of the Customs Act is eminently fair, and is so recognised by traders generally. It has been in force 14 years, and must have been applied thousands of times, and yet only now is its validity questioned. The subject is of such importance to the mercantile community that no doubt the matter will be taken to the High Court.

WAR CENSUS PROBLEM.

In answer to Q.E.D., it may be repeated that the census has nothing to do with taxation. If a citizen is unable to remember the amount of money he had in his pocket or in his house on June 30, then he should return on the census card the amount which he had in his pocket or in his house on the date of making the return. His bank-book will show the amount in the bank on June 30, and his bills the amount owing on that date. The particulars as at that date are wanted.

AN ENGLISH SPELTER DEAL.

A deal in spelter which may have important results for the Zinc Corporation and Broken Hill companies is reported in the latest English files. The Swansea Vale Zinc Smelting Works, which has hitherto been in the hands of the German combine, has, says a "Globe" correspondent, been sold to a group in the city, who intend at once to bring the output of spelter up from 5000 to 25,000 tons per annum. The head of this group is Mr. R. Tilden Smith, who is associated with many important enterprises, including the zinc mines of Burma, from which he intends to obtain his supplies of metal. The plant is a facsimile of those which the Germans have erected in their own country, as well as in Belgium and France, and was one of the links in the organisation which enabled them to dominate the zinc market in Europe. By its acquisition the purchasers are considered in the city to have stolen a march on the Zinc Corporation and Broken Hill Companies.

GOLD FOR UNITED STATES.

The United States absorbs more than a quarter of the world's gold production. That is the opinion of Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co., expressed in a recent weekly circular. During the past 18 years there has been an excess of imports over exports averaging £2,500,000 per annum. During the same period the total production of gold from mines in the territory of the United States of America amounted to £319,000,000, or an average of £17,500,000 per annum. It will thus be seen that the absorption of gold based on these data has averaged recently £20,000,000 per annum. The total is probably larger than this, because quantities of ore and silver metal, carrying gold, are imported from other parts of America and the contents are separated within the United States. On the other hand, the considerable amount of gold carried abroad on the person of United States visitors to Europe and elsewhere is a partial set off.

In September, last year, I received in one sum, two years' interest on my bank deposit. Am I supposed to pay Federal income tax on the whole amount received, or only on half of it?

You are liable only on one year's interest.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

A distinct holiday tone was noticeable in the general markets of the city yesterday, and business was in the main restricted to ordinary distributing requirements. Manufactured metals were firmly held. Stocks of most lines were small, and as a certain amount of uncertainty existed as to the arrival of further supplies, merchants demanded full prices for such parcels as they were prepared to sell. Lead manufactures were advanced £1 a ton. Sheet lead was quoted at £29/10/ a ton in full rolls. In cut rolls 30/6 per cwt. was wanted. Lead pipes in coils were worth 35/, and in 10ft lengths 36/ per cwt. There was no change in the position of fencing wire. No. 8 black was almost unobtainable for prompt delivery. In all positions it was quoted at £16/10/ a ton, although a parcel to arrive might have been picked up at £16 or £16/5/. Galvanised wire moved out fairly freely at unaltered levels. Harvesting requisites commanded strong country support at well maintained rates.

Trade in oils was quiet, but holders refused to do business at prices under those current at the latter end of last week. First brands of imported raw linseed oil were lightly stocked, and were looked upon as good property at 4/5 a gallon. Boiled oil was to be had at 4/6 a gallon. Locally manufactured oil was offered at 4/ and 4/3 a gallon. There was no improvement in the market for whitelead, and large quantities of first brands could have been secured at £48 a ton. Turpentine was weak.

The Ula and Culna were in port from Calcutta with 15,174 bales of cornsacks for Sydney. This knowledge caused jute operators uneasiness, as it was thought that some importers would have to dispose of fairly large parcels to town houses. So far, however, none of the importers appear anxious to sell their holdings, and although 8/4 net to rails for all positions was commonly quoted, it is doubtful if any quantity could have been secured under 8/4½ and 8/5 net. Branbags were dull at from 7/10½ to 8/ net to rails. For woolpacks 2/10½ and 3/ net was wanted.

THE SALMON CATCH.

The "Produce Markets Review" says there is an improvement in the run of salmon on the Puget Sound, Fraser, and other rivers, and the latest figures, compared with those of the corresponding cycle season four years ago, will be found interesting.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

Trade conditions were generally unsettled after the Eight-hour Day holiday in the dairy end of Sussex-street yesterday. Eggs, which were heavily supplied, met a slightly weaker market. Pastrycooks and biscuit manufacturers, who have bought extensively during the past few weeks, did not operate so freely, and adopted a waiting attitude. Their stocks are reported to be sufficient to tide them over till a weaker market ensues. Case were quoted at 1/1, and new-laids from 1/1½ to 1/2, with a big majority of sales at the former figure.

Butter consignments were sufficient to meet local trade requirements, but the surplus, if any, would only be small. The Moruya and Eden arrived from the usual South Coast ports with cheese. Trade was active, and stocks were quickly cleared. Bacon was in short supply, agents finding it impossible to fill orders. The market was glutted with northern honey, which, being left in store a few days, becomes candied. The bulk of the honey now in store is candied and is difficult to sell. From /4 to /4½ a lb was asked. Clear honey was scarce. Lard was unaltered in price.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

POTATO MARKET FIRMER.

A short shipment of about 4650 bags of potatoes was forwarded to the Sydney market from Tasmania yesterday. In consequence, importers decided to increase last week's prices by £1 all round. Redskins were worth £12, Brownells £11/10/, and Whites £10 a ton. These are the highest prices since July 12—nearly three months ago. Certainly the shipment was the smallest for many weeks past. It is said that the Tasmanian farmers are asking higher prices for their tubers. New Zealand potatoes were also dearer, holders selling at from £10/10/ to £11 a ton. The onion market was firm, but prices were unchanged.

Another shipment, amounting to over 1000 tons of South African maize, arrived by the Clan McMillan on Monday, and should be placed on the market within a day or so. As this State has to practically depend on imported maize till February next, an eye should be kept on the stocks that are arriving. It would be advisable to have shipments arriving at well-regulated intervals rather than to have a swamping of the market at any one time. South African flat yellow was worth 5/, and round from 4/10. White commanded 4/9. Coastal grain arrivals totalled 620 bags, including 200 from the Illawarra district. Yellow was offered at 5/3, and white at 4/9. Oats were steady at late rates; country orders absorbed considerable quantities.

At the firewood auctions, 31 trucks were yarded. Prices were at about the same level as last week.

PRICE OF STRAW CHAFF.

Earl Bros. (of Orange), write:—

In your issue of September 30 appears a commentary congratulating the Necessary Commodities Commission on their recent proposal re the price of straw chaff.

I wish to point out a few reasons why, if the proposal is confirmed, the same will be injurious to stock owners and others, particularly in the time of drought.

Straw chaff £2 10s on trucks, country.

The costs to produce that chaff are:—

Cutting .... 15/ per ton.
Bags .... 20/ per ton.
Drawing and loading, say, 9/ per ton.

Total .... 44/ per ton.

This leaves 6/ per ton for straw (without a shilling profit to the dealer) in the stack. The farmer cannot pay labour and put straw into a stack to sell at 6/ per ton, and he will be compelled to put a fire stick into it in the paddock, which would mean a wilful waste of what would make good cattle feed if handled with a little judgment.

To be short and to the point, 25 p.c. to 50 p.c. of linseed, bran, pollard, oil cake, or any of the numerous similar feeds, and the same proportion of straw chaff make a good feed, whereas any of the former-mentioned given to cattle pure is too rich, and, in some cases would be injurious. Then why this proposed legislation that will cause the destruction of thousands of tons of what can be converted into good feed. This subject could be gone into more fully, and I trust that more competent authorities will give the matter the consideration it deserves.

The report in question congratulated the Commission on its attempt to provide the market with prime produce by making practically prohibitive prices for inferior grade produce. Anyone who came in contact with the huge quantities of chaff that flooded the Sydney market two or three months ago must know that, even when mixed with better chaff or other nutritive feed, the large bulk of it was totally unfit for the consumption of cattle and horses.

RAILWAY MARKET.

A better tone prevailed at the Railway Yard yesterday. Buyers were present in full strength, and a keen demand actuated them to brisk bidding. The yarding was the biggest to hand for some time. Perhaps the greater part of it consisted of lucerne hay, and, in consequence, values for this feed were slightly weaker. With all the best produce snapped up at the fixed rate, and the demand unsatisfied, buyers, perforce, had to pay enhanced prices for forage not up to proclaimed price quality. To-day's small manifest suggests a further rise in the market.

Four trucks of potatoes were disposed of. Quality was good, and the bidding brisk. One consignment of Carmens, branded B, realised the fine price of 10/ per cwt.

American: Gravensteins, Jonathans, King Davids, 14/ to 17/6 a bushel-case.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

Although several lines were heavily supplied, conditions at the vegetable market yesterday were better than at the end of last week. The cabbage position showed an improvement. Rates were slightly better, due to the demand of the country order trade. Large supplies of cauliflowers were to hand from local sources, and this had the effect of prime selling at £7. While the hot weather continues sweet potatoes will remain slow of sale. Peas—well supplied—were easier, and went at from 2/6 to 4/6 per bushel. River beans arrived in bad condition again, and sold from 5/ to £1 per bag. Root lines were unchanged. Market prospects are slightly better.

Beetroot, 1/ to 1/3; parsnips, 1/6 to 2/; carrots, 1/6 to 2/3; celery, 1/3 to 2/; eschalots, 2/; herbs, /9; leeks, 2/; cucumbers, 1/ to 4/ a dozen; lettuce, /3 to 1/; mint, 1/; parsley, 1/ to 1/9; radishes, /9; rhubarb, 3/; watercress, 1/ to 1/6; white turnips, /6 to 1/; spinach, 1/ to 1/6 per dozen bunches; peas, 2/6 to 4/6 per bushel; river peas, 25/ per bag; cabbages, 4/ to 5/; red cabbages, /6 to /7; cauliflowers, 1/ to 4/6; jam melons, 6/ to 25/ per dozen; pumpkins, £1 per cwt; New Zealand, 10/ per cwt; potatoes, Redskins, 10/ to 12/; Bismarcks, 12/; Pinkeyes, 11/; Carmens, 12/; Up-to-dates, 11/; Brownells, 11/; New Zealand, 13/; local varieties, 9/ to 11/; sweet potatoes, 10/ per cwt; swedes, prime £7 per ton; tomatoes local, 7/ to 8/6 half-case; onions, 6/ per cwt; beans, river, 5/ to £1 per bag.

INTERNED STEAMER ROON.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The committee appointed by the consignees of the cargo in the German steamer Roon, interned in Java, met to-day at the Chamber of Commerce, when the following telegram from the Sydney committee was read:—

"Roon negotiations failed. Allen returning Montoro; due about October 20. Management committee suggest you send representatives to meet the committee and Allen in Sydney to discuss the position."

The Melbourne committee concurred in the views expressed by the Sydney committee, but thought it unnecessary at present for a representative to visit Sydney, preferring to await Mr. Allen's views. It is suggested that, as he will pass through Melbourne on his way to his home in Adelaide, a meeting of the consignees could be held in Melbourne, when he could personally explain the proceedings he had taken with regard to the release of the cargo.

GUARDED BUSINESS.

AWAITING WAR DEVELOPMENTS.

Operators were considerably guarded in their dealings yesterday, and it was not long before it was ascertained that this was due to the doubt existing as to what side Bulgaria will take in the war. Members generally agreed that if she casts in her lot with Germany and Austria it is bound to have a disturbing effect upon the market. Some members went as far as to predict that it would mean an all-round 10 per cent. decline in values.

With such doubt and uncertainty ruling, it is no wonder there was not much disposition shown to do business. To attempt to unload scrip in such a market would have been foolish. It would not absorb it, and sellers would have experienced the mortification of seeing values marked down without getting rid of their shares. Hence sellers stood aloof. Buyers did likewise in most cases, and this explains the slackness in the volume of business transacted.

The sales booked were confined to the more popular stocks in the copper, silver, and tin sections. The first mentioned was represented by sound business in Hampdens and Mount Lyells, but Mount Morgans weakened a fraction. The latter was also the case in regard to Barriers, but the gilt-edged stocks, such as B.H. Souths and Amalgamated Zinc commanded firm offers. Tin propositions, especially those in the East, held a solid position, operators being of opinion that any unsatisfactory war news would have a less effect upon the tin section than any other portion of the market.

A marked improvement in the monthly output of the Deebook Dredging Company led to sales at 18/—an advance of 1/—with several inquiries at the close of the day. The month's output was 48 tons from 109,500 cubic yards, or a shade under 1lb of tin oxide recovered for each cubic yard of material treated. The output for the previous month was only 24 tons 15cwt. A solid market also ruled in the case of Kampongs, buyers being unsupplied at offers equal to the last sale rate. Tongkah Harbour were firmly held. The output for last week was 23 tons. Tongkah Compounds were not mentioned, though the fortnightly yield was said to equal 19 tons 15cwt.

MINING NOTES.

The mine of the Rowley's Reef Hawkins' Hill Gold-mining Company has been unwatered to the 500ft level, and, after a couple of days cleaning up old debris, a crosscut will be started west to pick up the west workings. The 100ft of the Patriarch shaft unwatered is in splendid order—three compartments close timbered. The west workings have never been prospected at this depth in this property, although proved gold bearing at a greater depth southwards. It is a likely reef to carry the rich gold shoots of Hawkin's Hill northwards.

At the Hawkins' Hill Reward Gold Mine, development work at the 320ft level included a stope on a 2ft reef worth 10dwt per ton. The north face of the intermediate level shows a 2ft reef, worth over half an ounce, whilst in the south face it is one foot wide, and worth 1oz per ton. At the 200ft level, the north drive is following a 1ft reef, worth 1oz per ton, whilst the back slopes are on a 6in to 9in reef, valued at 1oz per ton. The new reef cut in the crosscut east from the 200ft level is opening out well. During the month there were mined and crushed 355 tons of ore, for 259oz gold.

The managing director of the Buckland River Gold Dredging Company advises that the dredge has worked 270 hours for a yield of 86oz.

The smelting operations of the Wallaroo and Moonta Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd., for the fortnight ended September 25, are officially recorded as follows:—"Ore received from Wallaroo mines, 233½ tons of 10½ per cent. Ore received from Moonta mines, 231 tons of 20 per cent; precipitate, 35¼ tons of 78 per cent. Ore smelted, 3354 tons. Copper placed to store, 255¼ tons. Sulphuric acid delivered, 246 tons."

At the Mount David Gold Mine, the manager, after extending the porphyry drive a short distance, found the country very much broken, and decided to open out on the lode formation. This drive has gone 10ft in a north-easterly direction. The face shows one lap of stone about 1ft in thickness, and many smaller makes of stone, all of which carry gold. The manager intends this week to open out in a southerly direction at a point 277ft east of No. 1 air shaft, or 115ft east of the north drive. The values at this point, tested while driving the tunnel, were satisfactory. The drive will be driven on the joint "proper," between the felsite and slate walls.

MOUNT ELLIOTT COPPER MINE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

During September the Mount Elliott, Ltd., treated 4440 tons of ore and 197 tons of matte, producing 507 tons of blister copper, estimated to contain 501 4-5 tons of copper, 745oz of gold, and 1045oz silver.

CARPATHIA TIN MINE.

ORE BODIES DEVELOPING WELL.

The mine manager reports for last week as follows:—No. 1 shaft, intermediate level: North drive extended 5ft to 50ft, exposing milling ore full width of drive—4ft—still going an easterly direction, and looking particularly well. 205ft level, north rise: Stoping south exposed milling ore to a width of about 15ft. West crosscut: Since last report ore of a milling value to a width of 16ft has been won, which has connected with the No. 4 shaft south winze. Similar ore is now being mined. 305ft level: West crosscut: Advanced 6ft to 16ft on the soft formation previously reported, carrying low values.

No. 2 shaft: North drive extended 5ft to 6ft on exceptionally high milling values 16in wide. South drive: Driving 6ft, making 11ft on milling ore the full width of the face (4½ft), and remaining on both sides. Both drives look very encouraging.

Ore in transit.—Since last report 85 tons of milling ore have been despatched to the Barmedman battery.

The battery manager reports for last week as follows:—Battery ran full time, treating 95 tons of ore, 7½ tons of concentrates were obtained, assaying 66 per cent.

HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

WITHOUT MATERIAL ALTERATION.

Through the public holiday on Monday sales were held yesterday, when about 24,242 sheep, including lambs, were penned, out of 26,913 head listed from 89 consignors. The consignments included nine drafts ranging from 600 to 800, with the usual large proportion of small lots, chiefly 90 to 300 head. There was a preponderance of woolly sheep forward, with, however, a good representation of shorn. All descriptions were forward, the bulk being merino, with a fair proportion of crossbreds. The merinos ranged from odd pens of very medium, both woolly and shorn, to a sprinkling of extra prime, and mainly comprising good to prime. The crossbreds included a sprinkling of plain sorts, but comprised a large proportion of good to prime, with occasional pens of extra prime. The selection was a good one, and suited to trade requirements.

There was a good attendance of buyers, including the metropolitan, suburban, and country trade. The market opened to free competition, and values during the morning showed very little alteration on the general rates of Thursday last. Shorn sheep were in strong demand, also best woolly wethers, but woolly ewes and occasional pens of woolly crossbreds were generally not up to the best rates of Thursday. This tone practically prevailed throughout.

Included in the principal sales of woolly merinos was a line of wethers from J. K. Mackay (Wee Waa) to 32/6, from Mercadool Station (Beanbri) wethers to 32/1 and ewes to 29/9, from estate late A. Amos (Walgett) wethers to 31/9, R. S. Falkiner (Hay) to 30/5, H. White (Lue) to 30/3, A. T. Johnson (Moree) to 29/9, Thompson Bros. (Merah) to 29/. Among the woolly crossbreds were wethers from W. Kirkley (Moree) to 35/6, H. White (Lue) to 33/3 and at 39/3 for a few ewes. A line of crossbred ewes from G. J. Grant (Canowindra) to 32/ and hoggets Ward Bros. (Nyngan) to 28/. Included in the shorn merinos was a line of wethers from estate late J. Cameron (Moree) to 22/4, a few A. Adams (Gravesend) to 27/9, R. H. Meares and Co. (Brewarrina) to 21/11, and hoggets to 22/3; a line of shorn merino ewes from J. McDonald (Moree) to 24/. In the crossbreds was a line of wethers from G. Cockle (Manningham) to 26/11, hoggets Thompson Bros. (Merah) to 25/.

Quotations.—Prime woolly merino w and h 27/ to 29/, extra prime merino w and h 31/ to 33/, good woolly merino w and h 21/ to 25/, medium woolly merino w and h 16/ to 19/; prime woolly merino e 23/ to 26/, extra prime woolly merino e 27/ to 29/6, good woolly merino e 20/ to 23/, medium woolly merino e 14/ to 17/; prime woolly xbd w and h 29/ to 32/, extra prime woolly xbd w and h 34/ to 36/, good woolly xbd w and h 23/ to 26/, medium woolly xbd w and h 16/ to 19/, prime woolly xbd e 29/ to 31/, extra prime woolly xbd e 32/ to 34/, good woolly xbd e 21/ to 26/, medium woolly xbd e 15/ to 18/, prime shorn merino w 21/ to 23/, extra prime 24/ to 25/, good shorn merino w and h 16/6 to 18/; medium shorn merino w and h 13/6 to 15/; prime shorn merino e 17/ to 18/, extra prime 20/ to 22/, good shorn merino e 15/ to 16/, medium shorn merino e 12/ to 14/, prime shorn xbd w 23/ to 25/, extra prime 26/ to 28/, good shorn xbd w and h 19/ to 20/6, medium 15/ to 17/; prime shorn xbd e 20/ to 22/, extra prime 24/ to 26/, odd pens to 28/9, good shorn xbd e 16/6 to 18/, medium shorn xbd e 14/ to 15/.

LAMBS.

PRIME FIRM, OTHERS EASIER.

A moderate supply of lambs was penned, the bulk being suckers, with a sprinkling of woolly, and odd pens of shorn lambs. All descriptions were forward, crossbreds preponderating, with a fair proportion of merino. The pennings comprised a capital representation of good, useful trade quality, a moderate showing of prime; also odd pens of medium and light. The market opened easier, and was somewhat irregular. During the progress of the sales generally, the demand was strong, and values were very firm for the better descriptions and heavy lambs, but barely so firm for the plainer sorts. A line of crossbreds from W. T. Penrose, Boggabri, sold to 22/; and H. Campbell, Son, and Co., Ltd., Mount Tenandra, suckers to 21/7.

Quotations: Prime suckers 18/ to 20/, extra prime suckers 20/ to 22/6, good suckers 15/6 to 17/, medium suckers 10/ to 13/; prime woolly and short wool lambs 19/ to 21/, extra prime 22/6 to 25/, good woolly and short woolled lambs 16/ to 18, medium 11/ to 14/.

CATTLE.

GENERALLY A FIRMER TONE.

Upwards of 977 cattle were listed from 47 consignors, and 1026 head were yarded. Several lots originally advised were not forwarded, but others filled the gap, and brought the total above the number anticipated. The consignments came mainly from the northern, north-western, and Hunter River districts, with odd lots from the west. The yardings comprised all descriptions, and included a sprinkling of prime heavy and prime medium weight bullocks, a moderate representation of prime light and handy weight bullocks and steers, with a considerable proportion of medium to useful descriptions. The cows and heifers, including a fair proportion of good to prime, as well as odd extra prime, but mainly comprised medium and plain sorts, with occasional yards of rough and inferior. The yardings also included odd yards of calves, yearlings, and bulls. It was a mixed yarding.

There was a full attendance of buyers. The market opened to strong competition at very firm values, with an improvement of 10/ to 15/ per head in places. Generally the early sales were the stronger, although occasionally the rulings later were fully on a par with the best opening rates. In other cases there was no change on Thursday's values.

Included in the principal sales was a line of 9 bullocks from J. Rowe (Coonamble) to £30, avg. £26/13/11; Barnes Estate, 99 bullocks to £24/15/, avg. £16/12/, T. Bragg (Munginbar), 12 cows to £18/10/, avg. £17/10/; 60 bullocks from H. R. Munro (Merale) to £29/16/, avg. £27/16/2; T. Moxham (Tarcoon), 8 bullocks to £31/10/, avg. £30/18/9; J. AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

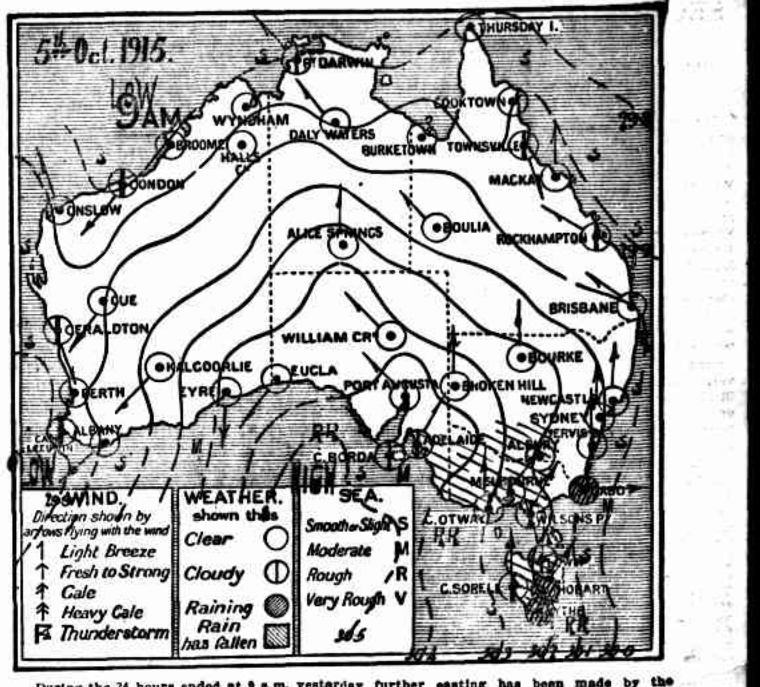
THE "HERALD" MAP.



During the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday further easting has been made by the pressure systems, and now the great high pressure system from the west occupies practically the whole of the continent, its centre being to the south of Adelaide, over the Southern Ocean. It has gained about one-tenth of an inch in barometric value.

This position of the centre is favourable to co-operation with the Antarctic disturbance now over the South Tasman Sea, in rain production along the seaboard, and on parts of the tablelands, with squally south-easterly to south-westerly winds. Rough seas should also result on the South Coast.

A new disturbance has appeared on the south-western coast of Western Australia, where it is causing unsettled weather.

Moderate to rough seas are running on the south Coast of the continent, between the eastern Bight and the Straits.

Monsoonal indications are also in evidence on the Queensland coast.

Ocean Forecast.—Strong to gales from the south in the eastern Straits, and along the New South Wales coast; freshening south-east on Queensland coast, and freshening northerly around the Leeuwin.

PUNTING TO SEA.

The game of battledore and shuttlecock was continued in the City Council last evening over the contract for punting to sea. The health committee recommended that a tender by F. Buckle and Sons be accepted in lieu of the present arrangement with Mr. H. Carr. After a debate lasting for upwards of an hour the matter was referred back to the committee for reconsideration.

MILITARY SUPPLIES.

ALLEGED CONSPIRACY.

OFFICERS AND CONTRACTOR CHARGED.

The eleventh day of the trial of Arthur Kidman, Major F. W. Page, Major A. G. O'Donnell, and Sergeant Edward Leslie, on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the supply of stores to the military forces, was entered upon in the High Court, sitting in criminal jurisdiction, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Isaacs and a jury of 12.

His Honor said he would consider an application made by the foreman for increased jurors' fees, with which he (his Honor) concurred.

Frank Astridge, a commercial traveller, said that he had known Kidman for 30 years. About June 15 last he had a conversation with Kidman, when the latter asked him if he would put in an application in his name for military supplies. Witness agreed, and put in a quotation at Kidman's dictation. The document produced was what he filled in, but certain writing in pencil was not on the paper at the time he wrote it, and he did not recognise the writing. He was in business on his own account, but some years ago he had been in business with Kidman's brother. He did not write the words "commercial broker" on the tender.

In reply to Mr. Lamb (for Kidman), witness said he had a brother carrying on business as Astridge Brothers, but he was not aware that he tendered for military supplies.

In answer to Mr. Taylor (for O'Donnell), witness said that he did not remember meeting Major O'Donnell.

His Honor: The whole of the tender was dictated by Kidman?—Yes.

Did you know what quotations were asked for?—No.

Were you told?—No.

You simply wrote down lies, so to speak?—I wrote down whatever Kidman told me.

Horace Jones Harler, managing clerk for Kidman, said he had some recollection of a tender in the name of Home being made out in the office under Kidman's instructions. It was signed in typewriting "Walter D. Home, per A. R." The initials of the typiste were A. R., but he could not say that they were done by her.

In reply to his Honor, witness said that he put the initials "J. T. C." on one tender after the tenderer's name, because his (witness') name was known at the barracks, and it was not desired that it should be known that Kidman knew anything about the tender. The initials were those of a clerk in the office, and he knew that witness used them on the tender.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lamb, witness said Kidman used to keep stores at the camps before the goods were requisitioned, and the military authorities were allowed to draw upon the goods as required. A check was kept on the goods drawn by the military, one of Kidman's men being there in the daytime. The authorities drew upon the supplies when the man was not there.

The case remains part heard.

MINING DISPUTE.

TROUBLE AT BROKEN HILL.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

In connection with the mining dispute at Broken Hill it is announced that a mass meeting of the underground workers will be held on Friday morning to make arrangements for picketing, etc. The committee met last night, and decided that all underground workers desiring permits for necessary labour should apply to the secretary or to members of the committee on the mines.

At De Bavay's (Amalgamated Zinc) last night the men left the mill at midnight. The acting manager (Mr. Meredith) stated to-day that there had been some argument about time being lost through want of material. The mill was working to-day, but the employees are to meet to-morrow morning to discuss the position.

Both sides refuse to say anything regarding the men's decision regarding the Saturday afternoon shift. Whether the Arbitration Court will interfere is, of course, unknown; but the position seems to call for some interference from the Court. Meanwhile nothing is being done.

Later.

It was announced to-night that the South and Central mines, which are closing on Wednesday night for the Eight-hour holiday, will not reopen for work until Monday morning. The Proprietary mine, however, will restart work on Friday morning. What the other mines propose to do is not stated.

UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—With regard to Mr. Frank Cotton's letter in your issue of this morning, will you permit me to say that the persons who have spoken for the Universal Service League have not, as he thinks, quite overlooked the fact that the powers of our own Commonwealth Legislature are strictly limited by the text of a written constitution. Everything that we propose could be done under the existing legislative powers of the Commonwealth Parliament. What we propose is that the Commonwealth, under its powers to pass laws with respect to military and naval defence, should take the power to compel every individual of the community to render such help, whether in the way of military or other form of service, or monetary or other contribution, as may be necessary for the defence of Australia. This is a matter wholly within the competence of the Federal Legislature.

Then Mr. Thos. J. Miller asks for a "plain statement by the Universal Service League: Do they or do they not mean conscription of capital as contrasted with conscription of income?"

The answer to this question is: The Universal Service League does mean conscription of capital, not as contrasted with conscription of income, but, if necessary, in addition to it, we advocate conscription of anything—men, money, or material—so far as it is necessary to enable us to give to the Empire the most effective help we can in this war.

We do not advocate that the Government should take away a man's property, either capital or income, for the sake of taking it, any more than we advocate that it should send men to Gallipoli for the sake of sending them. It would be wrong and foolish to send away from this country more men than it is necessary to send. It would be equally wrong and foolish to divert from the business of food and other production more of our capital than it is necessary to divert. Such a course would mean unemployment and poverty.

But all that is necessary, either in the way of personal service or wealth, we must be ready to give. It is the league's object to get from the people of Australia a clear and forcible expression of this readiness. I hope Mr. Miller will consider that this statement is plain enough. If I have left any point obscure, I shall be glad to make it clear if I can.

I am, etc.,
T. R. BAVIN,
Hon. Secretary Universal Service League.
Oct. 5.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. R. W. Cruickshank, in the press, says upon the above subject that he wants Professor David and the hon. secretary of the Universal Service League to be more candid on this question. I am with your correspondent as regards outspokenness. For my part, I think Professor David and the Universal Service League are perfectly outspoken and clear upon the objects of the league. In fact, they are set out in black and white and in detail in the manifesto of that body. After all, Professor David is a citizen only, not a public man in authority, and if Mr. Cruickshank is after candour on this question, he might be able to find out how it is that the Premier of this State, Mr. Holman, who is attached to the Universal Service League, when asked in Melbourne recently upon this movement, said he was only attached to it as a private citizen. Yet, before he went to Melbourne, Mr. Fitzgerald, one of his Ministers, speaking in the Legislative Council on the 15th last month, said, "We, the Government, say that this country should submit itself to conscription, not merely for service in the field, but for the purposes of organising the whole nation." Another politician, a Federal one, speaking upon the defence question in a time of peace, not war, said, "What I propose is, that every adult male in this country from 18 to 60 should undergo a period of training, those between 18 to 21 six weeks' training, 21 to 30 also six weeks, and so on to the age above stated." Further, he said, "I would not compel any man to serve if he desires to evade service, if he chooses to pay a tax for someone else to serve in his place." A nice position: the wealthy man is to evade service by paying a worker to take his place! When this gentleman was asked whether they would have to go into barracks, he said "Yes, but not all at once." Further, asked if they were to be paid, he said "Emphatically, no! We do not pay men for recording their votes; thousands of men lose a day's work at every general election. Why, then, should we pay men for doing their duty in regard to the defence of the country?" The gentleman who gave utterance to the above astonishing statements was Mr. W. M. Hughes, present Federal Attorney-General. Yes, Mr. Cruickshank, candor is wanted, especially from our public men.

I am, etc.,
CHARLES W. OAKES.

The matter is in the hands of the honorary organising secretary, Mrs. Mackinnon, and orders may be placed to her care, room 17th Battalion, Terranora-buildings, Selby-lane, off Pitt-street. The flannel will be available for Monday, and the orders will be completed in rotation. As far as possible, it will be divided equally, if so desired by the battalions.

Arrangements may also be made to purchase tobacco in bond for the same organisation.

CASUALTIES.

FISHERMAN DROWNED.

A fisherman, named Joseph Fino, from Collaroy Beach, met his death yesterday while out fishing. Fino went out with another fisherman, Charles Johnston, and when about four miles out the boat capsized. Johnston swam ashore, and reached land in an almost insensible condition. The Captain Cook went out, and recovered the boat, but found no trace of Fino. Johnston stated that the last he saw of him was when he was seated on the upturned boat. Fino was a native of Italy.

STOREMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED.

While assisting to lift a large case at the Pastoral Finance Association's premises at Kirribilli Point about 10 o'clock yesterday morning Michael Bourke, 33 years of age, a storeman there, dislocated his spine. The Civil Ambulance conveyed the injured man, who resides at 53 Shepherd-street, Newtown, to the Royal North Shore Hospital.

CITY RESUMPTIONS.

MR. BORCHARD'S RESIGNATION.

In May last, in consequence of a debate in the City Council in regard to German employees, Mr. Albert Borchard returned the retainer which he held in connection with the Day-street resumption, but in the following month complied with a request made that he should continue the work. At last night's meeting of the council a letter was read from Mr. Borchard stating that, notwithstanding that he had taken up the work again at the council's expressed desire, he understood that the matter was causing irritation, and in order to save further annoyance now resigned his appointment and returned the retainer.

Alderman English moved and Alderman Harris seconded that the resignation be received and accepted.

The motion was carried.

AUSTRALIAN MOTHER SONG.

A copy of the Australian mother song, "My Boy and Your Boy," the words of which, by Miss E. Beaufils Lamb, were originally published in the "Sydney Morning Herald," was recently sent to the Queen by Miss Darchy, formerly of Sydney, and now of London. By the last English mail advices came to hand, stating that Miss Darchy had received a letter from Lady Katharine Coke, Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen, intimating that her Majesty had much pleasure in accepting the song. The words, which were dedicated to the mothers of the Empire, were set to music by Mr. H. A. Jaques.

PRICE OF CHAFF.

Yesterday afternoon the Necessary Commodities Control Commission sat to reconsider the selling price of chaff.

Mr. T. J. Purcell, who appeared for the trade generally, asked for an adjournment on the ground that it would take a week to collect information and prepare evidence.

An adjournment till 10 o'clock on Tuesday next was granted.

STAMP-VENDING MACHINE.

The postal authorities intimate that arrangements have been made for a stamp vending machine to be affixed to the telegraph pole at the corner of Rowe and Pitt streets, Sydney. The machine, which will be on trial, will be shortly available for use by the public.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE HUTCHENS PIANO RECITALS.

Mr. Frank Hutchens gave the last of his piano recitals at St. James's Hall last night, when he once more sustained the interest of his season, which thus to the end has kept his audiences within the enchanted circle of classic music. Concerts of this character refresh, just as those of a cheap type weary, the mind. The pianist introduced a "Sonata in D minor," by R. J. Dale, a composer from the Royal Academy of Music, London, who is now a prisoner in Germany at a camp where he is allowed to conduct part-songs, in which the other English captives form the choir. There was a beautiful adagio-theme announced in the bass of the opening movement, followed by daintily imaginative variations; a brightly fascinating mazurka; and a finale wherein the opening theme was reintroduced with an effect of solemnity in which the influence of Grieg could be traced. Mr. Hutchens interpreted with feeling for the composer's mood, and the novelty was fully appreciated. The artist played also with sparkling precision two captivating sonatas (B minor and C major) by Scarlatti, which, as customary at that day, were in one movement each. As Mr. Hutchens, with the slightest possible pause, went on to his second group, some of his listeners must have had no little difficulty in following the programme. At the close of the six Brahms waltzes, Mr. Hutchens responded to the enthusiasm with the beautiful Novelette of Schumann, which he rendered both with vigour and sentiment. The rest of an enjoyable programme consisted of Chopin pieces. Mr. Nelson Illingworth was quite at his best in Schubert's quaint song, "The Organman," after which he was encored for Loewe's setting of "The Erl King," contemporaneous with Schubert's finer, but only partially dissimilar, version. The basso also rendered Moussorgsky's comedy piece, "The Peep Show." Mr. Walter Thorman was the accompanist.

ROYAL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

Sullivan's dramatic cantata, "The Golden Legend," will be performed by the Royal Philharmonic Society on an elaborate scale to-morrow night, with Misses Tasma and Henry, Messrs. French and M'Eachern as solo vocalists. Mr. Lawrence Campbell will recite Cammaert's noble poem, "Sing, Belgians, Sing," to the great orchestral accompaniment by Sir Edward Elgar, entitled "Carillon." The plan is at Paling's.

BALMAIN QUEEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I read a very interesting article on the crowning of the Balmain queen in your issue on Saturday, but I looked in vain for any acknowledgment of a Sydney precedent in this matter. On New Year's Day last, all this was done by the Highland Society of New South Wales, and the idea was given to the committee by Messrs. Pringle and Muir, founded on the crowning of the "Beltane Queen" in Scotland. The committee, of whom I was one, merely carried out the idea, which we are all naturally glad to see reproduced in such a good cause, but it seems only right that the honour of originating such a scheme should be given to the proper persons. The following paragraph is taken from the 27th annual report of the Highland Society of New South Wales, published June 30, 1915:—

A new feature of the gathering was a spectacular ceremony, being an adaptation of the ancient Scottish customs associated with the Beltane Queen Pageant. Besides the crowning of the Highland Society's "Queen of the Sports," the ceremony was carried out with all the details of a coronation procession, installation, and grand march round the arena, the pageant including the representation of many historic characters.

I am, etc., WALTER BENTLEY.

DON'T WASTE FOOD,
IT'S TOO DEAR.
KEEP IT FRESH, COOL,
AND SWEET IN A

CORNSTALK REFRIGERATOR

"THE CHEST THAT CHILLS."

No sensible woman ever needs persuasion to buy such a really reliable food-preserver as the "CORNSTALK" REFRIGERATOR, because, with true feminine instinct, she realises that, apart from its value as a great domestic convenience, it will more than save its cost in a Summer season by stopping the waste in Eatables and Drinkables.

COMPLETE INSULATION AND THOROUGH VENTILATION render "CORNSTALK" REFRIGERATORS particularly effective food-preservers—the first keeps the heat out and the cold in, and makes the ice last longer, while the second, by ensuring a constant current of cool, dry air, creates ideal conditions for the preservation of eatables and drinkables.

Where such vital necessities as Insulation and Ventilation are PERFECT, as in "CORNSTALK" REFRIGERATORS, you can depend upon everything else being RIGHT also. For instance—

These Ice Chests are Strongly Built, Handsomely Designed, and Splendidly Finished. They are lined with heavily galvanised RUSTPROOF steel, and fitted with Ice Rack, Flues, and Double-tinned Wire Shelves—ALL EASILY REMOVABLE for cleaning.

Again, all condensed moisture and waste water escapes through a patent Syphon Trap on the outlet pipe, thus releasing moisture and retaining cold air—an ingenious arrangement for getting the last ounce of service from the ice.

Here are some prices:—

"CORNSTALK" ICE BOX, for shops or small families. Size, 24in wide x 17in deep x 26in high.
PRICE .... £2/7/6.

No. 10 "CORNSTALK" REFRIGERATOR, 20in wide x 14in deep x 37in high. One wire shelf.
PRICE .... £2/5/.

No. 11 "CORNSTALK" REFRIGERATOR, 21in wide x 15½in deep x 39in high. One wire shelf.
PRICE .... £3/12/6.

No. 12 "CORNSTALK" REFRIGERATOR, 23in wide x 16½in deep x 41in high. Two wire shelves.
PRICE .... £4/12/6.

"COOL AS AN ICEBERG."

That's the title of our ILLUSTRATED 12-page Refrigerator Booklet, which illustrates and describes the whole "Cornstalk" family, from ICE BOXES right up to £17 REFRIGERATORS. Tells about Ice Cream Freezers and Ice Cream Glassware, too.

For all occasions when wholesome, nourishing food is desirable "Saos" are appetising and enjoyable. More important still—they have a greater nutritive value than some of the more expensive foodstuffs.
For Summer meals they will prove light, dainty, and refreshing. Get a tin from your Grocer to-day.
